Smith Beats Dodd, 3 to 1, as 'Purge' Fails

Soviet Hurls Six Divisions, 30 Tanks at Japan's Lines

Tokyo Reports Attack Thrown Back With 'Heavy Losses.'

Reds Moving Up A Million Men

Air Raid Fear Grows; Osaka, Other Cities Are Darkened.

By the United Press.

Tokyo (Wednesday), Aug. 3.—Russia and Japan today locked their armies in sporadic battles on a front focussed on Changkufeng Hill in the disputed Possiet Bay territory. Japan darkened her cities and enforced other air raid precautions last night.

Unwilling to Negotiate.

Artillery, tanks and airplanes backed up thousands of infantrymen in the undeclared warfare raging 150 miles south of Russia's great fortified port of Vladivostok. Diplomats in Moscow and Tokyo were frustrated by Russian unwillingness to negotiate as long as Japan holds by force the territory Stalin claims is Russia's.

[Following night-long aerial and artillery bombardments, the Russians hurled six divisions, supported by 30 tanks, against the Japanese at Shachofeng today, according to an army communique which said the Russians were repulsed with "heavy losses," the Associated Press reported. Shachofeng is near Changkufeng.—Editor's note.]

Headquarters for the defense of central Japan proper, in the great industrial city of Osaka, announced that antiaircraft precautions were enforced beginning at sunset last night.

Heavy Casualties.

Announcing heavy casualties suffered by both sides, Moscow warned Japan that "continuation of military action is pregnant with most serious consequences, which would be considered inevitable."

There were strong indications that the Soviet's 1,000,000 or more troops in the Far East were moving into positions close to the Manchukuo frontier. Japan has military stores and barracks in the Changkufeng area which could house 250,000 troops. The Japanese army in Manchukuo is declared to be able to fight a year with virtually no assistance from Japan proper.

Russian Attacks Continue.

Japanese army headquarters in Yuki, Korea, reported these developments in the fighting, which raged all day yesterday, with Russian attacks continuing today:

Three Soviet bombers raided Japanese trenches at Changkufeng with explosives and machine guns. Five Soviet planes were shot down in such raids Monday.

A Soviet infantry battalion supported by nine tanks stormed the hill but was beaten back, losing three of the tanks.

Complies With Court Order to List Accused Men in Hines Case.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Aug. 2.—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey complied today with a court order directing him to list the judges and other public officials allegedly bribed by James J. Hines, Tammany leader, and his eight co-defendants. Dewey named William C. Dodge, former district attorney, Magistrate Hulon Capshaw and the late Magistrate Francis J. Erwin.

It was understood that Dewey named only the officials he felt required by law to list, withholding the identity of others who might be involved for the trial, which begins August 15. He avoided listing any more by asserting that the three named today were the ones directly involved in the indictment of the Tammany leader and his codefendants.

Dodge, who was succeeded in office by Dewey, announced from his private law office that he would withhold comment until he had been apprised of the charges made against him. Later, when that had been accomplished, he said he might answer tonight or tomorrow.

Magistrate Capshaw, expressing surprise that he was named at all, denied that he was involved in any way. He said his record of policy convictions would stand with that of any other magistrate. Chief Magistrate Jacob Geund Schurman, jr., informed him, nevertheless, by special delivery letter, that he must consider himself relieved from judicial duties until further notice.

Magistrate Erwin, who was appointed to the bench on April 28, 1931, by former Mayor James J. Walker, died on March 6, 1935.

Lloyd Paul Stryker, attorney for Hines, who sought the bill of particulars, expressed surprise that no

Mexican Reply Due Today on Land Seizure

German Market Reported Chosen for Sale of Expropriated Oil.

By the Associated Press.

Mexico City, Aug. 2.—The department of propaganda and publicity announced today that a reply to Secretary of State Hull's note of July 21 proposing arbitration of American claims for expropriated farm lands would be published simultaneously in Mexico City and Washington tomorrow.

Official silence veiled contents of the reply, but well informed quarters believed Mexico would reject the United States proposal to settle by arbitration the question of compensation for American-owned farm properties taken over by the Mexican government since 1927 and valued at more than $10,000,000.

It was thought likely that Mexico would refer to the unsatisfactory solution by arbitration of the Chamizal area at El Paso in 1910. The United States protested the decision of an arbitral commission and the matter never was settled.

German Market Open.

The Bureau of Mines disclosed information yesterday which it said "confirmed" reports that Mexico had found a German market for American and British expropriated oil.

"According to information obtained through the London tanker market," the bureau said, "the report that Mexican oil has found an outlet in Germany is confirmed. Several tankers have been fitted out to the account of German firms."

Mexico, by executive order of President Cardenas, took over possession and operation of American and British oil wells in that country several months ago. The result was an accumulation of oil for which Mexico could find no export outlet immediately.

Quoting Paris sources, the bureau said bills of lading on Mexican oil

His Ship 'Too Slow,' Corrigan Phones to Delay Visit to D. C.

The S. S. Manhattan moves too slowly for "Doug" Corrigan, the impulsive young "East-is-West" flier told The Washington Post in a ship-to-shore telephone conversation yesterday.

"How does this trip compare with your other crossing?" Corrigan was asked.

"It's too slow this way!" the boyish voice replied. "It seems to drag along. I like to get places in a hurry."

The luxury liner on which he is returning from Ireland has nothing on the "crate" in which he made the flight, either in speed or in comfort, he said.

When told that Washington women were looking forward to seeing him here, he said enthusiastically, "Fine! I'll be glad to see them, too."

The conversation took place from District Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen's office in the District Building after the Commissioner had extended the official invitation to the reception planned on his arrival here.

Corrigan told Hazen he expected to arrive here next Wednesday, thus forcing the committee to postpone the reception, originally scheduled for Monday.

Labor Board Defies Iowa Inquiry Ban

Martial Law Is Branded 'Illegal;' Governor's Talks Hint Peace.

By the Associated Press.

An historic test of Federal versus State power appeared in prospect last night when the National Labor Relations Board, defying Gov. Nelson Kraschel of Iowa, decided to resume the Maytag strike hearing which he has prohibited in the State.

Branding "illegal" the Governor's action in using martial law to halt the inquiry at Newton, Iowa, last week, the board instructed its trial examiner, Madison Hill, to resume the taking of testimony at the Federal courthouse at Des Moines Thursday.

Entire State Covered.

With 250 guardsmen already on duty in the strike area, the Governor sent their commander, Maj. Gen. Mathew A. Tinley, to tell Hill last Saturday night that no further hearings would be permitted because they had proved a "disturbing" factor and might be delaying settlement.

The formal order served on Hill contained a phrase defining the territory to which it applied as the whole State of Iowa.

"We cannot believe that this phrase will be used to obstruct hearings beyond the territory in which martial law has been declared," the Labor Board said yesterday. "... a hearing to be held in Des Moines ... cannot be considered as forbidden by the real intent of the Governor's order."

Showdown Expected.

The board served notice that should the Governor hold his order must be construed as State-wide in effect, it would have "no alternative ... but to proceed with the hearings under the authority of the national power which it exercises."

This was regarded by many as indicating the imminence of a showdown on the Federal-State issues involved, especially because the Governor has stated "there will be no Labor Board hearings in the military district of Iowa without our permission."

Hopes to Avoid Conflict.

Board members gave no indication what they would do if the Governor persisted in his refusal to sanction the hearings and used the State militia to prevent their resumption in a Federal building.

Some informed persons said, however, that the board could elect to move the inquiry to a neighboring State, or to Washington.

In transferring the hearing to Des Moines, the board said it did not "concede the validity of the order

Insurance Agents Union Sues C.I.O., Asking $1,000,000

Damages of $1,000,000 were sought of the Committee for Industrial Organization in District Court yesterday by the National Association of Industrial Insurance Agents because certain C. I. O. officials have publicly branded the association as a "company union."

This, it was alleged, has aroused ill feeling among industrial workers generally and had worked to the detriment of the association. It contended there has been a substantial loss in membership.

The association said it was an independent organization, not controlled, financed, or supervised by any insurance company. Its approximate membership is 10,000 Horace Chapman Young, attorney for the association, stated in the bill.

The suit is expected to test whether the C. I. O. can be sued as a legal entity though it operates as an unincorporated group.

Reed Leads Kansas G. O. P.; Coercion Found in Kentucky

Both Factions 'Guilty' of Soliciting Funds From Workers.

Free Ballot Right Is Held in Danger

Report May Question Seating of Either Candidate.

By William V. Nessly.

Organized efforts to control the vote of relief workers in Kentucky are under way and campaign contributions have been exacted from both Federal employes and State officials in the Democratic senatorial primary fight in that State, the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee declared yesterday.

The campaign has developed into "a deplorable situation" that "should arouse the conscience of the country," the committee charged, adding that the facts "imperil the right of the people to a free and unpolluted ballot."

Both Factions Guilty.

Senator Barkley, backed by President Roosevelt, and Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler are at grips in the fierce struggle for the Democratic Senate nomination, to be decided in State-wide voting Saturday.

Following another report from its investigator, H. Ralph Burton, who has been in Kentucky to study charges of irregularities, the committee last night issued a statement declaring.

"It is certain that organized efforts have been and are being made to control the vote of those on relief work, and that contributions have been sought and obtained from Federal employes, in behalf of one of the senatorial candidates.

"It is equally certain that State officials charged in part with the distribution of Federal funds for old age assistance and for unemployment compensation have been required to contribute from their salaries and of their services in the interest of another candidate for the United States Senate."

Neither's Name Mentioned.

There were indications that the committee may submit to the Senate a report that would in effect be a recommendation against seating the successful candidate, though Chairman Sheppard (Democrat), of Texas, said such action would depend on further developments. The committee statement said:

"Your committee feels that its investigation should continue, whatever may be the outcome of the primary, in order that the full facts may be developed and presented to the Senate for its consideration and action."

Sheppard said that the investigator and his staff of "three or four" assistants had covered one-

The Voting in Four States

As Virginia, Missouri, Kansas and West Virginia last night counted their primary election votes, these were the early results and trends:

VIRGINIA—William E. Dodd, jr., New Dealer, at 9:15 p. m., conceded the renomination of Representative Howard W. Smith in the Eighth District. In the Second District Former Representative Colgate W. Darden, jr., defeated Representative Norman R. Hamilton, New Dealer.

HOWARD W. SMITH.

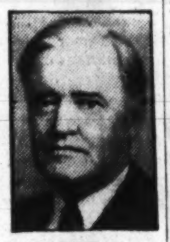
JAMES V. BILLINGS.

KANSAS—Former Gov. Clyde M. Reed was leading Dallas W. Knapp for the G. O. P. senatorial nomination, with the Rev. Gerald Winrod, termed a "Nazi," far behind. For the G. O. P. governorship nomination Payne H. Ratner and Harold McGugin were running very close.

MISSOURI — Growing returns showed Senator Bennett C. Clark far ahead for renomination, and James V. Billings, Pendergast candidate, leading Judge James M. Douglas, backed by Gov. Lloyd C. Stark, for the State Supreme Court, but Douglas was gaining.

WEST VIRGINIA—Representative Robert L. Ramsey was leading Frank C. Haymond, Representative Andrew Edmiston was ahead of J. Alfred Taylor, and Representative George W. Johnson defeated Edgar M. Utterback for renomination.

BENNETT CLARK.



CLYDE M. REED.

Raymond Humphreys was leading Isaac M. Underwood in the Fourth District G. O. P. contest. In the Third District H. Roy Waugh headed Clyde Ash and Ott Rader for the Republican nomination.

Stark's Judge Reduces Foe's Missouri Lead

Governor's Candidate Picks Up on Pendergast Man; Clark in Landslide.

St. Louis, Aug. 2 (AP).—Out-State Missouri and St. Louis, swinging to the side of Gov. Lloyd C. Stark in his fight against "bossism," steadily cut away tonight at a lead Kansas City had given T. J. Pendergast's Supreme Court candidate in today's primary election.

Returns from 2,474 of the State's 4,428 precincts gave James V. Billings, of Kennett, indorsed by Pendergast, 199,403 votes to 173,879 for Judge James M. Douglas, of St. Louis, Stark's appointee.

Clark Nears Landslide.

However, these returns included 421 of 548 Kansas City Precincts and only 50 of 783 in St. Louis, where Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann's city administration threw its full strength to Douglas.

Douglas took an early lead in 86 of the State's 114 counties.

United States Senator Bennett Champ Clark, whose bid for Democratic renomination had been obscured in the State by the Supreme Court scrap, headed toward a landslide victory over the three opponents. Returns from 2,177 precincts gave:

Clark, 228,882; Joseph T. Davis, 35,885; Willis H. Meredith, 18,057, and Robert I. Young, 12,643.

Republicans Join Fray.

In the Republican senatorial primary, former Gov. Henry S. Caulfield, drafted by party leaders, was pulling far ahead of his politically unknown opponent, Ray E. White, St. Louis County real estate dealer. In 838 precincts, Caulfield had 36,099 votes to 7,429 for White.

Republicans by the thousands made a free-for-all of the Demo-

Reed, Ratner Lead Kansas G. O. P. Races

Winrod, McGugin Trailing for Senate, Governor Respectively.

Topeka, Kans., Aug. 2 (AP).—Former Gov. Clyde M. Reed, Parsons newspaper publisher, appeared certain winner tonight of the Republican Kansas Senatorial nomination while a fellow townsman, State Senator Payne Ratner held a like lead in the party Governorship race.

Returns, representing virtually all the 105 counties, put Reed 12,000 votes ahead of his nearest opponent, Dallas Knapp, Coffeyville attorney.

Trailing Knapp were the Rev. Gerald Winrod, target of disputed campaign charges of Nazi sympathies, and the Rev. J. C. Fisher, Garden City Methodist minister.

McGugin Trailing.

Ratner's lead over former Congressman Harold McGugin at the same stage was nearly 15,000 votes. Charles W. Thompson, former lieutenant governor, trailed McGugin with Carl Newcomer fourth.

The vote:

Republican Senator, 914 out of 2,708 precincts—Reed, 34,442; Knapp, 22,994; Winrod, 18,150; Fisher, 8,907.

Republican Governor, 975 precincts—Ratner, 40,315; McGugin, 25,868; Thompson, 18,828; Newcomer, 9,910.

The Republican Senator nominee will oppose McGill, Democratic incumbent, next November. McGill was far in front of his lone opponent, Joe Dohner, farmer.

Leaders Backed Reed.

Gov. Walter A. Huxman, a Democrat, had no primary opposition.

Reed's campaign was his first since he was defeated in 1930 for renomination as Governor. After that defeat he retired to his newspaper,

3 New Dealers Leading Critics In Primaries in West Virginia

By the Associated Press.

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 2.—West Virginia's three New Deal Congressmen who were opposed for renomination stepped out tonight with comfortable leads as returns slowly came in from a dispirited primary.

Representative Robert L. Ramsay, of the First District, who had faced determined opposition from Frank C. Haymond, Fairmont attorney, in 170 of 326 precincts in the First District, had 15,744 to Haymond's 11,492, while Joseph S. Tost, of Follansbee, trailed a bad third.

Representative Andrew Edmiston, of the Third District, led J. Alfred Taylor, of Fayetteville, in 337 of 478 precincts, 27,742 votes to 12,763.

Former Judge H. Roy Waugh, of Buckhannon, running for the Republican nomination, led with 8,753 votes in 232 precincts to 3,950 for Clyde Ash, of Wilsonburg, and 3,066 for Ott Rader, of Summerville.

Renomination of George W. Johnson, of Parkersburg, in the Fourth, seemed assured as he rolled up 13,476 votes in 135 of 441 precincts to 2,543 for his fellow townsman, Edgar Utterback.

On the Republican side in the Fourth, Raymond Humphreys, of Huntington, 1936 nominee, pulled away from Isaac Underwood, of Middlebourne, polling 8,853 in 162 of 441 precincts to 6,113 for Underwood.

Hamilton Loses Seat to Darden

Ambassador's Son Says He'll Run Again in '40 as 'Liberal.'

By Edward T. Folliard

Representative Howard W. Smith, of Alexandria, won the Democratic nomination for a fifth term yesterday in Virginia's Eighth Congressional District.

He won it easily, impressively, with a smashing 3-to-1 triumph over William E. Dodd, jr., of Round Hill, who had told the voters that "A vote for Dodd is a vote for Roosevelt."

With 209 out of 219 precincts reported, the vote was:

Smith, 19,601.

Dodd, 6,530.

Representative Smith, who, according to New Deal reports, had been marked for the "purge," carried both cities in the Eighth District—Alexandria and Charlottesville—and all 15 counties. He gave Dodd one of his worst beatings in Dodd's own county, Loudoun, where the vote was 1,620 to 402.

Hamilton Defeated.

In the Second Congressional District, the only other one in the State where there was a contest, former Representative Colgate W. Darden, jr., of Norfolk, won back his old seat from Representative Norman R. Hamilton, of Portsmouth. Hamilton conceded the election at 10:45 p. m.

The complete vote for the 128 precincts was: Darden, 18,984; Hamilton, 17,283; W. Bruce Shafer, 1,029.

Hamilton had warned the voters that Darden was a member of the "Byrd machine," and would not be sympathetic to President Roosevelt and the New Deal.

Dodd conceded his defeat at 9:15 p. m., less than two hours after the counting of ballots started, and in doing so he served notice that he would be back after Smith's scalp in 1940.

Dodd said:

"I concede election to Judge Smith and extend to him my heartiest congratulations. I also want to take this opportunity to thank my supporters for their courage in fighting against overwhelming odds. I want to remind them that liberalism must never be allowed to die in our Eighth District. I can think of no better way to close than by quoting the recent words of our great President, 'For these things we have just begun to fight.'"

Sends Wire to Victor.

Dodd sent the following telegram to Representative Smith:

"Heartiest congratulations to you on your election. Best wishes for success in next two years."

Noting Dodd's reference to "two years," the crowd at Smith's headquarters laughed heartily when the telegram was read.

Boss Pendergast's Wife Can't Vote in Missouri

Kansas City, Aug. 2 (AP).—Mrs. T. J. Pendergast, wife of Kansas City's Democratic chieftain, was denied a vote in Missouri's primary election today.

When Mrs. Pendergast called at the polling place for a ballot, officials discovered she had forgotten to sign three affidavits that would have completed her registration.

Bank Warning 'A 'Love Letter,' Jones Asserts

'Don't Want People to Do as I Do, but as I Tell Them,' He Explains.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, yesterday described as "love letters" two messages which he sent to banks and bankers last month criticising them for not extending more liberal credit to business and reminding them bluntly that talk still persists in Government circles about the establishment of Government sponsored industrial banks.

At a press conference he was asked to reconcile his pleas for increased bank lending and the fact that his own banks in Texas have shown a decrease in outstanding business loans. He replied: "I don't want people to do as I do, but as I tell them to do."

The reaction to his letters has been "very good" from a bank participation standpoint, Jones said. He jokingly said that the press had been somewhat responsible for the unfavorable reaction of bankers to his letters. "As a rule bankers do not like to be told what to do," he added.

Wrote Letter July 18.

On July 18, Chairman Jones addressed a letter to banks in which he cited the small number of participations in loans made by the RFC and urged them to take advantage of the new liberalized investment regulations to extend credit to business.

A week later he followed his plea with a statement increasing the Government's pressure on banks throughout the country to extend more liberal credit for business and industrial activities. In this he virtually gave the banks notice that if they don't take this business when offered by their own depositors, his agency will seek to place the loans in competing banks.

Since the RFC resumed lending the latter part of February it has authorized 2,865 loans aggregating $536,679,380.67, Jones said. of the loans, 2,508, aggregating $90,142,853, were approved under the new authority to lend to business. Banks took participations aggregating $15,061,008 in 400 of these loans, which increases the amount of business loan authorizations to $105,203,862. RFC's part of these 400 loans was $25,242,605.

Commitments Listed.

About $150,000,000 of the commitments to Commodity Credit Corporation was in connection with the wheat loan; $50,000,000 for wool and mohair; $2,500,000 for raisins; $2,750,000 for tobacco; and $7,000,000 for naval stores.

The authorizations to Commodity Credit Corporation, with the exception of the $150,000,000 in connection with the wheat loan, have been rescinded as Commodity Credit found that it had sufficient available funds of its own.

The Federal National Mortgage Association, controlled by the RFC, has bought 10,898 Federal Housing Administration mortgages totaling $42,185,620. It has outstanding commitments to buy 1,647 mortgages totaling $9,833,669.

For the period February 1 to August 1, inclusive, the RFC has authorized total railroad loans of $45,385,591; $57,990,500 to public bodies; $36,300,486 to the RFC Mortgage Co. and $39,860,562 for purchases of securities from PWA. In addition it has made other loans for various purposes ranging in size from $100,000 to more than $6,000,000.

Jones also said yesterday he is favorably disposed to granting a $9,500,000 loan to the Gulf, Mobile & Northern Railroad for use in acquiring the Mobile & Ohio, a member of the Southern Railway system.

Deals Under Way.

He said negotiations are underway between the Southern and the Gulf, Mobile & Northern for the acquisition by the latter of the Mobile & Ohio, which is in receivership. "The matter does not meet with disfavor with the Interstate Commerce Commission," he said.

Preliminary plans indicate that the Gulf, Mobile & Northern may organize a new corporation to consolidate its properties and those of the Mobile & Ohio. All conversations, he said, are still in the preliminary stage, and pointed out that the G. M. & N. has not made application for an RFC loan.

Chairman Jones was questioned about the status of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad loan of $6,000,000 now before the RFC. He replied that because of "unusual times" the loan was not approved. Asked if he had heard reports of a plan to scale down the fixed charges of the road preliminary to further RFC leanding, he replied he had, but he had no definite information.

The RFC, he disclosed, had approved the $5,000,000 New York Central Railroad "work loan."

Cuba Gives Welles Hair to Celebrate Friendship for U.S.

Cuban Ambassador Pedro Martinez Fraga presented to Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles yesterday a gift for President Roosevelt designed to be a souvenir of recent Cuban demonstrations of friendship toward the United States.

The envoy delivered a diploma made by Vicente Garcia Bordonado, Cuban miniaturist. On the diploma was a human hair 3½ inches long, on which was inscribed a hundred-word message recording the aims of demonstrations held in Havana July 4 in honor of Cuban-American friendship.

Steuart Guides D. C. Masons In Their Philanthropic Work

Harris & Ewing.

LEONARD P. STEUART.

Largest Employer of Individual Labor in District Also Heads Largest Fraternal Organization, Which Boasts 20,000 Members.

By Christine Sadler

By far the largest fraternal organization in the District of Columbia is the Masons, who now number 20,000. The first local Masonic lodge was chartered in 1793, or before the newly established Federal Government moved in. Lodges today total 47, and addition there are 16 chapters of Royal Arch Masons, 6 councils of Cryptic Masons and 6 commanderies of Knights Templar. Approximately 3,700 of the 20,000 modern exponents of the ancient philosophy have advanced far enough in Masonry to be members of the Shrine, toward which most good Masons aspire.

Grand master of the District is Leonard P. Steuart, Washington businessman, who is a former imperial potentate of all the shrines in North America, and who at present holds the office of imperial treasurer.

The fraternity engages in various charitable and welfare activities. Outstanding is the work done with crippled children. The grand lodge of the District contributes between $6,000 and $7,000 annually to work of the 15 Masonic crippled children's hospitals, to which needy children of all races and creeds are admitted.

The Masonic Personnel and Service Bureau at 1010 Vermont avenue northwest, the St. John's Mite Association, and the Masonic and Eastern Star Home at Takoma Park are among the charitable establishments guided by the fraternal order.

Funds for the Masonic home are boosted annually by proceeds from the big field day at Griffith Stadium. Credit for the movement toward establishment of the home which was dedicated in 1906, is given to the Order of the Eastern Star, of which there are 43 chapters in the District—all working in close harmony with their Masonic brothers.

Grand Master Steuart a few months ago advanced the idea that a charity foundation be established, its income to be used to help keep families together by aid to mothers in their own homes.

A native of Maryland, Grand Master Steuart came to the District before he had reached his 'teens. His first job was selling papers with his brother, Guy, with whom he has been partners ever since.

From this beginning the brothers advanced to the delivery of coal and ice and on to ownership. Today the Steuart organization is recognized as the largest individual employer of labor in the District of Columbia. Its activities extend into the real estate, banking, coal, ice, automobile fields.

Grand Master Steuart holds honorary degrees from more than 100 Masonic temples throughout the country. His Masonic brothers like him for the obstacle he overcame in acquiring his present position and for the fact that in spite of his unusual business success he has remained friendly and approachable. He and Mrs. Steuart have two daughters and live at 2501 Upton street northwest.

On Friday—Thomas F. Carlin, State deputy of the Knights of Columbus, will be next in the "Working for Washington" series.

Use of Troops Abandoned at Memphis Polls

Governor Sends His Militia South After Judge Forbids Patrols.

By the Associated Press.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 2.—The last detachment of Tennessee's National Guard entrained tonight for maneuvers in South Mississippi, removing any likelihood that Gov. Gordon Browning would order guardsmen to patrol the Democratic primary Thursday in Memphis, stronghold of the Governor's opposition.

Orders for 600 officers and men to leave Tennessee and join companion units in Mississippi were issued by Adj. Gen. R. O. Smith at the Governor's direction.

Browning, who was termed a "swashbuckling Governor" by Federal Judge John D. Martin in Memphis for considering the military patrol, reiterated earlier statements that they would not be sent to National Committeeman E. H. Crump's citadel "unless I change my mind."

The Governor who has said his decision on the troops would have "no relation to any injunction," was enjoined by Martin from sending them the Memphis. The Governor retorted that Martin's order was "a disgrace to the bench" and that the jurist "ought to be impeached."

The hullabaloo about the troops overshadowed other developments in Browning's renomination race against three opponents, including Prentice Cooper, attorney, who is backed by Crump and senior United States Senator K. D. McKellar, who controls Federal patronage.

Crump and McKellar also are supporting A. Tom Stewart, a district attorney general, for the junior United States Senate seat of George L. Berry, Browning ally.

Berry has three other opponents, among them Representative J. Ridley Mitchell and Dr. John R. Neal, Knoxville lawyer, who telegraphed the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee in Washington that Judge Martin's impeachment should be demanded.

"Martin is a cousin of Ed Crump, known throughout Tennessee as boss of Shelby," Neal's telebram said.

Ludlow Reiterates Request Cummings Draft Lynch Bill

The efforts of advocates of anti-lynching legislation to force the Department of Justice to manifest some interest in a new study of the subject for the information of the next Congress were renewed yesterday by Representative Louis Ludlow (Democrat), Indiana.

In a letter to Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, Ludlow proposed that the department consider a proposal "to bring lynching within the category of Federal crimes and give the Federal Bureau of Investigation authority to investigate every lynching wherever it may occur."

His letter was in reply to a recent communication from Mr. Cummings in which the attorney general had contended that anti-lynching legislation was a subject for Congress alone to deal with.

"A large majority, in fact most of the acts conducive to social betterment which Congress has passed in recent years," Ludlow reminded, "have been drafted by the executive departments . . ."

The Gallup Poll

Split Between "Haves" and "Have Nots" Is Growing; Opposition to Roosevelt Grows Among Property Owners.

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director American Institute of Public Opinion

George Gallup

New York, Aug. 2.—New and striking evidence of the cleavage of political opinion today along economic lines is indicated in a cross-section survey just completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

This national study shows that a majority of voters who own their homes or other real estate or own stocks or bonds are against Roosevelt today, whereas voters who live in rented homes and those who have no stocks or bonds are strongly for him.

It also shows that this cleavage of opinion between the so-called "haves" and "have-nots" is actually becoming sharper as time goes on, for it is more pronounced now than it was in the 1936 election.

The survey covers a cross-section of the voting population, asking home owners and non-home owners, investors and non-investors how they voted in 1936 and what their attitude toward Roosevelt is today.

Insofar as home ownership or investments places a voter in the category of the "haves," it can be seen that the "haves" disapprove of Roosevelt by majorities ranging from 52 per cent to 65 per cent, while the "have-nots" favor him by more than 6 to 4.

Furthermore, while the attitude of non-property owners toward Roosevelt has changed little since 1936, the property owners have become increasingly opposed to him, thus widening the split between the classes.

Spending Opposed.

Other recent Institute surveys show that voters in the upper classes give three chief reasons for their defection from Roosevelt, namely, the spending policy, the President's attitude toward business and the continued economic depression.

Voters in the lower income groups, who form the backbone of the New Deal, declare that they continue to favor Roosevelt because "he has the interests of the common man at heart," and because "he may have made mistakes, but he's doing his best."

	P. C. For Roosevelt In 1936	P. C. For Roosevelt Today	P. C. Change
Home or property owners	56	48	—14
Non-property owners	71	65	— 8
Investors	47	35	—26
Non-investors	68	62	— 9

Sheriff Blames Union Head For Disorders in Steel Strike

By the Associated Press.

The sheriff of Mahoning County, Ohio—scene of blody violence during the 1937 "Little Steel" strike—laid part of the blame for disorders at the door of Philip Murray, chairman of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, in testimony yesterday before the Senate Civil Liberties Committee.

Ralph E. Elser testified that if Murray had "done the right thing" about permitting maintenance crews to enter and leave strike-bound steel plants "much of this trouble would have been avoided."

He said the Republic Steel Corporation and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. met difficulty in efforts to keep maintenance men in their plants and to supply them with food.

Chairman La Follettee (Progressive), of Wisconsin, promptly produced a memorandum by R. M. Welch, director of industrial relations for Sheet and Tube, dealing with a report the sheriff had made to him concerning a conference with several local representatives of the S. W. O. C.

The memorandum related that the union men, headed by Frank Greggs, had offered to issue passes to men they felt were qualified to act as maintenance men. The sheriff refused this offer, however, asserting that the union had no right to issue such passes and ventured the opinion that the company would not honor them.

"Then the union did offer, on May 20, seven days before the strike, to permit maintenance men to go into the plant, such men as they knew would act as maintenance men and would not try to operate the plant, didn't it?" La Follette demanded.

The sheriff insisted this offer was qualified, that the union "wanted to pick the men" for such jobs.

Elser stoutly defended his labor record. He said he personally had been active in settling five strikes, that he had two sons both carrying union cards.

La Follette produced figures to show that 94 of the 155 special deputies the sheriff had added to his force during the strike period were employes or former employes of Republic or Sheet & Tube. The sheriff said he had no opportunity to check such affiliations.

"On several occasions," he asserted, "people came to me and said, 'Do you know that you have some C. I. O. men on your staff?' and I said, "What of it?'"

James M. Woltz, superintendent of Sheet and Tube police, testified he turned over a supply of gas equipment to the sheriff and gave him an 18-shell automatic gas gun, which the sheriff later said he traded for 60 gas billies.

The sheriff verified the purchase of approximately $16,000 in gas equipment with county funds. He explained that in previous strikes there had been general criticism that "if the sheriff had known his stuff and had prepared himself, they wouldn't have burned down the City of Campbell in 1916, and I didn't want that said about me."

Earlier yesterday, the committee closed its investigation of the bloody clash in which about 360 vigilantes dispersed about 150 pickets from the Republic's Newton Steel plant at Monroe, Mich.

It was testified the vigilantes were armed with tear gas, night sticks and "fungo" baseball bats while the pickets carried willow clubs, sawed lumber and sharp pieces of steel.

There was conflicting testimony about the attitude of Gov. Murphy of Michigan, as reflected in telephone conversations with representatives of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee and Monroe City and county officials.

Police Chief Jesse Fisher, who led the vigilantes into the fray June 10, 1937, testified that he could hear the Governor telling Edwin Mayberry, who represented himself as chief of the picket line, to "get those pickets off the highway and let the men go through to the plant."

Mayberry, identified as a representative of the United Auto Workers from Toledo, Ohio, then agreed to open the picket line, Chief Fisher said. When the line had not been opened after an hour and a half of wrangling, the vigilantes advanced, firing gas shells and dispersing the pickets, the witness said.

School Plans Strike a Snag In Greenbelt

Technical Reasons Delay Program Despite PWA Grant of $185,072.

Although the long awaited PWA grant of $185,072 for school construction in Prince Georges County has been made, improvements to the Greenbelt High School, included in the proposed building program, may be impossible because of technical reasons, it was learned yesterday.

A county official disclosed that difficulties have arisen over the promise of Greenbelt authorities to deed over the recently completed school building to the county.

This official said it was understood at first the school would be deeded in fee simple, with no strings attached, but now it appears that the deed will be given only on condition that the county pay for the education of Greenbelt students as well as those from the county proper from tax money.

Board Wont Accept.

The county school board has refused to accept this "determinable deed." The proposed expenditure of $35,000 for a combined auditorium and gymnasium, for the Greenbelt High School would be impossible, moreover, even if the deed were accepted.

The reason for this is that the county school board is forbidden by the State school law to spend tax money for construction on a site to which it does not have a good title.

Greenbelt authorities, it was understood, have offered to pay a proportionate share of the cost of operating the school as long as the Bankhead act remains in effect, but county officials do not consider this sufficient assurance. The Bankhead act authorizes housing projects, such as Greenbelt, to pay local authorities a sum equal to taxes for the public education or other purposes.

The Greenbelt High School, a 10-room building, was constructed by the Farm Security Administration. When county authorities were informed of the plan to deed over the school, they agreed to provide in the construction program for the $35,000 auditorium and gymnasium. That provision, however, was made when it was understood the county would obtain a fee simple deed to the building.

Two Ways Out.

The only ways in which funds may be allocated to the Greenbelt school now are for the State Legislature to amend the school laws or for Greenbelt authorities to give the county a fee simpe deed to the school.

Meanwhile, plans are under way for the balance of the school construction program. The PWA grant, combined with $226,000 of county funds raised by a bond issue, will be allocated to the following projects:

New Bladensburg Elementary Elementary, new Meadows Elementary, addition to the Oxon Hill High School, addition to the Berwyn School, addition to the Bladensburg High School, addition to the Marlboro Colored High School and addition to the District Heights Elementary.

Mother Stands by Paul Dwyer

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Smiling broadly, young Paul N. Dwyer and his mother, Mrs. Jessie Dwyer, are shown in superior court at South Paris, Me., yesterday as the State pushed its case in the murder of Dr. James G. Littlefield, whose wife also was slain. Several months ago, Dwyer confessed to the Littlefield murder; was sentenced to life, but now has repudiated his confession and is chief witness against another, Frances M. Carroll, former deputy sheriff. The youth later became ill as he walked to the witness stand.

Tobacco Heir Son Lost By Fortescue Beauty

Reynolds Wins Guardianship of Boy in Virginia Court; Accuses Wife of Intemperance, Preferring Stage to Home.

Julian Louis Reynolds, tobacco heir, was granted guardianship of his 1-year-old son under a court order in Richmond, Va., yesterday after he had charged his wife, Mrs. Helene Fortescue Reynolds, with intemperate drinking and showing more interest in a stage career than in her child.

Judge Julian Gunn, in Henrico County Circuit Court, also forbade removal of the child, Richard Roland, from Virginia without approval of the court, the Associated Press reported.

Mrs. Reynolds, 24-year-old daughter of Col. and Mrs. Granville Fortescue, of Washington, and sister of Mrs. Thalia Fortescue Massie, of the famous Massie murder trial in Hawaii several years ago, is seeking custody of the child in New York courts. She has asked for legal separation, charging Reynolds displayed "uncontrollable temper and insane jealousy." They were married here two years ago.

Reynolds' petition declared Mrs. Reynolds "overindulged (in alcoholic stimulants) at the wedding reception, after which she took with her two bottles of champagne and personally consumed most of the contents," and added that on their honeymoon in Bermuda his wife "with a feminine acquaintance, became so inebriated I would not permit her to appear in public."

Mrs. Reynolds asked a $2,000 monthly allowance pending settlement of her New York suit. Reynolds said his wife "flatly refused" to move with him to Richmond, stating she would not live anywhere but New York because of her ambition to become an actress.

Professor's Wife To Be Questioned On Sea Mystery

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—Federal agents investigating the strange drama of a midnight death struggle aboard the liner Normandie, preluding the disappearance of a 35-year-old Colgate University professor, planned today to question the victim's wife.

The missing man, Dr. Robert Moore Duncan, apparently plunged overboard while the liner was 450 miles at sea, en route to New York.

Henry Villar, purser, said a seaman told him Dr. Duncan grabbed his wife, Alice, by the throat, knocked her unconscious and attempted to throw her over the side. The seaman rescued her. Upon reviving, she sobbed: "Get my husband. He's going to commit suicide."

Duncan was not to be found on board.

Crippled Children Clinic Planned at Gallinger Hospital

A clinic for crippled children will be opened at Gallinger Hospital August 15, Health Officer George C. Ruhland announced yesterday, and plans are being considered for a venereal disease ward at the hospital, which would be the first in the city.

Asserting the recent PWA allocations for improvements at Gallinger will do much to solve District public health problems, Dr. Ruhland said the building program "will make it possible for the Health Department to fulfill, in a large measure, many of the requirements for a well-organized system of disease control."

The health officer also cited the aid of Congress and the Social Security Administration, especially in the care of expectant mothers and children.

2 Guard Platoons 'Fight' for Control Of Camp Ritchie

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Camp Ritchie, Md., Aug. 2.—The National Guard camp here was successfully defended today as Company A, of the 372d Infantry, engaged in mimic warfare.

The first platoon, under command of Lieut. Cornelius King, attempted to take strategic camp locations and was repulsed by the second platoon, assigned to protect the supply depots and ammunition dumps. Lieut. Sylvester Blackwell commanded the winning force. An advance detail of District Guardsmen from the 121st Engineers arrived today to prepare a camp area for the organization which is due by train tomorrow.

The detail in charge of Sergt. Eugene F. Wemple, were furnished evening mess by the 104th Quartermaster Regiment.

"All the comforts of home," have turned up in several tents of the motor transport unit. Electric irons, ironing boards, radios, electric razors, desk and ornamental lamps have appeared as the men cautiously bring them out of hiding places.

Being detached from its regiment, Company B is minus a medical detachment and its company clerk, Sergt. Hugh Allen, is treating minor complaints. Sergt. Allen is a first aid member of Arlington Rescue Squad No. 5. Private Charles L. Scott was admitted to the Waynesboro Hospital with an infection of the knee and Private Edward J. Schoenwetter of the cook's force stabbed an icepick through a finger. He returned to duty this afternoon.

The advance detail of regular Marines from Quantico has been preparing their encampment area to receive reserve troops from the Fifth Battalion Sunday.

Edwin Jones and Chester Pearson of Company A, 372d Infantry, have been promoted from privates to privates first class.

Air Raid Warning System Is Formed In North Carolina

Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 2 (U.P.).—Gov. Clyde R. Hoey tonight announced formation of an "aircraft warning net" of 300 observation posts along the Atlantic Coast manned by volunteer civilian and Army observers as a test of new national defense plans.

Purpose of the net will be to observe the approach of enemy airplanes and to report promptly to the defense commander at Fort Bragg, N. C., the strength, types of planes, altitude, speed and direction of an attacking air force, the Governor said.

Boy Who Took Blame Stricken At Death Trial

Youth Serving a Life Term Accuses Ex-Deputy of Killing Doctor.

By the Associated Press.

South Paris, Me., Aug. 2.—Paul (Buddy) Dwyer, 19, serving a life sentence for the murder of a country doctor, was stricken suddenly with a stomach ailment late today as he was walking to the witness stand to accuse another man of the crime.

He whispered to his guard and strode from the stifingly-hot courtroom, past the man he was to name as the "real slayer"—former Deputy Sheriff Francis M. Carroll, 43, the father of the girl he once loved.

Court adjourned soon afterward. Dwyer's near-collapse climaxed the State's opening in the trial of Carroll for the murder of Dr. James G. Littlefield, veteran South Paris practitioner, the night of last October 13. Special Attorney General Ralph M. Ingalls had told the jury a strange story of fear, love, passion and shame.

Dwyer pleaded guilty to the murder last December 2 and accepted the sentence of life imprisonment. Ingalls feared that Carroll would kill him as he did Dr. Littlefield, who threatened to expose Carroll's violation of his own daughter.

Ingalls told of the high school romance of Dwyer and Carroll's pretty daughter, Barbara, 17, a love so intimate that Dwyer allegedly berated himself for "not waiting." But Barbara told him, "that is not the first time that has occurred to me. Now you can understand why I hate my father."

She wrote Dwyer to this effect in a letter that Carroll tried later to get from Dwyer by trickery and threats, Ingalls said.

In desperation, Carroll finally accused Dwyer of being responsible for his daughter's pregnancy, but offered to "fix it up" if Dwyer would turn over the letters.

Ingalls said Dwyer confided in Dr. Littlefield and told him of Barbara's letter, as well as of Carroll's charges.

"I know the whole story, not only of your relations with Barbara, but with other young girls," Dr. Littlefield was quoted as telling Carroll. "You're not fit to live with decent people. You ought to be in State prison and I will see that you go there."

Smarting under the accusation, Carroll followed Dr. Littlefield upstairs and bludgeoned and strangled him, Ingalls said. Stuffing the body in the trunk of the doctor's own car, Carroll forced Dwyer to drive away with the grisly cargo. Three days later Dwyer was arested in North Arlington, N. J., still at the wheel of the car.

Of the principals in Ingalls' recital, only Carroll was in the courtroom. Dwyer was waiting in an anteroom and Barbara Carroll was at the family's South Paris cottage.

2 Deaths Bring D. C. Auto Toll To 55 for Year

Boy, 14, Lies in Street Half an Hour Waiting for an Ambulance.

A 14-year-old boy lay dying in the street yesterday, after being knocked from his soapbox scooter by a truck, while spectators telephoned police, Emergency Hospital and the District Commissioners nearly half an hour trying to get an ambulance.

He was Winslow Minor, colored, of 1822 D street northwest. Thomas R. Washington, colored, 37, of 1233 Second street southwest, driver of the truck, was held for the coroner.

Finally taken to Emergency Hospital in an Emergency ambulance, the lad was said to have suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries.

He was the fifth child killed in District traffic in the last two weeks.

John Linder, 78, of 304 Fourth street southeast, died last night at Emergency Hospital of injuries received July 23 when he was struck by an automobile at Fourteenth street and Maine avenue southwest. His death and that of the Minor boy brought this year's District traffic toll to 55 as compared with 62 at the same time in 1937.

Edward R. Brown, jr., 18, of 636 R street northeast, was seriously injured when the motorcycle he was riding was in collision with an automobile operated by Abraham Sussman, 28, of 829 Quincy street northwest, at New York avenue and Seventh street. Brown was admitted to Emergency Hospital for treatment of a possible skull fracture, brain concussion and lacerations of the right arm, right leg and body, while Sussman was charged with reckless driving.

Four children were slightly hurt in traffic and were returned home after treatment at hospitals. They were Chester Pohutsky, 4, of 504 Fourth street southeast; Hugh M. Martin, 2, of 232 F street northwest; Leon Anderson, 4420 Clay street northeast, and Joe Ruzzie, 6, of 217 K street northeast.

Inspector Faces Task of Removing Lost Dynamite

Richmond, Aug. 2 (AP).—Chief Mine Inspector C. P. Kelly went to Strasburg today on the "ticklish task" of removing dynamite from three holes 85 feet deep and 8 inches in diameter, where the explosive has lain inert in a lime quarry for 26 years.

There were five such holes in 1912 that lighted fuses failed to reach and were left untouched. In 1923 two of them went off, probably from detonations in nearby quarries, and killed five men. Now operations are so close again that the loaded holes constitute a hazard to workers.

Pa. Legislature Begins Earle Graft Inquiry

Committee to Ask Judge to Release Evidence He Holds for Jury.

By the Associated Press.

Harrisburg, August 2.—A special Pennsylvania legislative committee began tonight its own inquiry into campaign charges against Gov. Earle and 13 associates and decided to ask Judge Paul N. Schaeffer to release evidence he ordered impounded for a grand jury investigation.

Herbert Cohen, Democratic floor leader in the House and chairman of a committee of five Democrats and two Republicans appointed to handle the Legislature's investigation, said he would petition the court to vacate its order.

The grand jury investigation is scheduled to start Monday.

To Confer With Judge.

"The committee further empowered me to confer with Judge Schaeffer so that the relative rights of both branches of the Government may be determined," Cohen said.

The committee, created by a special session of the Legislature to "bring into the open" any evidence behind the charges aimed at Gov. Earle and other State officials and party leaders, will begin its public hearings some time this wek, Cohen said.

Asked what the committee intended to do if Judge Schaeffer decided not to set aside his impounding order, Cohen said he believed it would mean an appeal to a higher court.

Constitutionality Unsettled.

When Judge Schaeffer ordered the grand jury evidence locked up yesterday he also denied the Legislature's right to suspend the court inquiry as the administration sought to do by passing new laws last week.

District Attorney Carl B. Shelley also challenged the constitutionality of the legislation but the judge did not rule immediately on that point.

Administration leaders have said the special session probably would be recessed for a month while the special committee is conducting its hearings on the charges that the Governor and his associates were guilty of blackmail, extortion and coercion for political purposes.

Circuit Court Calls I-Company Union Valid as Any Other

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals held yesterday, in invalidating an order of the National Labor Relations Board, that a union "limited to employes of a single employer is as legal as any other."

It ruled against a Labor Board finding that the Ballston-Stillwater Knitting Co., Inc., of Ballston Spa and Stillwater, N. Y., had discriminated against the C. I. O.'s textile workers. organizing committee in favor of the employes welfare and protective association.

"This is not the case," said the court, "of a company union whose formation was initiated by the employer to combat an outside union. The plan for an inside union was apparently the spontaneous reaction of a group of employes who circulated their own petition, got up their own meetings, engaged their own attorneys to draft the constitutions and by-laws and paid their expenses without suggestion or help by the petitioners (the company)."

Two Iowa Sailors End World Trip

Mobile, Ala., Aug. 2 (AP).—Two corn belt sailors brought their 45-foot yacht into harbor amid the cheers of relatives yesterday, completing a three-year, 'round-the-world cruise.

Capt. Ray Kauffman, 32, and Gerry Mefferd, 27, received an official welcome from the City of Mobile as well as from a delegation of eight kinsmen from Des Moines, home of the voyagers.

Mrs. de Sibour, 63, Expires of Heart Attack

Rites This Morning; Mass at St. Mathews; Burial in Rock Creek.

Mrs. Margaret Claggett de Sibour, socially prominent, lifelong resident of Washington and wife of a leading architect, died Monday night of a heart attack at her home, 3230 N street northwest. She was 63 years old and had been in ill health several years.

Mrs. de Sibour was the former Margaret Marie Claggett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Claggett. She was listed in the Social Register.

Known as the Vicountess de Sibour, she had married Mr. Jules Henri de Sibour, member of a titled French family in 1898. He was graduated from Yale University and completed his architectural studies in France. He has designed many buildings here and in New York.

Surviving are her husband, three sons, Henri L. J., J. Blaine, and Jean Raymond de Sibour, and a sister, Mrs. George Howard, of New York City.

Funeral services will be held at the W. W. Chambers parlors, 1400 Chapin street northwest, at 9:30 a. m. today. Mass will be said at St. Matthews Catholic Church at 10 a. m. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Irish Melodrama to Be Sylvan Offering

The Langley Lambs Club will present the Irish melodrama, "Colleen Bawn," by Dion Bouccicault, at 8 p. m. Tuesday, August 9, at the Sylvan Theater in the Monument Grounds on the eighth summer festival program.

The Washington Gaslight Co. Employes' Band will play a half-hour concert conducted by Otto Siebeneichen. Incidental numbers will be provided by the Estelle Wentworth Opera Group.

G. O. P. Plans Constitution Day Dinner

D. C. Event on Sept. 17 to Be Part of National Observance.

Republicans of Washington will hold a dinner September 17 at the Willard Hotel as part of a Nationwide observance of Constitution Day.

"Events of the past two years," the announcement said, "make it clear that many persons high up in the present Administration have little or no regard for our American Constitution. They are willing to throw the record of 150 years out the window and are rapidly turning away from the things which have made us great. We Republicans, therefore, feel that this is an opportune time for all who believe in our American system of government, regardless of their party affiliation, to join together in reaffirming their faith."

Clyde Garrett has been appointed Constitution Day committee chairman by James C. Wilkes, chairman of the Republican State Committee in the District. Honorary chairmen will be Edward F. Colladay, Virginia White Speel, James C. Wilkes, Mme. Cantacuzene and George L. Hart.

Other committee members are Joseph C. McGarraghy, John W. Haines, James C. Wilkes, William H. Mondell, Mrs. Frank W. Mondell, Edgar C. Snyder, Mrs. Cooper B. Rhodes, Richard H. Sanger, Charles F. Crane, Edwin C. Graham and Joshua Evans, jr.

Mrs. Lansburgh's Rites to Be Held Tomorrow at 10

Funeral services for Mrs. Hannah Lansburgh, widow of one of the founders of Lansburgh & Brother Department Store, and herself one of the vice presidents of the concern, will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. at the home of her son, Mark Lansburgh, 3111 Idaho avenue. Burial will be in Washington Hebrew Congregation Cemetery.

Until her illness, Mrs. Lansburgh, who died Monday, was prominent in charitable work.

Mrs. Lansburgh, who lived at the Shoreham Hotel, leaves her son and three daughters, Mrs. Samuel T. Schwartz, Mrs. Beatrice L. Weinberg, and Mrs. Myer Cohn. She also leaves three sisters and nine grandchildren.

Officiating at the rites will be Rabbi Abram Simon, pastor of Washington Hebrew Congregation, and Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld.

Pallbearers will be Sidney Lansburgh, Harold Singer, Milton Schlesinger, Abe Cohn, Horace Pack and William Wolf.

Calvert Aerial Maps Completed

Prince Frederick, Md., Aug. 2 (AP). Completion of aerial mapping of Calvert County by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration was announced today by County Agent John B. Morsell.

Sixty-five maps have been made by aerial photographs from a height of 13,000 feet. They show the main highways and farms, represented by tiny irregular patches of a lighter color among dark patches of uncultivated soil and woodland.

The maps will be used by county supervisors selected to check the AAA farm program.

D. C. Waterfront Rebuilding Starts

Development of the Washington waterfront began yesterday as the Diamond Construction Co. started pile-driving for construction of yacht basin No. 1 at the municipal fish wharf on Maine avenue southwest.

Under the contract, the builder has 320 days to complete the first unit in the program. The Army engineers have allotted $285,000 for the operations now in progress and the District has contributed $64,000. The work started yesterday will be restricted to construction of the eastern halves of yacht basins 1 and 2 and probably will be finished by spring.

Maurice Splain, Ex-U. S. Marshal, Dies at Age of 75

Maurice Splain, 75, prewar Washington newspaper correspondent, died late Monday in Washington Sanitarium, at Takoma Park, after an illness of two weeks.

Close friend of President Wilson, Mr. Splain wrote for the Pittsburgh Post and the Philadelphia Record before the election of Mr. Wilson.

When Mr. Wilson became President, Mr. Splain was appointed U. S. marshal for the District. He retained this post for eight years.

FLUSH KIDNEYS OF EXCESS ACID POISONS AND WASTE MATTER

Stop Getting Up Nights—Be Happier—Healthier—Live a Longer Life

That dragged out feeling may mean that your kidneys are inactive and distressed—persistent backache, nervousness and dizzy spells may mean the same thing.

Good active kidneys freeing the body from excess acid and poisons are what we all should strive to attain and when kidneys and bladder are distressed—

A good safe effective diuretic such as GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules is called for—so if you have to get up often at night—if passage is scanty or difficult and smarting or burning is in evidence—if you have shifting pains or leg twinges or puffy eyes it may help your health if you pay attention to your kidneys.

GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules is a grand diuretic—for scores of years it has been used by people all over America and in other countries—it can't harm you.

But be sure—very sure—to get GOLD MEDAL—right from Haarlem in Holland—a box costs but 35 cents—refuse substitutes. Adv.

CHEVROLET
"The Six Supreme"
LEADS THE FIELD IN SALES
BECAUSE IT LEADS IN VALUE

CHEVROLET

In a year of greater motor car values . . . a year when people are demanding the most for their money in everything they buy . . . people are giving Chevrolet clear-cut leadership over all other low-priced cars and trucks, and, in fact, over the entire automobile industry.

Value is always the victor, and, again in 1938, value is enabling Chevrolet—The Six Supreme—to win nationwide supremacy in automobile sales!

The latest official new car registration figures, compiled by R. L. Polk & Company, show that Chevrolet is leading all other makes of cars, regardless ot type, size or price, by tens of thousands of deliveries.

For this we have to thank our millions of Chevrolet friends who have been quick to recognize the outstanding quality and outstanding dollar-value of this smarter, newer, more modern low-priced car.

These men and women have checked all makes of cars and all phases of car value—including style, performance, comfort, safety—and they are declaring in favor of the new 1938 Chevrolet by a decisive majority.

May we take this opportunity to thank Chevrolet owners and prospective owners most sincerely for their friendship, and may we make the following suggestion to you:

Buy where the majority of people are buying. . . . Visit your nearest Chevrolet dealer and invest in this most popular of all motor cars. . . . Choose a new 1938 Chevrolet—The Six Supreme!

Chinese Breach Yangtze Dikes To Halt Enemy

Japanese Seize Control of Hankow Highway as Foe Starts Flood.

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai (Wednesday), August 3.—Chinese were reported today to have cut dikes of the mighty Yangtze River to halt the steady advance of Japanese against Hankow, China's provisional capital.

Japanese said a large area of farm land was flooded when Chinese broke the river's retaining walls 125 miles downstream from Hankow.

The break was 100 miles above Kiukiang, important river point. Twenty-five miles north of Kiukiang, Japanese reported entering Hwangmei "virtually without opposition" to obtain control of the highway to Hankow.

In severing Yangtze dikes, Chinese repeated the strategy by which they halted the Japanese attack on Chengchow, railway junction 300 miles north of Hankow. Japanese had planned to use Chengchow as the base for a drive southward along the Peiping-Hankow Railway.

While Japanese Yangtze River forces pressed their drive deeper into the interior, swift raids of Chinese guerrillas menanced effective Japanese control of conquered territory. Roving bands kept Japanese from extending their sway to more than main communication lines and large cities.

The Japanese army, in what was termed a tacit recognition of the guerrilla menace, announced Japanese in the last two days had carried out devastating attacks against Chinese mobile units in the area about Shanghai. Japanese estimated 500 Chinese were killed in these engagements.

Chinese denied Japanese reports of gains along the Yangtze.

French Scientists Report Evidences Of Element No. 93

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Paris, Aug. 2.—Two French chemists, H. Hulubei and Mlle. Yvette Cauchois, believe they have proved the existence of a ninety-third element in the atomic scale, Jean Perrin, president of the French Academy of Science, announced today. The element, which they have called transuranium, is radio-active like uranium.

Using a spectroscope, the chemists distinguished four rays which they believe must belong to transuranium. They found it associated with pitchblend.

Perrin said the French chemists were not prepared to announce their results until they received confirmation from other laboratories.

Infinitesimal quantities of an element as high in the atomic scale as transuranium were produced by artificial radio-activity by the Italian physicist Enrico Fermi four years ago, Perrin said, but in the present case it would be in natural and stable form and production in appreciable quantities could be hoped for.

There are 92 known chemical elements, the fundamental substances of which all matter is composed. All except two have been isolated in pure form.

Scientists have held frequently that there may not be more than 92 elements anywhere in creation. Anything heavier, it has been suggested, would not be stable enough to hold together.

Capital Committee Talking With 'Gone Again' Corrigan

The committee which is in charge of the reception for Douglas Corrigan, transatlantic flier, in Washington is shown making a shore-to-ship call to Corrigan yesterday, extending the invitation. Commissioner Melvin Hazen talks while (left to right) Harry Somerville, Fairfax Naulty, E. G. Bliss and James Conlon listen in.

phone Co., was relayed to New York and thence to a sending station in New Jersey. Contact with the ship was established in five minutes, but it took considerably longer for ship officials to find "Gone Again" and hurry him to the telephone.

Bliss spoke first to Corrigan, then handed the receiver to Fairfax Naulty, of the Pioneer Airmen, secretary of the reception committee. After reminding the flier of the cabled invitation he had sent to Dublin, Naulty introduced Hazen as "the governor of the District of Columbia," apparently fearing the Westerner might not be familiar with the term "commissioner."

Good Time Promised.

"Governor" Hazen's conversation went as follows: "Hello, Mr. Corrigan . . . hello! hello! I'm calling from Washington, D. C., the Capital of the United States, on behalf of the governors of the District of Columbia. We extend to you a very cordial invitation for Monday. There'll be a nice reception committee waiting for you and we'll show you a good time."

After the change in date had been agreed on, Commissioner Hazen promised Corrigan that "we'll visit the Secretary of State, the Secretary of Commerce and the Governors of the District of Columbia." "That's fine!" Corrigan replied, according to Hazen. "I'll be very happy to come."

Next speaker was James Conlon, president of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and a prominent member of the reception committee. Conlon repeated the invitation. Afterwards he quoted Corrigan as telling him, "That's great!" It's great to get a welcome like that."

Due in New York Today.

One portion of the afternoon's conversation never reached the "mistake" flier. After the connection had been broken, Commissioner Hazen picked up the telephone to pose for photographers. As bulbs flashed and shutters clicked, the Commissioner inquired of the instrument, "Do you know which way you're going?"

Crook Who Didn't Believe in Signs Loots Empty Safe

A thief who didn't believe in signs blew a safe at the Daniel Hurson Cut Stone Co., Eighth and Franklin streets northeast, early yesterday and went away empty-handed. He ignored a conspicuous sign on the door which said:

"To whom it may concern: There is no money in this safe, only some papers of no value to anyone. Please do not break open."

The sign, the yeggman found, told the exact truth. Hurson posted the notice some time ago, after another safe cracker had tried to rob him. He figured it would save trouble for future thieves as well as repair expense for himself.

N. Y. Stowaway, 13, Caught on 4th Trip

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—Thirteen-year-old Bobby Stap sailed the Caribbean tonight toward a free ride record equaling the distance around the world.

The seagoing hitch-hiker was found aboard the Grace Line's 16-day cruise ship Santa Elena when the vessel put in at Curacao, Dutch West Indies, his fourth stowaway junket in recent months. The ship left here last Thursday.

Here's his record:

Two transatlantic round trips, 13,768 miles; voyage to Savannah and return, 1,400 miles; latest 16-day cruise, 5,000 miles. He's due home August 15.

town of Kojo. Casualties were not given.

Soviet Victory Ridiculed.

The Japanese claimed their forces were holding Changkufeng, which they seized over the week-end from Russians who occupied it last week. Both the war and foreign offices ridiculed Moscow's assertions that Soviet forces had reoccupied Changkufeng.

The hill is in a border area where Japan and Russia have been quarreling intermittently ever since the Japanese army created Manchukuo after expelling the Chinese from the region seven years ago. In this sector the borders of Japan's Korean and Manchukuo protectorates adjoin the Soviet Yssuri province.

Japanese said their casualties in the Changkufeng battle were three officers and 27 soldiers killed, and 67 soldiers wounded.

Moscow estimated Japanese casualties at more than 400.

Russian casualties were estimated at 250, including 70 dead left on the battlefield when the Japanese captured the hill.

The war and foreign offices in Tokyo again remained open all night. War Minister Gen. Seishiro Itagaki sat for hours at the end of a direct telephone line from Yuki. He ordered his commanders in the field to do all possible to avoid spread of the conflict.

Diplomats in Tokyo "hoped" that the situation could be localized but admitted that it was "extremely critical." It was pointed out that a formal declaration of war by either Japan or Russia might automatically bring into play alleged secret annexes to the joint declaration of Japan, Germany and Italy against the Russian communists and thus precipitate a "new world war."

U. S. Ambassador Joseph C. Grew was following the situation closely but had received no special instructions from the State Department, to which he was reporting frequently.

Foreign Minister Gen. K. Ugaki was said to be "perplexed" at Russia's refusal to consider negotiations and the refusal of the Soviet government to reply to protests made to the Russian foreign office in Moscow and the Soviet consul general in Harbin.

The foreign office spokesman said at midnight that there was nothing new from Ambassador Mamoru Shigemitsu in Moscow but that efforts to get an answer from Russian Foreign Minister Maxim Litvinov to Japan's offer for a peaceful settlement were continuing.

"The Soviets must decide whether we shall have war or peace," he said.

Meanwhile, the Kremlin was waiting for Japan's reply to a strongly worded protest warning Japan of the "gravest consequences" of the action of Japanese-Manchukuo troops who were said here to have violated Soviet territory.

U. S. Watching the Soviet Clash.

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Hull said yesterday the State Department was observing with special interest reports of the Russo-Japanese border clash. He said the department's confidential reports shed little light on whether a major conict was imminent.

Italy Criticizes Japan.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Rome, Aug. 2.—Developments of the Russo-Japanese conflict are being watched here with the closest attention. It was believed that the situation would not call for Italy and Germany to help Japan, under the terms of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo pact, signed last November.

A writer in the "Critica Fascista" said "the situation of the Japanese, which was good and full of promise in mid-December, is rapidly deteriorating."

Dewey Names 3 Officials in Bribe Charge

more than three public officials were named by the district attorney. He said he had no other comment to make.

Davis Pleads Guilty.

But Joseph Shalleck, attorney for Hines, and his campaign manager for the last 30 years, received the news belligerently. Informed of the fact that the address of his office, 1450 Broadway, was listed in the bill of particulars as one of the places where Hines conspired with the late Dutch Schultz and his mob to control New York City's policy racket, the attorney denied that any such thing was intended by the bill.

Meanwhile, J. Richard ("Dixie") Davis, attorney for Schultz and the alleged heir to his profitable rackets, pleaded guilty to his indictment as co-conspirator with Hines at a 20-minute hearing before Justice Ferdinand Pecora. He was remanded into the custody of the district attorney until the day of trial, when he will turn State's evidence against the Tammany leader and his seven other co-defendants, of whom all but one, Martin Weintraub, a lawyer, have pleaded guilty, are missing, or are dead.

Davis came into court guarded by Sergt. William Grafnecker and two detectives from the district attorney's office. He was accompanied by Charles P. Grimes, assistant district attorney, who has been gathering and handling the Hines case for Dewey. Davis's face was white and he was frightened when he appeared in court. The color slowly returned to his face as he sat around, kidding with the guards, until the court disposed of a magazine fraud case.

Answers Quickly.

When the court clerk read to him the crimes he is charged with and asked how he preferred to plead, Davis answered quickly: "Guilty."

Grimes reminded the court that when his prisoner was released from prison and from $75,000 bail last Saturday, the justice had remanded him into the custody of the district attorney because it was feared Davis' life would be taken if he remained in any city prison. The assistant district attorney asked that this situation be continued.

The court, however, was disposed to argue the matter. It was obvious the judge was perturbed over the license granted to Davis in permitting him to visit Rose Ricker (Hope Dare), the actress he was captured with last February in Philadelphia, while on visits to the doctor, authorized by the court, to have the prisoner's tonsils treated.

"I think," observed the court dryly, "that the statement, 'fear of life,' casts unjust reflection on the official authorities of our prison. I am unwilling to see that reflection cast. The statement that he is in fear of his life has come with a suddeness that is startling."

Capone Stabbing Bared.

Grimes regretted having to cast aspersions at local prison officials in reminding the court that it was common knowledge that inmates were often stabbed and killed in jail. Al Capone, he revealed, had been stabbed three times this year in Alcatraz.

While the two were debating, Davis looked distressed.

"The fact remains," said the justice, "that this defendant was permitted to enjoy certain indulgences under orders I signed to permit him to go to a doctor. Nothing has been done to ascertain why the orders of this court were violated on those occasions. If something is not done along those lines this court will undertake to inquire into the matter."

Although Davis gave his pedigree to the court in a low voice, it was overheard that he described himself as 33 years old, of Rumanian descent, that his parents were born in England, and that his address was 898 West End avenue.

He was hustled out of court to an unrevealed destination in the country to await trial, less than two weeks away.

The address given by Davis was only one of 11 listed by Dewey in the bill of particulars naming the allegedly bribed officials and outlining the charges against Hines in somewhat greater detail than formerly.

call for eventual discharge of the cargoes in English or continental ports, but added, "it is probable that the real destination of these vessels is German."

Several tankers, it said, have been chartered for periods of six months to two years. One has been engaged for ten years.

The bureau said chartering had not been concluded on the London market as is generally the custom, but the contracts for these ships flying various European flags have been signed directly with the owners.

Ickes' Aide Is Named To Crown Leaf Queen

South Boston, Va., Aug. 2 (AP).—Officials of the fourth annual National Tobacco Festival here September 8 and 9 said today that arrangements for the event are rapidly being completed and that Oscar Littleton Chapman, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, had been selected to crown Senorita Castillo Najera as Regina Tobacco IV.

The crowning of Senorita Najera, daughter of the Mexican Ambassador to the United States, will precede the staging of the pageant-masque depicting the story of tobacco.

2 Hurt as Motorcycle Crashes Trailer-Truck

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Aug. 2.—Badly injured, Beulah Rudolph, 34, of Winchester, and Gleen Bowman, 22, of Harrisonburg, Va., are at Memorial Hospital after their motorcycle crashed into a trailer truck driven by Carden H. Kelly, 30, of McMinnville, Tenn.

Kelly has been released on bond of $500 pending outcome of the victims' injuries.

Smith

night, paid his respects to the "outsiders" who had helped Dodd in the campaign. These included Secretary of Interior Ickes, who had accused Smith of trying to "muscle in" on credit for PWA projects in the Eighth District, and who was told in turn that he had "muscled in" on the Democratic Party and was trying to destroy it.

Scores "Outsiders."

"The campaign," Smith said, "has been waged around the issue of whether the member of Congress from this district should follow the dictates of his constituents or yield his convictions to the will of others.

"As a part of this issue the people of this District have been called upon to decide whether they would elect their own Congressman or be influenced by pressure and propaganda from outside of our Commonwealth.

"You have given the answer in no uncertain terms. That answer is that you expect your Congressman to exercise some independence of judgment, and that you propose to elect him yourselves without outside interference."

Dodd had said he would fight for the Roosevelt program "at all times." Smith had said he refused to be a 100 per centsr, a "blindfolded automaton."

Parade Is Held.

The victory of Smith was celebrated last night by an old-fashioned political parade in Alexandria. The celebrants marched up and down streets that once knew the tread of George Washington, shouting and waving their flambeaux.

In the Dodd headquarters on North Alfred street, meantime, there was talk of 1940.

"I have no excuse to offer for my defeat," Dodd said in the Washington Post-WJSV broadcast. "With only a courageous little band of followers who believed in a cause, I feel we made a splendid showing. In some districts we upset the organization and that is a healthy sign.

"We will hold together. We will organize ourselves better with time. My cause cannot be defeated. Liberalism will march back to its birthplace, Virginia. In 1940 we will win our battle. Our issue has been made clear; for it we have just begun to fight."

Dodd, as was expected, made his best race in Alexandria and Arlington County, whose populations in recent years have been swelled by an influx of newcomers, many of them ardent New Dealers. The Alexandria vote also reflected a pro-Dodd labor vote.

The Alexandria vote was Smith, 3,100; Dodd, 1,435.

The Arlington County vote was Smith, 3,649; Dodd, 1,518.

Smith's strength gained with distance from Washington. Fauquier County, in Virginia's finest horse country, gave him roughly 7 to 1 over his opponent, Dodd; Culpeper offered him 5 to 1; Albemarle almost 4 to 1; Prince William, 4 to 1, and this same margin was recorded in Loudoun. Smith gained barely over a 2 to 1 victory in Alexandria. His margin was roughly 2½ to 1 in Arlington, and 3 to 1 in Fairfax, which borders on the National Capital.

The vote in the Second District, like that in the Eighth, was unusually heavy.

Hamilton, who unseated Darden two years ago as a New Deal candidate, had told the voters this time that he was "a stanch supporter of the President." Darden described himself as an "independent candidate." Shafer, who claimed he originated the soldiers' bonus, characterized both Hamilton and Darden as "economic royalists."

The other seven Virginia Congressmen are unopposed for renomination.

Italian Sees Jews Out Of State Jobs, Not Nation

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Rome, Aug. 2.—Curbing of the fanatical Jew-baiting wing of the Italian Fascist Party was indicated today in a statement by Roberto Farinacci, extremist exponent of anti-Semitic ideas, that Jews will be allowed to remain in the Italian nation but not in the Italian state.

This forecast of a campaign to oust Jews from state jobs without exiling them from Italy was published in the newspaper Regime Fascista.

Roosevelt Signs Bird Refuge Bills In Tropic Retreat

Aboard U. S. S. Houston, Cocos Island, Costa Rica, Aug. 2 (AP).—In the lush tropcal setting of this island President Roosevelt signed today bills for bird refuges back home and approved routine recommendations which reached him from Washington.

The President gave up his bouts with sharks and sailfish for a day when Rear Admiral Vernou arrived from Panama with a pouch full of official documents. He converted a between-decks cabin on the Houston into a sea-going executive office. But the work period was brief. He signed orders establishing migratory bird refuges at Fort Tyler, N. Y., and West Sister Island, Ohio.

By lunch time the President was ready to continue his vacation. With officers of the Houston and members of his party he picnicked on the palm-shaded sands.

third of Kentucky and had indications that conditions revealed existed in the rest of the State.

The committee statement did not mention either Barkley or Chandler by name. However, Federal employes are not under Chandler domination by any means and no pressure to contribute to his campaign funds could have been exerted on them.

On the other hand, State employes whom the committee said had been required to contribute to the campaign of "another candidate" work under State appointments, though paid in part from Federal funds.

In Washington, Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins insisted that the committee's charge of efforts to control the relief vote was aimed at "persons outside the WPA who sought to get relief workers to vote for one candidate or the other." He said the criticism was not directed at anyone in the WPA organization.

Sheppard replied that the committee's comment was not aimed at Hopkins or any other Washington officials of WPA but "may or may not include WPA officials in Kentucky."

Arkansas to Be Next.

Other action taken by the Sheppard committee yesterday included:

Decided to send an investigator to Arkansas, where Representative McClellan, opposing Senator Caraway for the Democratic Senate nomination, has made charges of irregular activity.

Received a progress report on investigation of charges that Federal road funds were missued on behalf of Representative Lucas in the Illinois senatorial primary, which Lucas won, but decided the facts developed to date do not warrant committee action.

Asked the Communications Commission to investigate allegations that a Federal official had sought to put a radio "gag" on some candidates in the heated Tennessee Senate race.

Referred to investigators in Tennessee a request for help in determining who beat up a Senate candidate, Edward W. Carmack, so badly that he still is in a hospital had has had to quit the race.

Can't Recall Attack.

The latter charge was made by eight Tennessee residents, including two doctors, in a telegram from Murfreesboro, reading:

"Respectfully suggest that your committee . . . assist in efforts to solve attack made upon Edward W. Carmack, a candidate for Democratic nomination to Senate, after repeated threats to do him harm unless he retired from race. He cannot recall how or by whom he was attacked July 14, leaving him partially paralyzed and temporarily injured mentally, forcing him from race."

The committee already has charged that "every scheme and questionable device" to control the vote in Tennessee apparently was "in full swing."

Kentucky Pay Assessed.

There Senator Berry, Democrat, backed by Gov. Gordon Browning, is opposed for renomination by Tom Stewart, candidate of "Boss" Ed Crump, of Memphis, and Senator McKellar. The primary election is to be held tomorrow.

Berry is to make the final speech of his campaign at 9 o'clock (E. S. T.) tonight over Station WMS, Nashville, 650 kc.

In the Kentucky fight, Senator Sheppard said that "fairly large" amounts had been taken from Federal and State employes for campaign funds, though the exactions did not appear to be based on any stated percentage of salaries.

When asked whether there had been a threat to cut off relief from those failing to vote as requested, he refused to go into details of the investigator's report on the ground it might hamper further investigation.

which closed the hearings in Jasper County." It said:

Nevertheless, the agency said, it was prepared to "accommodate itself" to the situation in the interest of speedy performance of its duties "and the avoidance of all unnecessary conflict with military authority."

"The board recognizes that the Governor of a State has a broad, although not an unlimited, discretion to determine the existence of an emergency which warrants the declaration of martial law. Even were it conceded that the exigencies of the situation at Newton were such as to require the presence of troops to preserve law and order, the board could not acquiesce in the use of martial law to suspend those civil rights which are guaranteed to employes by the national labor relations act."

Won't Surrender "Sovereignty."

Then it added:

"Should, however, the Governor take the position that the addendum to his order making it Statewide in effect must be road literally, the board sees no alternative, in the light of its obligations, but to proceed with the hearings under the authority of the national power which it exercises. Any other course would be a subordination of the national to the State authorities in matters affecting national sovereignty and of the civil to the military authorities in times of peace. Both are abhorrent to American institutions. Both have been held improper and illegal by our highest courts."

It cited the Supreme Court ruling in the case of Sterling v. Constantine, 287 U. S. 378, 1932, saying "the Supreme Court of the United States upheld an injunction by a Federal district court restraining former Gov. Sterling of Texas from enforcing military orders, under a proclamation of martial law, restricting the production of oil in several oil-producing counties.

Cites Hughes Opinion.

"Mr. Chief Justice Hughes, speaking for a unanimous court, held that the courts could re-examine and pass upon the situation of exigency which the Governor claimed to exist, saying as to the claim of power made on behalf of the Governor: 'Under our system of government, such a conclusion is obviously untenable. There is no such avenue of escape from the paramount authority of the Federal Constitution.'

"And it quoted from Ex Parte Milligan, 4 Wall 2, 124 (1866)—the famous case which held that even under the exigency of the Civil War, the civil rights of the non-military forces could not be suspended—that otherwise 'republican government is a failure, and there is an end of liberty regulated by law. Martial law established on such a basis destroys every guarantee of the Constitution, and effectually renders the military independent of and superior to the civil power. . . . Civil liberty and this kind of martial law cannot endure together; the antagonism is irreconcilable; and, in the conflict, one or the other must perish.'"

Maytag Parley Hits Snag.

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 2 (AP).—One of the major conferences in the secret Maytag strike negotiations indicated here tonight that obstacles had arisen to block the achievement of peace in the 12-weeks old washing machine factory labor deadlock at Newton, Iowa.

The conferee, who would not be quoted by name, said he did not believe an accord between the company and the Maytag C. I. O. union was "imminent."

Participating with the opposing parties in the conference in a downtown hotel suite here are Gov. Nelson G. Kraschel, Iowa Attorney General John H. Mitchell, Lieut. Gov. John Valentine, and Maj. Gen. Matt A. Tinley, commanding officer of the Newton martial law area.

Board Seeks Ward Renewal At Providence

Hospital Directors Use of Idle Building to Relieve Crowded Dispensary.

Still hopeful that means can be found to rehabilitate the structure, the board of directors of Providence Hospital yesterday called attention to the abandoned isolation ward building, which is standing idle while congestion in the hospital's basement dispensary becomes worse daily.

Lacking funds necessary to recondition the three-story brick building which the District used for diphtheria cases until 1931, the hospital would like to see a work relief project launched to make it usable.

Sister Rosa, superintendent of Providence, yesterday made public the annual report, showing that 12,952 men, women and children made 57,751 visits to the basement dispensary during the year ended July 31.

Restoration Cost $30,000.

A full time dental interne treated 5,301 patients.

"All this work is being done in the crowded basement of the hospital," the report said. "The vacant isolation building would make an ideal dispensary for the indigent but funds are not available to put the building in proper condition."

It is estimated that the restoration could be accomplished at a cost of $30,000. Sister Rosa and members of the medical staff said no money would have to be spent for equipment or added personnel.

"Present conditions in the basement dispensary are almost unbearable," said a member of the visiting physicians' staff. "Crowding of patients in the halls, the pipes that run through treatment rooms, the pitiful lack of space—all contribute to the making of a very bad situation."

"Can't Work in Hole."

"Doctors can't do good work in a hole. That's all it is."

Another physician cited the unsanitary conditions which prevail, especially in the summer. "It's a toss-up who suffer most, patients or personnel, he declared.

"One doctor alone had 75 patients in his clinic today," he said. "They are herded together in small rooms or in the basement corridor, enhancing the chances of disease transmission."

"We wish to take this occasion," the directors said, "to express our appreciation to the Community Chest for assistance given the hospital in caring for poor patients. Also, we wish to thank the doctors of of the hospital and dispensary staffs for their untiring devotion and attention to the patients in our wards and dispensary."

PWA to Rescind Grants to Cities Delaying Action

Boston Loses $1,125,000 Allotment; 'Weeding Out' Is Started.

The Public Works Administration, rescinding a $1,125,000 grant approved for Boston, began "weeding out" inactive applications yesterday. At the same time it approved 175 additional non-Federal projects and brought total authorized construction since June 22 to $1,081,484,930.

Boston's allotment, to aid in construction of a new city hall, was revoked because the city failed to accept funds for which it had applied, officials said.

They said they had begun a "weeding out of municipalities which fail to accept offers within a reasonable time."

The list of such cities whose applications are inactive in the sense that there has been little or no interest shown in using allotted money, it was said, might run as high as 50.

"Where municipalities fail to act," said Acting Administrator Harold A. Gray, "the funds will be rescinded and will be reallocated to other projects which can meet the deadline requiring that applications be filed by September 30; construction started by January 1, 1939, and completed by July 1940."

Gray instructed all PWA regional directors that undue delay on the part of any applicant cannot be allowed. Hundreds of applications for funds are piling up, he said, and funds will be kept flowing.

The projects approved yesterday, estimated to cost $34,567,805, carried loans of $201,000 and grants of $15,555,009.

Former Senator Oddie Seeks McCarran Seat

Reno, Nev., Aug. 2 (AP).—Tasker Lowndes Oddie, who served Nevada as United States Senator from 1921 to 1933 and as Governor from 1910 to 1914, announced today he will seek the Republican Senate nomination in the September 6 primary. Oddie was defeated for re-election six years ago by Senator McCarran (Democrat).

McCarran is a candidate for re-election. He has two opponents in the Democratic primary, Albert Hilliard, Reno attorney, and Dr. John Worden, Carson City physician and secretary of the State board of health. Oddie thus far is the only Republican to announce.

cratic primary scrap.

Attracted by the battle for power between Stark and Pendergast over a relatively minor Supreme Court judgeship, Republicans in many sections of the State ignored their own party ballots to make their mark on the Democratic side.

Senator Clark, a leader of the fight against the court plan and the Government reorganization bill, was expected to benefit from the Republican vote.

There were pronounced demands for Democratic ballots in Kansas City's South Side, where Republicans are strongest, and in normally Republican wards in St. Louis.

Pendergast Backed Truman.

"Boss" Pendergast backed Billings with the full strength of his Kansas City organization, which helped make an obscure judge, Guy B. Park, Governor in 1932, and helped elect another, Harry S. Truman, as United States Senator in 1934. Stark was chosen Governor with Pendergast's assistance two years ago.

Against Pendergast's power, Stark marshaled his vast army of State employes and Dickmann's St. Louis administration. Political observers also believed the heavy Republican vote went into the Douglas column.

Dewey Short Unopposed.

Clark's candidacy was the one place where the warring Stark-Dickmann and Pendergast factions found common ground. The Senator's supporters had hoped for an overwhelming vote to enhance his stature as Presidential material in 1940.

Two of his opponents, Meredith and Davis, campaigned as avowed 100 per cent New Dealers, although without a friendly gesture from President Roosevelt.

All 13 of the State's Congressmen were up for renomination. Dewey Short, the lone Republican, and five of the Democrats had no primary opposition.

RFC Chief to Use Foreign Liner to Travel to Europe

Another American official is going to Europe, using foreign ship.

Jesse Jones, RFC chairman, said yesterday he would leave today on what he smilingly called the "American liner Normandie," and will return on "that other American ship, the Queen Mary."

There has been some resentment in Maritime Commission circles over the use of foreign liners by American officials while the United States is paying millions of dollars in operating subsidies to permit American lines to compete with foreign ones. Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, Secretary Harold Ickes, Chief Justice Hughes and others have used foreign vessels.

Customs Agent Wins Treasury Shooting Cup

299 Out of Possible 300 Takes Secretary's Prize at Abingdon.

L. E. Echols, an acting customs agent in New York City, yesterday won the Secretary's Cup shooting matches at the Treasury Department's tournament at the new range at Abingdon, Va.

His score was 299 out of a possible 300. Three marksmen tied for second with 297 each. In the shoot-off T. M. Chapman, of Seattle, won, second, E. L. Warden, a White House policeman, third, and Kenneth Wilson, of San Francisco, fourth.

R. G. Ford, a White House policeman, finished fifth; J. T. Berdner, of San Francisco, sixth; M. R. Rogers, of Seattle, seventh; R. P. Hallion, a White House policeman, eighth; J. O. Jamison, of Denver, ninth, and A. L. Meloche, of Phoenix, Ariz., tenth.

In the restricted matches yesterday morning, gold medal and first place was won by H. W. Arnold, Treasury guard. A silver medal went to J. Schooley, of Denver, for second place.

W. J. Osmer, New York customs agent, was third. Fourth went to H. W. Francis, a White House policeman; H. L. Schaetzel, Chicago secret service man, finished in fifth, while sixth went to L. D. Parker, of Denver, and seventh to W. O. Schroeder, of the Alcohol Tax Unit in Newark.

Eighth place went to R. J. Mansell, a Treasury guard. Ninth was won by E. A. Ross, of the Internal Revenue Department, and tenth was taken by Albert R. Vaughan, of Louisville, Ky.

Capt. Henry M. Dengler, of the Intelligence Unit of the Treasury Department, was executive officer of the tournament.

Heavy Demands Boom Gold Price On London Mart

London, Aug. 2 (AP).—Continued, unusually heavy demand for gold, attributed partly to uncertainty over the European political situation, shot its price on the London market today to the highest point since April 12, 1937.

The price touched 141 shillings, 8 pence (approximately $34.75) an ounce.

Continental hoarders bought £1,544,000 (about $7,720,000) worth.

In addition to the political situation, belief by some traders that recent American-French financial talks foreshadowed currency adjustment was said to have caused the rush to buy gold.

Quits Justice Dep't

RUSSELL HARDY

Russell Hardy Quits Post as Justice Aide

Victim of Unsolved Shooting in Alexandria to Start Private Law Practice.

The resignation of Russell Hardy, special assistant to the Attorney General, who recently directed Government antitrust proceedings against several automobile finance concerns at South Bend, Ind., was accepted last night by the Department of Justice.

Hardy, whose investigation of Nation-wide auto finance practices resulted in Federal grand jury indictments against several of the country's leading car manufacturers and affiliated companies, said he would enter private law practice here after September 30.

He submitted his resignation shortly after reporting to work yesterday and it was accepted before closing time by Thurman Arnold, Assistant Attorney General.

Hardy gained public attention last January when he was shot in the hip in Alexandria by a man police described as a panhandler. The attorney had stopped for a moment at the hotel, accompanied by Mrs. Elisabeth Buchanan, a clerk in his office. Mrs. Buchanan was in the hotel when the shooting occurred and did not witness it. The case is still unsolved.

Wished "Every Success."

In accepting Hardy's resignation, Arnold paid tribute to his 23-year record of service in the Justice Department's antitrust division. In a letter to the resigning attorney, Arnold said:

"You have served the department for many years. You have handled some of our most important cases. You have risen to a commanding position among the personnel and one which has involved great responsibility. May I wish you every success in the private practice of law."

Hardy joined the Department of Justice legal staff in 1914 and since December, 1934, has been a special assistant to Attorney General Homer Cummings.

He has successfully handled many antitrust cases and in 1929 won an injunction, which the Supreme Court later sustained, abolishing certain trade practices of the Atlantic Dyers and Cleaners. This case is epxexpected to serve as a basis for the Justice Department's present investigation of the American Medical Association.

Baldridge May Be Successor.

Several months ago, the 42-year-old attorney secured antitrust indictments against General Motors, the Ford Motor Co., Chrysler Corporation and affiliated finance concerns.

Hardy lives with his wife in University Park, Md.

It is believed that prosecution of the auto finance cases will be taken over by Holmes Baldridge, of Oklahoma City, Okla., who was sworn in recently as a special assistant to Cummings.

Loyalists Turn Franco's Flank On Ebro Front

Consolidate Offensive for Third Teruel Battle on 'Springboard.'

By the Associated Press.

Hendaye, France (on Spanish Frontier), Aug. 2.—Gen. Jose Miaja's loyalists turned the insurgent left flank on the Ebro River front in eastern Spain today and advanced on Albarracin, apparently consolidating their offensive in the central sector for a third battle for Teruel, the "springboard" of Gen. Franco's Valencia campaign.

Pobla de Mazaluca, a tiny sunbaked hamlet on heights overlooking the Ebro valley north of Gandesa, fell to the government after a terrific battle lasting several hours this morning. Formerly Franco's eastern battle headquarters, Gandesa is 150 miles southwest of Barcelona.

The conquest broke the insurgent lines north of Gandesa, exposing a score of villages on the Matarrana River plateau to loyalist attack.

Loyalists Drive New Wedge.

The loyalist central army drove another wedge into insurgent territory with an attack toward Albarracin, 20 miles west of Teruel. The defense ministry at Barcelona announced that its troops crossed the Guadalaviar River and advanced into the strategic region west of the city.

The government claimed capture of five important hill positions and the towns of Griegos, Guadalaviar and Frias de Albarracin. These towns lie about 15 miles west of Albarracin, which is the key to communication lines behind the insurgents' eastern front.

Yesterday the government forces captured the strategic bluff of Camarena, 13 miles south of Teruel, and several surrounding vilages, forcing insurgents to rush new men to this front.

Insurgents Counterattack.

Elsewhere, the loyalists had little success. Insurgent reinforcements launched counterattacks in the Prat del Compte sector, just south of Gandesa, where the main battle was for a score of little hills along the Canaleta River.

The reinforcements, drawn from the now stalled drive toward government-held Valencia, tried to smash through government lines along the Canaleta, but the government struck first and it was not till late in the day that the insurgents in the Canaleta area began to counterattack. Outcome of the fighting still was undecided late today.

Two Towns Bombed.

Barcelona, Aug. 2 (U.P.).—The Mediterranean coastal towns of Tarragona and Hospitalet, south of Barcelona, were blasted today by 200-pound explosive and incendiary bombs dropped by trimotor German planes which swept in from the Balearic Islands.

Gibraltar, Aug. 2 (U.P.).—The insurgent warships Canarias and Cervera were reported tonight to have entered their port of Cadiz badly damaged by the shells of loyalist shore batteries on the eastern Mediterranean coast.

The warships were said to have been shelled while attempting to bombard Cartagena, loyalist naval base south of Valencia, late Sunday.

Minority Problem Solution Doubtful

Praha, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 2 (AP). Pessimism blanketed government hopes tonight of settling Czechoslovakia's increasingly pressing German minority problem which Viscount Runciman is coming to study as Britain's unofficial mediator.

The main issue in Czech eyes is whether Czechoslovakia can tolerate a state-within-a-state by granting full autonomy rights to the 3,500,000 Germans within her borders, the measure of freedom demanded by Nazi spokesmen.

Edmund C. Tarbell.

To many artists recognition comes at the end of bitter years of obscurity and struggle; to others, like Millet, it comes only after death. In the case of Edmund C. Tarbell recognition came early, and honor after honor punctuated his long and fruitful life.

To the general public Mr. Tarbell is perhaps best known for his portraits of recent American Presidents, in particular for the one of Calvin Coolidge which hangs in the Statehouse at Boston. But his greatest success as an artist was in genre painting; in those informal and intimate "figures indoors" of which "Josephine and Mercie," one of three pictures by which he is represented in the permanent collection of the Corcoran Gallery, is an admirable example.

Mr. Tarbell's work was in no sense revolutionary. He was among the three or four outstanding representatives of the Boston School, standing well on the right wing of academic realism. Nevertheless, throughout nearly 40 years, marked by increasing revolt against academic standards and theories, his influence as a teacher was profound.

Many who were his students at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts are now famous. And when, in 1918, Mr. Tarbell became principal of the Corcoran School of Art, his name helped to attract many ambitious students to Washington. To his work here much of the Capital's rising prestige as an art center can be easily traced.

The Peaceful Balkans.

Like Germany, Bulgaria has now regained her right to rearm. But in the latter case this development was brought about through no act of force, through no violent abrogation of treaty commitments, but solely through peaceful negotiation.

The Balkan Entente powers (Yugoslavia, Rumania, Greece and Turkey) have acted with statesmanlike wisdom and foresight in freeing Bulgaria of the military restrictions imposed upon her by the Treaty of Neuilly. As it happens, these restrictions had long outlived whatever value and usefulness they may originally have had. What Germany took could not be indefinitely withheld from Bulgaria. Far better, therefore, voluntarily to wipe the slate clean than to endeavor to insist on an arrangement which had become obsolete and dangerous.

It must not be presumed, however, that the Balkan Entente, in vouchsafing Bulgaria the unrestricted right to rearm, acted on a basis of fear. The contrary is more nearly the case. Since its formation in 1934 the Balkan Entente has proved a strong and durable combination. The inclusion of Turkey paved the way to the present generous action toward Bulgaria. And the new development furthers the establishment of a solid bloc of friendly states, extending from the Danube to Syria, beholden to no one power and satellite of none.

Of this bloc Bulgaria is an important part. That little country displayed its peace-mindedness not only by living up to the Neuilly Treaty, harsh as some of its provisions have been, but also in consistently refusing to harbor ill will against its victorious neighbors. Once the most turbulent part of the European continent, the Balkan area is now about the most peaceful. And for this happy transformation the post-war policies of Turkey and Bulgaria are in no small degree responsible.

Troops Against The Law.

Gov. Kraschel of Iowa would be very ill-advised if he should show any opposition to the proposal made by the National Labor Relations Board yesterday in the matter of the Maytag Co. hearings. By removing the seat of this Federal inquiry from Newton to Des Moines the board has gone out of its way to meet every legitimate reason for the Governor's rather high-handed attitude. The present conciliatory approach merits a response in kind.

The NLRB "recognizes that the Governor of a State has a broad, although not an unlimited, discretion to determine the existence of an emergency which warrants the declaration of martial law." And without conceding the validity of the military order which closed the hearings at Newton on Monday it tactfully avoids making an issue of this action. The forcibly terminated inquiry is to be resumed tomorrow morning in the Federal Building at Des Moines, some 30 miles away. This, if Gov. Kraschel shows common sense, will terminate what might easily become a very serious matter.

What the Governor has done, with or without superficially valid reasons, is to subordinate civil to military authority, and the national to the local government, in a matter where the Federal jurisdiction is unquestionable. Both actions, as the board is quick to point out, "are abhorrent to American institutions." Nor has Gov. Kraschel strengthened his position by a rather strident, wise-cracking attitude which ill conceals the essential lawlessness of his position.

Neither the strike at the Maytag plant, nor the claim of a C. I. O. local to represent the workers there, are relevant to the present controversy. The only salient issue is the authority of a State executive to employ martial law to interfere with the orderly operation of constitutional legislation. A governor may occasionally need to utilize military force to uphold the law of the land. But for State officials to employ the National Guard to flout the law is an action unprecedented since the time when such actions precipitated the Civil War.

A Warning To The Vatican.

There is ample cause for reflection in the assertion of Il Regime Fascista that the youth of Italy, confronted with a choice between loyalty to Catholic Action and loyalty to Fascism, would choose the latter. And the importance of the veiled threat is not lessened by the fact that this newspaper is published by Roberto Farinacci, former secretary of the Fascist Party and a prominent member of Mussolini's inner circle.

On the heels of the Pope's criticism of Italy's new racial doctrine, this retort by a Fascist Party organ comes as clear warning to the Vatican to moderate its strictures on Fascist domestic policy. It is, further, warning that Italian totalitarianism, which so far has allowed the church in Italy a large measure of liberty, is reaching the stage of its development where priest as well as peasant will be expected to render unto Caesar whatever Caesar thinks should be rendered.

The truculence of Il Regime Fascista in this matter has also a decided bearing on the course of events in Spain, where not even large-scale Italian intervention is sufficing to bring victory to Gen. Franco. Many stauhch Catholics, particularly in this country, have been disposed to favor Mussolini's open assistance to the Nationalists on the assumption that this would help to establish a Spanish government strongly favorable to the church.

The course of events in Italy, however, indicates ever more clearly that Mussolini's interest in Spain has nothing whatsoever to do with the welfare of the church. If Il Duce is prepared to oppose its fundamental tenets in Italy he is unlikely to prove a reliable exponent of clericalism in any Spanish territory which may owe its successful rebellion to Italian aid.

That many American Catholics are aware of the reality of this problem was indicated by no less an authority than Father Joseph F. Thorning, in an article published in The Post on July 24. Writing immediately after an extensive tour in Nationalist Spain, Dr. Thorning expressed his fear that the Spanish Falange, which is modeled on Italian Fascism, may overpower the Requetes, or Catholic traditionalists. "There are visible," said Dr. Thorning, "the seeds of a bureaucracy which, however enlightened and generous it may appear at the moment, may easily give birth to the elements of corruption and discord."

As long as the demands of war impose a superficial unity among the Spanish Nationalists, the division between Catholic Action and Fascist ideology may possibly be concealed. But should Franco conquer in the field, which at the moment seems none too sure an outcome, the fundamental split among his supporters will very rapidly be revealed.

For that reason the pronouncement of Il Regime Fascista yesterday is of unusual importance. It serves notice to the Spanish Nationalists, as well as to Italians, that the church retains its liberties only for the duration of what Mussolini considers good behavior.

That unenviable situation is of course inherent in the philosophy of the totalitarian state. It has no room for any organization, lay or clerical, which does not obey the dictator's orders. Many have long realized this. Many more will understand the position better in view of the growing cleavage between church and state in Fascist Italy.

Valuable Searchlight.

The Senate Civil Liberties Committee deserves high praise for the competent and thorough manner in which it has been delving into the shadier aspects of industrial relations in this country.

It is, at the moment, of incidental importance whether the committee's disclosures lead to criminal prosecutions of those guilty in the past of infringements of civil liberties. Of more immediate significance is the fact that the investigation, by the very act of uncovering practices which cannot stand the light of day, tends to discourage their use.

This is borne out in the testimony of James S. Torbic, police chief of the Republic Steel Corporation's plant at Monroe, Mich. Other witnesses had presented evidence tending to show that the company, with the aid of special deputies equipped at the firm's expense, had routed a picket line in front of the plant during a strike that broke out in June, 1937. Gas had been used despite pledges given to Gov. Murphy that it would not be used against the strikers. Evidence was also presented of the company's employment of spies and stool-pigeons.

Mr. Torbic admitted on the witness stand that he feared an exposure of such practices before the Senate committee. For that reason he paid a stool-pigeon $1,000 to keep his mouth shut. This individual had threatened to sue the company for payment for services rendered. Such a suit might obviously have led to exposures which the company preferred to keep dark.

"I'll be frank," Mr. Torbic told the committee, "I knew what your committee was doing. We didn't want anybody to know we had stool-pigeons and I paid him $1,000 and told him to say nothing about it."

Because of what the Senate Civil Liberties body has done there will be less disposition in the future for certain companies to act like feudal overlords who regard their workers as serfs possessing no rights that need respect.

Useful Inquiry.

On three occasions toward the close of the last Congressional session the Senate defeated a proposal to put a statutory ban on the political use of relief funds. Its subsequent authorization of an inquiry into forms of vote coercion with the aid of Federal funds was generally regarded as a "face-saving" gesture likely to yield little information. Fortunately, the members of the Campaign Expenditures Committee are making both intelligent and active use of the investigatory powers conferred upon them.

In the limited time between the adjournment of Congress and the holding of the primary contests, they could not, of course, probe all charges of improper use of public funds and abuse of patronage. Nevertheless, the mere knowledge that the committee is receptive to all legitimate complaints of political coercion, no matter by whom preferred, has encouraged a salutary airing of grievances by candidates for office, their supporters and opponents. The result, despite the lack of time for exhaustive probes into charges, is revelatory. Evidence accumulates indicating that standards of political morality are deplorably low.

Probably voters are neither more nor less bribeable today than in the past and politicians neither more nor less inclined to rely upon patronage to entrench themselves in office. However, ancient evils become a spreading plague when, as is now the case, millions of voters find themselves dependent upon public funds for their jobs and their livelihood. They are inevitably singled out by conscienceless politicians who play upon their fears in order to swing their votes. The pressure to which they are subject, however, is often too subtly applied to be identified as coercion and condemned accordingly.

For that reason the investigating committee has been extremely wise in giving a broad construction to the Senate's mandate. As a result, vague and unsubstantiated charges have in a number of instances crystallized into tangible evidences of gross irregularities in the use of public funds in primary contests.

Heretofore, corrupt political machines in our States and muncipalities have enjoyed the advantage of comparative obscurity. They have directly touched only a small portion of the citizenry. As a result it has been difficult to arouse the public at large to a perception of their noxiousness. Indeed, the average voter is apt to take a tolerant, indifferent or fatalistic attitude toward the organized inroads of political machines.

Today, by contrast, dependence upon the bounty of Federal and State governments has brought many ordinary citizens into contact with political machines. Their interest in the machinations of professional spoilsmen no longer has to be stimulated. It is already active. For their own protection they are eager to gain an insight into the political game as it is played at a time when Federal funds are being lavishly disbursed under loose and often remote supervision.

The Senate investigating committee cannot hope to make much headway against the evil practices inseparable from such a system, but it is doing good work in educating the public to understand what is happening and why.

Somehow the New Deal has neglected to take credit for the fact that the geysers in Yellowstone Park in recent months have been spouting more copiously and oftener.

"There are more than 30,000 nudists in this supposedly civilized country," exclaims a horror-stricken minister. Yes, but just think how many more there'd be if it weren't for creditors.

Note to reformers: Hitler doesn't drink; Japanese don't cuss.

Mauretania.

From the Christian Science Monitor.

I touch my country's mind. I come to grips
With half her purpose, thinking of these ships.

There is nothing like a coronation or a ship launching to bestir such sentimental susceptibilities as now and then belie John Bull's more sober side. In a way, the launching of the Mauretania at Birkenhead combined the appealing aspects of both, for the name bestowed on Britain's newest ocean liner recalls the romantic reign of her glamorous namesake which for 26 years was queen of the Western Ocean.

Only those who have watched this majestic miracle, who have seen a dead-weight mass of steel, borne of its awesome immensity, start and slowly come to life, can comprehend with what pent-up emotion a hundred thousand onlookers awaited the turn of the tide to see the Mauretania enthroned upon the Mersey. The building and launching of this great ship symbolize a naval genius born of an island race that is the keel and rivet of Britain's ocean empire. The new Mauretania is a mighty symbol of England's seafaring renown, a resplendent reminder of an enduring tradition sensed by Britain's poet laureate:

It is this tradition of a deep-rooted national purpose that the Mauretania is destined to uphold upon the sea.

Letters To The Editor

Mexico And Russia.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir Mr. Hichborn in his letter of July 23 notes a difference in our attitude toward Mexico and Russia in the matter of expropriation of property held by our nationals.

There is a wide difference in their performance. Mexico made promises of compensation. Russia, under an article of her constitution declaring the land and everything of value in or on it the property of the people, took it all over without promise of compensation to her own or other nationals.

We have made no demands on Canada for compensation to our nationals who undertook to exploit the lands of her Northwest Territories but were obliged to relinquish them as delinquents in payment of taxes that left no margin for speculation. So it seems there is a way by which a state may recapture its lands without inviting international complications.

Meantime, we have our own problem of land exploitation by absentee landlords and others that is turning our agriculture over to sharecroppers and tenant farmers, with a larger proportion of alien absentee owners than many of us realize. I am told that in one of our States, given over largely to share-cropping, one-third of its area under cultivation is owned in England, where some important checks went in compensation for plowing under cotton rows.

Under our dual system of government this problem seems to rest with the States, but the New Deal in its preoccupation with economic royalists, big-business monopolies and soak-the-rich taxation, appears quite oblivious of it by way of either advice or example.

WALTER N. CAMPBELL.
Washington, July 30.

In Praise Of Lewis.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A writer who signed himself Old Timer wants Marylanders to vote for Senator Tydings because Representative Lewis favored laws that gave men and women better working conditions, for which he should be honored in any civilized country.

Old Timer knows that of the 12 major social, farm and labor bills that came up before the Seventy-fifth Congress Senator Tydings voted for only three of them. He opposed the President in his effort to better conditions for the masses. But I don't believe the Senator wants much publicity on the subject.

Of course, not everything done by members of the A. F. of L., the C. I. O. or the railroad brotherhoods pleased all, but America is the best Nation in the world with them.

JOHN RIGGLES.

The Southwest Section.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to object to the reference of the southwest district of Washington as the D. C. slums as stated on the church page of the Saturday morning Washington Post. It may be true that the southwest district is not held in as high repute as some other sections in the city, but there is not sufficient reasons to make this an outstanding section by calling it the slums. A quick glance at different sections of the city will reveal quite as black a picture as you would find in the southwest section.

Too often we give a label to a person or place which is an incentive to make that person or place live up to that label. While many of the people in the southwest section may be underprivileged, a high percentage are stable citizens who have benevolent hearts and helping hands and always are ready to assist where needed.

In my estimation not only the good but the beautiful must be held up before all men. This gives them something to strive for. Picturing the noble brings forth the nobleness that lies dormant in the souls of men. And if a beautifying program were carried out here as in some other sections, no doubt southwest would resurrect a sleeping pride. An unpretentious manifestation of Christian benevolence and principles will help men to strive for the higher and the more noble things of life.

RICHARD T. SCHOLL.
Washington, Aug. 1.

Mrs. Sidney Taliaferro.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a near neighbor and admirer of the good deeds of Mrs. Sidney Taliaferro, I am deeply moved by Mr. Tumulty's just tribute to her in his letter in The Post of today. My wish is that every woman reader of The Post may be heartened by it to emulate her example in however humble a way.

Women are a reserve force in times such as we are passing through. The country is secure because of its good women and they are overcoming the obstinate social and physical factors which impede the full measure of their usefulness in the home and in public life.

JOHN C. DOYLE.
Washington, July 27.

The Thomas Circle Underpass

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial of July 30, referring to the proposed construction of an underpass at Thomas Circle as "relatively insignificant," may appear so to the writer of the editorial, who, no doubt, occupies an attractive home in some suburban district.

But to those of us still interested in the city beautiful idea of which, at times, we hear so much about, and also interested in maintaining the Thomas Circle area in its present fine old character as a residential section, the project certainly is not "relatively insignificant."

Therefore, the interest manifested by President Roosevelt in the project by ordering a restudy of the plans is most welcome news to the 500 members of the Midcity Citizens Association, adjacent property owners and businessmen who have petitioned for a revision of the plans, which call for the widening of Massachusetts avenue over 22 feet on each side, between Thirteenth street and Fifteenth street, destruction of over 100 fine old shade trees which are a comfort to the neighborhood and things of beauty to the community, as well as an expenditure of $532,000 of District taxpayers' money.

As to your claim the underpass will facilitate traffic at this bottle neck, we insist that no such condition with respect to congestion now exists. In fact, it is only during the morning and afternoon rush hours, when all-day parkers are entering and leaving the downtown area that even a slight semblance of congestion occurs—and is this congestion not as great at all other points at the same hours? It also should be remembered that with a four-lane traffic road under the circle feeding out into a two-lane road, a real problem would be encountered at Scott Circle and east of Thirteenth street on Massachusetts avenue.

It is the firm conviction of those of us who have given the matter study and consideration that a serious blunder is ahead if construction of the tunnel follows present plans.

As a solution of the problem, the Midcity Citizens Association has suggested surface treatment at Thomas Circle along the lines of Scott Circle, which seems to be working quite successfully, and it may be of interest to know that already high officials of the National Capital Parks office have vigorously opposed the Thomas Circle plan.

In the final analysis, we maintain that what really is needed at Thomas Circle and its approaches is a ban against parking—which would eliminate a present need for an underpass. The Midcity Citizens Association has consistently advocated this ban on parking but up to the present has met with no success.

Puerto Ricans Loyal.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is no doubt in my mind that the great majority of Puerto Ricans were shocked when the deplorable incident occurred in Ponce, Puerto Rico, on July 25, during a patriotic gathering. The amazing attempt made upon the life of Gov. Winship and several members of the Puerto Rican Legislature indicates that the extremists of the Nationalist Party desire to show their hatred for our official—and likewise those of their own government.

I understand that a former follower of Albizu Campus, has cautioned his comrades to discontinue activities on behalf of separation from the United States, as he seems to realize that the island could not possibly exist without the aid of our country.

In my opinion the dastardly attempts of the Nationalist members during the past several years received some encouragement from United States agitators. It is most unfortunate that these misnamed "liberators" have inspired a minor group on the island to advocate separation of political ties with our country, whereas their conscience should tell them that independence would bring with it chaos and economic ruin.

Being mostly agricultural, Puerto Rico, without favorable trade advantages now enjoyed, could not survive without the aid of the United States. Common sense tells us that the island's situation is unlike that of the Philippines. The latter has vast natural resources in minerals and gold; Puerto Rico has none.

Over 95 per cent of her inhabitants appreciate the moral and financial assistance received from our Administration during the recession. The aid received has improved the standard of living among the laboring class who, in all of the majority industries, are working under 8-hour labor laws and receiving wages in line with their ideal climatic conditions. Puerto Ricans have heretofore strongly condemned the radical views of their small minority. I am confident that they will again demonstrate their desire to continue the amicable relations with the United States.

In Defense Of The N.L.R.B.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The action of the National Labor Relations Board in prohibiting the circulation of an anti-C. I. O. speech of Representative Clare Hoffman, of Michigan, by employers to their employes is certain to raise a storm of howling by reactionary "super-patriots" throughout the Nation.

However, certain essential and primary facts must be remembered. When an employer attempts, by circulation of anti-C. I. O. literature to influence his employes from joining a union, that is coercion. And it makes no difference whether the literature was written by a Congressman or the employer's bona fide public relations counselor. The employer is the source of his employes' livelihood—their bread and butter and their children's well being and while they have the freedom to disobey him, they also have the freedom to be fired—the right to starve.

The Constitution and the Bill of Rights never gave any employer the right to intimidate his employes into joining or not joining a union. And, furthermore, the national labor relations act is of necessity one-sided. It was created to protect the employe's right to live and to work. The industrialists don't need more protection. They now have their money, their Pinkertons and their Clare Hoffmans.

Compensation.

JULY in Washington has its compensations. I am ready to support that, though I dislike black-cat-on-the-chest weather and long to draw a decent lungful of ozone as much as any.

And for my support I'm not thinking this time of Sunset Symphonies—"music that gentlier on the spirit lies, than tired eyelids upon tired eyes"—when the sound effects are not too suggestive of the office typewriter.

Nor am I thinking, gustatorily, of the watermelon schooners tied fast to the Water street wharves, and the one-horse wagon loads of the great green fruit that careen on rickety wheels down alleys and up avenues under the singularly carefree guidance of peddlers intoning in high falsetto:

"Red, ripe wat-a-mellun—red to th' rine—sweet as hun-y—an' Ah plugs 'em eb'ry time."

May the merchandising of melons never grow so formalized in this Nation's Capital that the chant of the watermelon vender is heard no more in the streets.

• • • •

I am thinking rather of two floral compensations of July's heat and humidity. One is the water lilies at the Shaw gardens in Kenilworth. Nowhere else have I seen such a perfect locale for water lilies, such a profusion of bloom, such a range of color. Floating there in utter contentment on the still ponds are named varieties from equatorial regions and natives from Maine. Pink, white, yellow, peach, dubonnet, blue shading to violet—each with a center of gold and each perfumed with more allure than any of the synthetic dollar-a-drop scents the chemists have compounded.

Bordering some of the pools are lotus, rank growing, shoulder high—the same Egyptian lotus that Cleopatra offered Antony as they drifted in their houseboat on the Nile. There is the Chinese sort, too—the sacred lotus on which dainty Kuan Yin, Goddess of Mercy, always takes her stance.

Florists from Boston to Chicago know these Washington water lilies, have standing orders for them that are boxed and shipped these summer mornings long before the milkman wakes us with his clanking bottles. Water lilies, it seems, last longest when picked in the bud at dawn before the sun touches them. But, oddly, few Washingtonians seem to know that we have world-famous water gardens in our suburb.

• • • • •

Then there are the gladioli—"Glads" to our friend Mr. Montgomery who grows them for pleasure and profit. And it was he who pointed out their varied personality. I had seen them only as ubiquitous spikes of gay color, cheerful Jack-in-the-beanstalk kind of flowers, always on the up-and-up even in the hottest weather. For as soon as one flower withers another opens, and so on to the topmost bud.

But thanks to Mr. Montgomery I can now address the aristocrats of the gladiolus family by name. We were introduced one morning in his gardens when the humid heat made us too restless to stay at home. So now I greet Romance in the flower shops—a thick-set stalk of two-tone blossoms shading from glowing rose to purple gray.

"Fine flower, Romance," the grower chuckled as he drew a superb stalk from the tall water jar. "But it can't stand much punishment. Hot sun or a long wet spell, and good-by Romance."

Then I often see Copper Bronze on the street stands, another "glad" named to suit its color and stamina. It has a conspicuously drooping upper petal, characteristic of the Primulinus strain, inherited from its ancestors that flourished in the African rain forest. This permanent droop to the upper lip keeps the rain and spray from drenching the throat and wetting the pollen for the bees.

One of the most compelling, wide-throated red gladiolus is Chicago. And Mrs. Coolidge—everybody likes Mrs. Coolidge—is an exquisite combination of softest pink and yellow. Then there's Albatross, with wide-spread wing-like petals, snowy white as the bird of good omen that steered the Ancient Mariner through ice and fog.

When I see blue gladiolus at Tony's stand I always stop.

"Are they Blue Danube or Aida?" I ask him.

"Si, si—Celeste Aida," he invariably answers, whether they are the deep passion-purple of the flower named for the Ethiopian slave girl, or whether they are the pale, dainty orchid Minuet. And as he wraps my bouquet, he hums a bar or two of the aria.

Yes, there's compensation for Washington's midsummer weather. It can be had for half a dollar.

Sunday Radio.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post Impressionist last month on the subject of Sunday radio is true to the enjoyment of life. The symphonies and high-class programs, including good sermons, are grand, especially for those who are in the city week-ends and for shut-ins.

The short wave explaining conditions at Pitcairn Island Friday night was interesting; the program from England 10:30 Saturday, with the chimes of Big Ben (3:30 a. m., London time) was awe-inspiring.

Fair Enough

By
Westbrook Pegler

New Canaan, Conn.

AN editorial crisis has been happily weathered by the Connecticut Nutmeg, the roguish weekly published by a little group of serious thinkers up here away from it all, of which Heywood Broun, the president of the Newspaper Guild, C.I.O. union, is one of the contributing proprietors. Mr. Gene Tunney, another of the contributing proprietors, composed an article for the issue of July 28 with intent to disparage the courage of his neighbor, Congressman Alfred Norton Phillips, of Stamford.

Mr. Phillips, though a New Dealer by political profession, is an economic royalist, being an heir to a fortune amassed in the manufacture of a famous household remedy, good for man or beast. In Congress he has been given credit for a determined, single-handed and, as yet, unsuccessful struggle to abolish the reptile houses of all the American zoological gardens lest there come sometime an earthquake to shake apart their cages and loose upon the land hundreds, or anyway, dozens, of venomous serpents.

It is a dreadful possibility which had never occurred to any other statesman, although there are several retreats, in the leafy hills hard by Congressman Phillips' home town in which learned physicians carry on a ceaseless but not exactly selfless warfare against the reptiles which infest the hallucinations of noted scions and scionesses who have overdrammed.

ON A RECENT occasion, Congressman Phillips took a sock at the chin of Mr. Harold Skidd, a junior politician of the District. By Mr. Tunney's account, he missed and Skidd then bounced his one-two off the Congressman's chin and swooned him in the arms of friends.

Mr. Tunney still further reported that on a previous occasion Congressman Phillips threw a punch at a man 30 years older than himself, missed, caught a right in return and fled, shouting: "A horse, a horse; my kingdom for a horse."

This remark Mr. Tunney identifies as being from Richard III, a play by William Shakespeare.

Although the Connecticut Nutmeg has now rolled 11 issues, and was acclaimed as a paper in which thinkers of strong opinions would hit straight from the shoulder, as the rotarians say, Mr. Tunney's article on the local Congressman, rather oddly, was the first essay that might not have been published in the Washington Star without offense to the editorial policy of that friendly journal. Mr. Broun has been writing nature notes and puns.

But when Mr. Tunney fearlessly denounced Congressman Phillips, Mr. George Bye, the sort of editor, changed two words in the tail paragraph of his copy, strife broke out in the happy family of suburban editors. He caused Mr. Tunney to say that Congressman Phillips enjoyed a fight, whereas he had intended to say the reverse and Gene's humiliation was exceeded only by his wrath at Mr. Bye of whom he demanded a written apology. Professional journalists of the circle were inclined to smile at this bother over two words but Mr. Tunney is nothing if not earnest and he assuredly is not nothing.

Beneath the surface of things up here away from it all it is more than half suspected that Neighbor Broun hankers for Mr. Phillips' seat in Congress and that Mr. Tunney approves of his desire. Mr. Broun has cultivated a William Jennings Bryan coiffure and a platform manner and Mr. Tunney has developed a truly remarkable political influence in the countryside. There are many Irish names among the roster of the leaders and it is by no means fantastic to imagine that Mr. Tunney, skipping the lower house, may one day adorn the United States Senate. Mr. Broun cannot have Congressman Phillips' seat this year, being C.I.O. in an A. F. of L. town, a Socialist and not a Democrat and too new to the region to qualify with the organization. But two years from now, with Mr. Tunney's aid, Mr. Broun might receive that which he sometimes calls a mandate.

Mr. Bye has given Mr. Tunney has written apology, so the Nutmeg crisis is over now and all that remains to be told is the news that Mr. Broun, the employer, is operating a rat, scab and fink shop, in the terms of Mr. Broun, the president of a C.I.O. union. They hired a reporter last week who is not a member of the Newspaper Guild and the Connecticut Nutmeg's paid editorial staff is 100 per cent nonunion. Life is real up here away from it all.

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart.

Intent.

The Civil Service Commission on Sunday issued a militant statement of intention to enforce both the letter and spirit of the executive order of June 24, declaring:

"The commission will stand firm in recommending to the President that blanket or individual exceptions be not allowed to undermine the long-range principles set forth under the President's leadership in the executive orders of June 24. Groups and individuals, as sincere as they may be in advising the President to retract the effect of the orders upon their groups or upon them as individuals, would be in this respect, nevertheless, shortsighted in their failure to recognize the benefits to the public, the taxpayers, the Government, throughout the years to come, of the extension of the competitive civil service authorized by executive order No. 7916."

Possibility.

Friends of the merit system will recognize the intention here as admirable—but they may read the executive order itself and be disturbed by certain possibilities which could upset so fine an intention. For one glaring loophole continues to grin at the whole business:

Should an employe take the noncompetitive examination and make an abject failure, the head of his agency may nevertheless recommend him for continuation in the service on the grounds that he has performed satisfactory service.

How much of this sort of thing the commission proposes to put up with is to be seen. The immediate presumption is that those already in the service and who take the non-competetives to acquire civil service status can easily pass the flimsy tests. But if the tests turn out not to be so flimsy and he doesn't pass and his boss recommends him to stay on withal, won't there be the eternal thought in the public's mind that patronage politics are still at play?

Co-operation.

Despite the loophole in the executive order, the commission has indicated that it will protest strongly every instance where a violation of the merit system extension is proposed, and we expect that many proposals will be made to keep on the jobs those whose unfitness has been demonstrated either through examination or in the performance of duty.

"The President needs the constructive co-operation of all departments and agencies. The commission will recommend fulfillment of the letter and the spirit of these executive orders," it was announced. And with such intention in mind, the agency heads may do well to watch the numbers they want to exclude from civil service. And some of those who have realized their unfitness for the jobs they obtained through patronage should be studying up—because a newly militant Civil Service Commission may devise the means of making them prove their qualifications for the job.

Notes.

Interior: Stanley W. Crosthwait, I. D. R. A. president, is expected back soon from an official trip to the West. He is out for the Office of Indian Affairs . . . United States Minister to Honduras John D. Erwin and Mrs. Erwin are expected in Washington next week . . . Rodney Knowles, of Reclamation, is back from Kill Devil Hills, N. C., where he witnessed the WPA presentation of Sir Walter Raleigh's settlement of Carolina . . . John L. Lloyd goes on a three-week vacation soon to his home State, Pennsylvania . . . John C. Page, commissioner of reclamation, is on an official trip to Reclamation projects.

Concerning Federal job seekers: We hear that a local power sent a well-known athlete to the Interior Department with a request that he be given a job because of his prowess at baseball. Don't tell us that Interior is getting on the level of the colleges!

And while on the subject of job seekers, the loudest cry against them comes, paradoxically enough, from the Congressmen. Their unemployed constituents often come here and camp while the Congressmen do their best. And in many painful instances, the Congressmen have to buy them railroad tickets home, adding to the toll of all the food and drinks bought for them during the job-seeking stay. And still most Congressmen want their patronage. You figure it out.

'Big Government' Worse Peril Than Big Business, Woll Avers

By Geoffrey Parsons.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—"Big Government" is a greater menace to the liberties and aspirations of the American people than "big business," Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor and president of the Union Labor Life Insurance Co., declared tonight at a forum of the Republican program committee on the Chicago campus of Northwestern University.

"We are now seeing that menace of "big government." said Woll. "The outward manifestations of big government are mounting deficits, increased tax burdens and swollen budgets. Where all this may lead us no one can tell. Not many years ago we were warned of the peril of "big business;" we were told about a great invisible power that was seeking to control the processes of government.

"We are now seeking that menace of 'big government.' which is not only controlling the destinies of business and utilizing the public credit to perpetuate political parties in power, but is making the individual a pawn of the State. While of the two, 'big government' is a greater menace to the people's liberties and aspirations, neither form is desirable."

One hundred and fifty members of the Republican Program Committee wound up a strenuous day at their "summer school" tonight by gathering to hear a discussion of "Co-operation Between Labor and Industry" by a prominent spokesman for each side. Woll, representing the more conservative wing of the labor movement, spoke for the working man. Louis K. Comstock, an electrical engineer and president of the Merchants Association of New York, represented the employer.

Earlier in the day, the program committee had divided into groups to attend closed round-table discussions on topics of national significance.

Dr. Glenn Frank, chairman of the program committee, told his fellow committee members today to remember that they were in Chicago "to work, not to attend an outing," and stressed the importance of punctual adherence to the schedule mapped out for the week. The "summer school" was arranged to lay the basis for the drafting of a report to the Republican National Committee.

Woll said that the unwillingness of employers to recognize the fundamental right of employe to bargain collectively had led to the enactment of the Wagner labor act.

"May I state definitely and unequivocally," he said, "the Wagner act would have been wholly unnecessary if employers in the past had given a full measure of recognition to labor as a co-partner in industry . . . The purpose of that law was to raise labor to a status of equality with employers in collective bagaining. To a growing numbers of workers it is becoming evident that this device (the labor act) may be used by Government to shape, regulate, and control the destiny of labor and of labor organizations and as may best please the whim and fancy of those temporarily in control of its administration.

"Today that control may be prolabor. Tomorrow, it may be otherwise.

"Now that this step has been taken, it will probably be difficult to retrace it. That the law should be amended is beyond question. Its weaknesses and maladministration are becoming more pronounced and notorious each succeeding day. On the other hand its outstanding accomplishment has been the bringing home to capital and management the fact that only by mutual recognition of each other's right to organization and collective bargaining and resultant joint action on both the industrial and legislative field can we hope to solve our industrial problems with a minimum of interference or regulation on the part of Government."

Monopoly Query

By Ernest Lindley

Something About Its Objectives.

The work of the temporary national economic committee—the "monopoly" investigation—is still in the formative stage, but there is nothing in the present attitude or objectives of a majority of the committee members to justify the suspicion that the inquiry is intended to be a "witch-hunt."

Those who voice this suspicion greatly underestimate the ability and ambition of the six representatives of the Administration, who, with six members of Congress, make up the committee. The Administration members, at least, are uninterested in such petty and immediate political capital as might be made out of inflicting embarrassment on a few business and financial leaders.

There will be public hearings, and during them various business and financial practices may be ventilated more or less dramatically. But most of the Administration members of the committee are not politically minded in the narrow sense. It is clear that they are thinking in terms of a comprehensive examination of American business organization and practices.

* * * *

The central aim of this examination is to find ways of achieving "a fuller and more balanced use" of the Nation's resources. Although this phrase originated with a New Deal economist who is not a member of the committee, it is being used by spokesmen for the committee. As yet, the only official document elaborating the assignment given in the resolution creating the committee is the President's message of April 29 on "Strengthening and Enforcement of the Antitrust Laws." A confidential memorandum prepared by another prominent New Dealer at the request of two members of the committee emphasizes that proposed methods of reforming or controlling the business system should have these objectives in mind:

"To provide more goods, better goods and cheaper goods.

"To provide more jobs, better-paying and steadier jobs.

"To provide continuous ready access to capital financing needed to create and maintain additional plant; to provide for the continued development of the arts.

"Where a high degree of competition will accomplish the result, that should be the method used. Where a high degree of cartelization under suitable control will accomplish the result, that should be the method. Where quasi-public ownership produces the result, use that. The answers will be different in different fields."

* * * *

No less emphatically this memorandum states another vital test of reform in business methods: "The system must evolve a method of organization that does not interfere unduly, actually or potentially, with the liberty of the individual; i. e. its controls must release more individuality than they suppress."

This final quotation is of special interest because the author of the memorandum is a New Dealer who is known to be more skeptical than many of his colleagues of the possibilities of widening the field of full-fledged competition.

A majority of the members of the committee are what might be called "old-fashioned" progressives and liberals. They are essentially devoted to a system of competitive capitalism, and believe that the trend toward concentration of enterprize and of control over it can be reversed. It is well known that other prominent members of the Roosevelt Administration regard this concentration as a natural and not altogether undesirable development. At times, Mr. Roosevelt himself has seemed to lean in one direction and, at times, in the other. He has been accused of inconsistency. Unquestionably, he has been inconsistent in the sense that he has proved himself to be no doctrinaire holding in his hand a blue print for the ideal organization of American business enterprise.

Many of his lieutenants, including some of his appointees to the temporary national economic committee, are more fixed in their ideas than Mr. Roosevelt is. But their fixed ideas conflict, and it is apparent that at the outset of this investigation there is a genuine attempt by most of those responsible for its conduct to examine their own prejudices as well as the American business system. Significantly, the only member of the whole committee who has shown an impatience to push ahead without elaborate studies is Senator Borah.

Although a majority of the members of the committee are no less devoted than Senator Borah to the ideal of free competition, they are less confident than he is that they "know the answer." All six Administration members are strong-minded men; and so are their chief assistants. No one person will be able to dictate their conclusions. On the whole, it is probably desirable that so many of them belong to the "old-fashioned" liberal school of thought. To the extent that lively private competition can be restored or improved, there will be less need for the alternatives; Government regulations and Government-fostered "yardsticks." Certainly the preference of most, probably all, the members of the committee is for reliance on private competition wherever it is practicable.

On the committee are five or six of the best minds in the Administration. They have at their command the talent and accumulated experience of every agency of the Government, supplemented by a number of specially drafted experts. They ought to be able to produce a manumental study of the operation of the American business system.

Books And Things

By Edward Angly

Louisiana Chronicle.

Julia Truitt Yenni's second excursion into novel writing, "This Is Me, Kathie" (Reynald & Hitchcock, $2), is a story of somewhat noncomformist life and behavior in a small town in Louisiana, in the flat country between Shreveport and New Orleans, where most people, back in the days of President Taft, conformed to nice middle-class banalities and hypocrisies. The town had one public hack and a small college. It had a saloon, but the pool hall upstairs had been closed.

Most of the West Enders were Methodists, the South Siders Baptists, but the Brigges, who had a big green automobile, and Dr. Robbins, the college president, and his wife were Episcopalians. The Catholic Church, which had bells cast in Spain out of Mexican silver when the place was just a few houses in the wilderness, still drew more members than any of the others, but it was in the Old Town.

Most people thought the McLaughlin family and the Beechams were queer, a little crazy. Father and Mother Beecham had two daughters, the copper-haired amber-eyed Shelley, who was so beautiful that none of her beaux ever got up the nerve to propose, and the small, sandy-haired freckled Katharine, who was married to Daniel McLaughlin before she was 18, almost before she had time to realize that it was she, and not Shelley, whom Danny had been coming to see. So now, with Kathie Beecham married to Daniel McLaughlin things were bound to happen—and they did. They were married in December and the first baby arrived the next September, Mother Beecham meanwhile having sniffed at Kathie's inelegance in being so "prompt."

Danny, who taught in the high school and hoped to get an appointment to the college faculty, lived with his father, Pops, who had his favorite rocker on the porch, and just enough money in the bank to let him draw out $5 or $10 now and then, believed nothing be heard, but he seemed to have "unlimited faith in the printed word." He was forever trying out household hints that came to him in the magazines, in whose contests of all sorts he was a regular entrant. Living with Pops and Daniel when Kathie came into the family was the younger son, Carter, a halfwit whom the doctors had only recently permitted them to bring home from the institution in New Orleans.

Danny didn't get the college faculty appointment because, one Sunday when he was at church, the house caught fire and, after putting it out, Kathie and Pops and Carter and the baby were seen riding through town, with what bedding and kitchenware they had saved, on Mark Chester's wagon. Mark was the saloonkeeper. He'd gone to the fire and offered the poolroom to Kathie as a temporary home for the family. It wasn't so much that they had gone there as the fact that Kathie seemed to enjoy the ride, the experience.

"Pops," she had yelled as they rode along, "let's get us a wagon and live on it all the time and never stay in any one place." The women, coming out of church, had caught their breath (but not for long) at the sight of her. The telephones were so busy the rest of the day that the operator, who didn't even have time to listen in, thought there must be a flood. She was prepared to stick to her switchboard and become a heroine.

What had only reminded Kathie of the childhood joy of "playing pioneer" became a town topic of the first water. It would be much later before she would be told that "the secret of living in a town like this is learning just exactly what's proper and fitting for a lady to enjoy. You can do most anything if you get the right air of disapproval on your face."

Shelley would run off to New York to escape a doting mother. Father Beecham would commit suicide and Mother Beecham would come to live with Kathie and the McLaughlins, taking over Pop's rocker and making a complete mother-in-law nuisance of herself in proceeding to show that "somebody with a grain of sense has to have a say in the family." And other things would happen to make Kathie feel that she was a handicap to quiet Danny until—well, the big surprise and the happy ending, which, under the reviewers' code, should be respected as a secret for the author's paying customers.

Miss Yenni starts off in low. There were times in the first few yards when I was tempted either to put her book aside or send it to a 10-year-old niece. But soon she shifted gears and I stayed awake and alert to the end. When I was getting off general lett. as a college requirement, it seems to me Doc Parlin used to talk about character drawing, or character delineation, or something like that. Well, Miss Yenni is good at it. Her Kathie, her Pops and Mother, her Shelley, are all clear-cut people with whom the reader really becomes acquainted. And so are those awful cats who talked about Kathie.

Light On Housing

By Merlo J. Pusey.

Post And Straus & Wegg.

HOUSING in this country is a subject about which opinions are far more extensive than understanding. Only during the last few years has there been any general recognition of the fact that housing is, in part, a public concern. Now it is generally conceded that public funds are essential to replace slums with modern housing projects. But the question of how far the Government ought to go in providing citizens with decent living quarters is a long way from being answered.

Two recent contributions to thinking on the subject are especially welcome because of the confusion in which it is still involved. In "The Challenge of Housing," Langdon W. Post, former chairman of the New York Housing Authority, has drawn an exciting indictment of past neglect in providing homes for the poor. To this he has added an appraisal of the progress recently made in the fight against the slums, and a broad proposal for future public control of housing. Speaking from a background of practical experience and deep conviction, Mr. Post has gone a long way toward putting slum clearance in a realistic setting.

A second volume entitled "Housing Comes of Age," by Michael W. Straus and Talbot Wegg, is an interesting and authentic story of the Government's low-rental housing activities to date. Mr. Straus is director of information for the PWA and Mr. Wegg was associated with the housing division as an architect. Their book offers little objective criticism of the policy it outlines. But mere presentation of the facts as they are viewed by the PWA helps to clarify the outlook for better housing.

IN VIEW OF the fact that the slums are fully recognized as a blot on our civilization, Mr. Post probably devotes too much space to a review of the wretched living conditions in which millions of American families live. The practical question is: What is to be done about it? Mr. Post's reply is an unqualified indorsement of Government subsidies for abolition of the slums. Efforts of private industry to deal with the problem, he says, have been a failure. For the one-third of the population at the bottom of the economic scale the only hope of decent housing is the construction and management of large-scale projects with the use of Government funds.

No realist is likely to take exception to that view. At bottom the slum problem is one of poverty. Families crowded into wretched living quarters cannot escape into sunny rooms looking out on to broad lawns unless taxpayers supplement the rent these families are able to pay. It necessarily follows, however, that slum clearance activities must be limited by the ability of governmental units to provide the essential funds.

This is the point at which Mr. Post's realism tends to fade away. "Can we count the cost," he asks, "when the rewards are so great?" Like too many other enthusiasts for social reform, he permits his vision to extend far beyond the resources actually in sight. To house one-third of the Nation at Government expense would mean subsidies for at least 10,000,000 families. Mr. Post calculates the necessary amount for rental subsidies at $900,000,000 per year, exclusive of capital outlays. "We are not prepared to embark on any such program yet," he writes. But his book leaves a very definite impression that this is the goal at which the country should aim.

SINCE THE cost of doing a thorough job of slum clearance is so staggering, and the funds available are so comparatively inadequate, the situation seems to call for low-cost as well as low-rental housing. But that is not one of the points emphasized by Mr. Post. Rather he visualizes enormous projects with all the modern conveniences located in attractive surroundings.

Undoubtedly that is the most desirable type of project to build from the viewpoint of future city planning and ideal social betterment. It should be carefully noted, however, that these homes "with pretty curtains at the windows" do not become available to the lowest income group. Rather they take in the upper strata of the lower one-third. The groups who need better housing most are excluded because they do not have steady incomes. Apparently, then, large parts of the slums will have to continue in use to provide for families on relief and others below the line of eligibility for Government housing subsidies.

Would it not be more reasonable to require these relatively expensive slum clearance projects to pay their own way, as do the limited - dividend undertakings first sponsored by the PWA? Subsidies could then be used for minimum-cost housing of a substantial character for the very lowest income groups.

Turning to another phase of this stimulating volume, it is interesting to note the vigor with which Mr. Post condemns the theory of locating projects for slum dwellers on vacant land. "Obviously," he says, "this practice does not in itself clear slums." Moreover, it "drains the city at its very heart," leaving blight and decay behind while requiring outlays for new streets, schools, playgrounds, etc., in the newly developed areas. Where slum property can be used for nonresidential purposes, it is quite proper to house the ousted inhabitants elsewhere. But for the most part he insists that redevelopment must take place in actual slum areas, even though costs are thus increased.

DESPITE the sympathetic treatment afforded by Messrs. Straus and Wegg, the story of the PWA Housing Division is in large part one of frustration. That agency was organized as part of the general campaign to create jobs through public expenditures. The complicated job of working out a housing policy was subordinated to relief activities. The PWA could not work through local housing agencies because few were in existence. So it launched a direct Federal program, with striking disregard for the division of functions between local and national government in this country.

This program was necessarily hampered by lack of experience in housing and finally by court decisions forbidding the condemnation of land by the Federal Government for public housing. In the midst of the program, moreover, the supply of funds for housing was suddenly cut off, and plans had to be delayed until a new public works appropriation was voted. Working under these conditions, it is surprising that the Housing Division accomplished as much as it did.

Undoubtedly the chief accomplishment of the PWA in this housing activity in Washington was a grave mistake even though the organization of local authorities did not require time. Its projects are too costly to serve as a demonstration of what can or should be done. But it did succeed in awakening the country to a new interest in decent shelter for the neglected one-third.

Mr. Straus stoutly defends the costs of PWA dwellings. "Although it is too early to be dogmatic," he says, "these tables indicate that the housing division's construction costs will stand comparison with any but the cheapest frame buildings built by private enterprise at the same time and under similar conditions."

DorothyParker Captures City Beauty Crown

'Miss Washington of 1938' Wins From Field of 17 Contestants.

While the steamship Potomac steamed down the river on a moonlight cruise last night, Dorothy Parker, the former "Miss Columbia Heights," was named Miss Washington 1938 and won her chance to compete in the national beauty contest at Atlantic City.

Miss Parker won from a final field of 17 girls selected in preliminary eliminations. She lives at 1228 Shepherd street northwest.

Judges of the contest were Lyle O'Rourke, president of the Junior Board of Commerce, and drama critics from Washington newspapers. A holiday crowd watched as the girls paraded in bathing suits and then in evening gowns.

Budwesky New City Manager Of Alexandria

Delivery Service, phone Alex. 1400.

Carl L. Budwesky has been chosen by the city council as city manager of Alexandria, this action taken at a special executive meeting of the council on Monday night, and announced yesterday morning by Mayor Richard L. Ruffner.

Budwesky has been acting city manager since February 14 last, following the death of City Manager Emmett C. Dunn, and has repeatedly stated he was not a candidate for the position, but the members of council urged his acceptance since he has filled the position with satisfaction. Budwesky was also city attorney and will continue as acting city attorney until November 8 next when the position will then be filled by election. The position of city manager pays a salary of $5,000 a year, and since his appointment as acting city manager he has received that salary, waiving the salary of the city attorney.

Budwesky is a member of the Alexandria Kiwanis Club, Andrew Jackson Lodge of Masons, the Belle Haven Country Club, the Alexandria Bar Association and the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce.

The city manager's office in the city hall was banked with flowers sent by the organizations with which he is identified, the employes in the city hall, the fire department, the police department and many private individuals.

Old Members Honored By Mt. Zion Church

Luray, Va., Aug. 2.—A special service was held yesterday at Mount Zion Church of the Brethren, three miles southeast of Luray, in honor of the elderly members of the congregation and community. There were 16 persons present whose ages were above 70 years, and 17 whose ages were between 60 and 70 years. The Rev. J. A. Racer, who has just celebrated his eighty-sixth birthday was the oldest person present.

Pistol Range Opened.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 2.—The new pistol range at Constitution Park was opened yesterday when those who will compete in the second annual Cumberland police matches were given a chance to practice on the range where the contests will be staged.

Wharton Heads Va. Nurserymen

Blacksburg, Va., Aug. 2 (AP).—H. B. Wharton, Roanoke, was elected president of the Virginia Nurserymen's Association at a meeting at Virginia Tech today. J. O. Williams, Richmond, was elected vice president, and G. T. French, Richmond, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Speakers on the program included Owen G. Wood, Bristol; Dr. R. P. White; Washington; J. M. Lewis, Cascade, and Mr. French.

CambridgeRegatta Boats Becalmed

Cambridge, Md., Aug. 2 (AP).—Water as smooth as a millpond becalmed ambitious workboat sailors today in the first event of the two-day regatta of the Cambridge Yacht Club.

The chance sail workboats started about 1 p. m. on a four-lap, 10-mile race, and two hours later, when the chance motor workboats lined up for the race for boats under 30 feet, the sailboats had not been able to complete one lap. Officials considered caling off the sailing race.

Motor workboats of more than 30 feet will start the third and final race of the day at 4 p. m.

the Parsons Sun, and his mining interests in Arizona.

His campaign was not so strenuous as that of his opponents but he had the backing of a powerful group of party leaders, including William Allen White, Emporia editor, and former Senator Henry J. Allen.

Asserting he would be no "rubber-stamp" if elected, Reed said the fundamental issue "is the preservation of our system of government with the legislative, executive and judicial branches, each independent as contemplated by the Constitution."

Lambertson Behind.

Ratner, 42, an attorney, assailed the Huxman administration. He advocated easing the tax burden upon farms and homes; a state merit system; removing administration of relief, old-age assistance and all public welfare from partisan politics and a definite plan to aid the Kansas crude oil industry.

W. P. Lambertson, Republican of the First District and only Kansas member of Congress with party opposition, trailed James B. Kelsey a few hundred votes in early tabulations largely because of a large vote given Kelsey in Leavenworth, his home town. Elsewhere over the district Lambertson was ahead.

Doctor Pardoned, Practice Barred

Richmond, Va., Aug. 2 (AP).—Commonwealth's Attorney T. Gray Haddon said today that he had recommended a conditional pardon for Dr. Robert S. Fitzgerald, who served part of a sentence for performing an illegal operation, so that the doctor could be prevented from practicing in Virginia when he was released.

Gov. Price granted the pardon on condition that Dr. Fitzgerald never again attempt to practice medicine in Virginia.

The doctor had served approximately eight months of a three years' sentence received when he pleaded guilty to performing an illegal operation from which a young widow died.

C. Miller Stars, Lions Defeat Cassaco, 9 to 3

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 2.—C. Miller, of this city, sent to the mound in the seventh inning as a relief twirler for the Leetown (W. Va.) Lions, struck out nine Cassco Ice Co. batsmen in a row in a game at Leetown Sunday, the major factor in Leetown's 9-3 victory over the Martinsburg team. Actually Miller fanned ten, but the catcher dropped the ball on the third strike of the tenth man and a put-out was prevented.

News of Capital Night Clubs

By Mary Harris.

How'd you like to hear a probable hit song before it's even been published? So. Then your chance comes tonight, "Vaughn De Leath night," at the Mayfair, when her just written "Don't Let It Break Your Heart" will be sung by Perry Martin, together with such other Vaughn De Leath hit numbers as "Shadows on the Moon" and "An Old Photograph," not to mention "Heigh-ho Silver!"

"Don't Let It Break Your Heart" sounded like a torcheroo at the Mayfair rehearsal. It'll probably be on all radios in a month or two.

A double-header of home-town talent turns in home runs at Bamboo Gardens this week. Walter Long (of the De Longs) was just another Central High School boy a couple of years ago. Now he is a topster in taps. You could watch him all evening with delight. Pretty grand is that Latin tang he puts into his tap version of "Carioca."

Carl Mainford, young magician from George Washington University, does card and ciggie tricks while wearing heavy white cotton gloves. Adagio aces La Rue and Carroll continue with Bamboo this week.

Who'd think that the "Meditation from Thais" offered suitable melody for a beautiful ballroom dance? But Wardell and Dade are using this selection effectively on the Shoreham Terrace. Their "Flirtation Waltz" and "Mechanic Rhythm" also definitely stamp their dancing in the upper brackets. Wardell looks and acts like Ian Hunter.

Hollywood again bounces into mind when Dancer Elaine Thomas whirls out. For she has that Lupe Velez look, also the dancing mannerisms of the Mexican firecracker. On evenings when it does rain (Merci, Jupiter Pluvius) the Flying Sensations will trapeze it on the Terrace.

Marian Dawn is being welcomed back to the Lotus—to the tune of many encores. Her short vacation has been wonderful for the little Dawn. She has a new Lily Langtry hair-do, a flock of stunning new frocks, and is in great voice.

One of the sleekest and larkiest dance turns of the summer is offered by Journet and Severance. Add the Chester Daugherty girls and the Chester Dolphin stunts—and all that's needed for perfection is for emcee Al Norton to break down and do a repeat on "F. F. Flugie" solo dance.

Something like Siamese twins in metier and standards will be the King Cole cocktail room and the soon-to-be-opened Hour Glass in the Trans-Lux Building, except that the Hour Glass will be a complete restaurant. Says Vincent Gallegher, who will operate both spots, "So many King Cole Room patrons expressed a desire for a place of the same type serving food that we decided to do something about it. The Hour Glass is the answer."

When Pine Grove (3 miles below Alexandria on the Mount Vernon Boulevard) opens next Friday evening it will have a tricky sweet-swing unit in "Red" Pyle's ork which played at the Emerson Hotel in Baltimore last winter. "Red" looks like Dick Himber but has redder hair. Vocalist will be Jerry Ralston, tiny brunette with a big voice.

"What'll I do?" is the week-end theme song of Wardman's maitre d'hotel Theon when the crowds begin to pour into the Metronome Room. But the resourceful Theon answers his own question by putting tables out in the hall for the overflow.

Come rain, come heat—it's always the right time for dancing in Glen Echo's Spanish Ballroom. The constant coolness of controlled ventilation is half of the answer. For the rest give credit to Dave McWilliams' music which has been magnetizing Washington dancers for the last decade. A group of new tunes, fresh from Manhattan, will be played at Glen Echo this week.

There's a reason for all the indigo that Angie Rodante (Hi-Hat) puts into her blues numbers. She left a boy friend named Rudy back in Tampa. "No, he doesn't look like Rudy Valentino," says Angie. "He's just a dirty blond, but he looks awfully good to me."

The "White Rajah" who looks into your future at the Rainbow Room, is of Anglo-Egyptian descent, and a psychoanalyst and hypnotist as well as a palmist and astrologist. He says that while most young women want to know about marriage and l'amour, there is a constantly increasing proportion of icy young ladies who are only interested in how their careers are going to pan out.

Smidgeons:

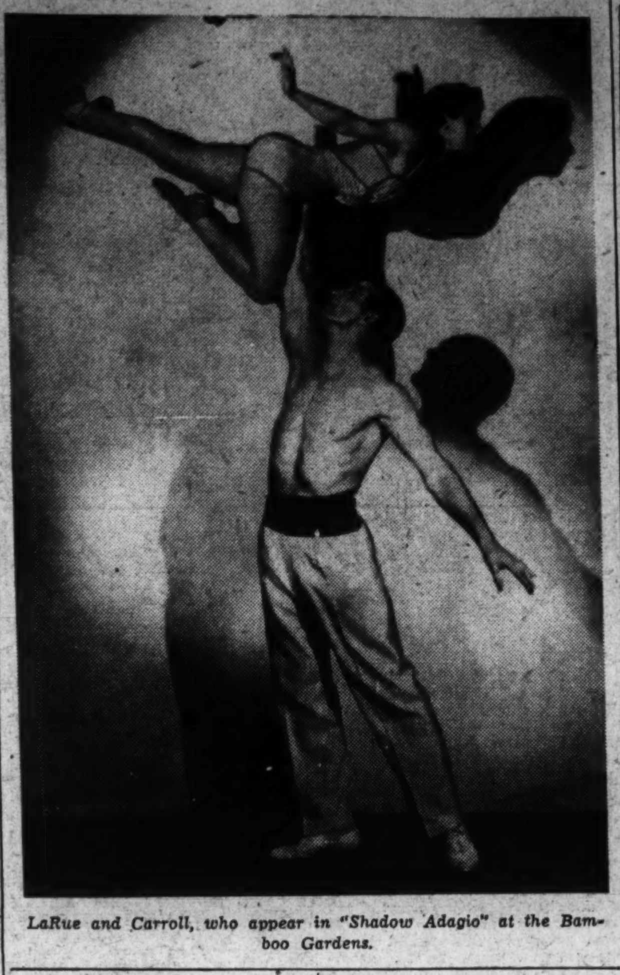
Sid Cowan, star singer of the Mayflower Lounge, can warble in German, Spanish, Italian, French, Portugese and Russian. He finds Italian easiest, French difficult account the vowels, but singing in the Russian gets him down, he vows.

Mary Martin, notable swingstress, recently entertained impromptu (and very cutely, too) on the Powhatan Roof.

De Vaughan Clements, leader of the Three Dees out at Show Boat, used to play with both Meyer Davis and Sidney of the Mayflower.

Jack Torry, orchestra leader at Brinkley's, got his start with a boys' club band in Rochester, N. Y. The youngsters switched their style to dance and played all over New York State and Pennsylvania.

Though Tony Avila is a member of Manuel Bofill's Filipinos, he is known as the "Cab Calloway of Griffith Farms."



LaRue and Carroll, who appear in "Shadow Adagio" at the Bamboo Gardens.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Parents Have Banked Boy's Earnings, in His Name, Since He Was 10; Now, at 18, Can He 'Get the Cash?'

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Ever since I was very young, my parents have taken charge of my birthday money, the money I earned selling magazine subscriptions, the accumulations of my allowance, etc., and when I was about 10 years old, they opened a savings account for me at the bank and put all the money in there. The amount must be well over $200 by now including interest.

* * * *

I was 18 in May. Can I get the money out of the savings account at this age without my parents' consent or knowledge? I don't want the money for anything foolish, like clothes or to run away with, but I do need it. The account is in my name and every cent of the money is. Would I have to have witnesses to identify me, or anything like that? Please answer soon, as the need is rather urgent. Sincerely, A. L. K.

* * * *

DEAR A. L. K.: What you wish to know, I take it, is whether, at 18, you have legally "come of age," so far as the right to handle your own money is concerned. The answer is that you are still a minor, in that regard, until you are 21; and that if your parents established the savings account for you, acting in the role of trustees or legal guardians of your funds, the money continues to be subject to their management until you are 21. This is not to say, however, that minors in every case are prohibited from managing their own money. They may draw on savings and checking accounts when such accounts are established by themselves, in their names—a privilege which banks extend to minors.

* * * *

The regulation procedure for getting your savings would be to have a legal guardian appointed, and, with his consent and co-operation, have the money released to you. If you have urgent need for the money, why not appeal to your parents? If it is a life-and-death matter; one of paying off some creditor or suffering acute embarrassment, they will probably listen to reason. M. H.

What to Wear on Boat?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Will you please help me with the problem of what to wear on a 10-days' round trip by boat from Buffalo to Duluth? I will be on the water most of the time, excepting for a few hours spent in sightseeing in Detroit, Sarnia, Port Arthur and Duluth. I had planned to take a dark print jacket suit, a woolen suit, a sweater suit with extra sweater, a coat, two blue-and-white sports dresses and two summer dresses of a dawn-to-dusk type, suitable for any occasion except strictly evening wear. I do not need evening dresses as I shall not be able to dance or take any part in social affairs.

* * * *

However, I have been told that I cannot wear my summer dresses as I shall be going the last two weeks in August. Is that right? I need to economize and it may mean that I shall have to give up the trip if I cannot wear the light chiffon dresses I already have, for afternoon and dinner. What sort of hat, in addition to a black felt I already have, should I get to wear on board ship with the short, informal afternoon dresses? Brimless hats are not becoming. I would like something I can use on my return to Washington. Sincerely, H. M. A.

A Suitable Wardrobe.

DEAR H. M. A.: The outer garments you have itemized should be all you will need in order to be well and comfortably dressed throughout the trip. The woolen suit, the sweater suit and the two sports dresses with top coat, should take care of your daytime needs (afternoons included), on board ship; the chiffon dresses, (and I should say preferably worn without a hat) will do for dinner wear (although if there is any likelihood that all your fellow voyagers will be "dressing" for dinner, you should take along one bona-fide dress—if you have one); and the dark print jacket suit should prove ideal for inland sight seeing.

* * * *

Concerning the appropriateness of your "short, informal" chiffons for dinner wear, it may reassure you to hear that there is a brand-new variety of mid-summer evening dress appearing on the market, cut to short street length and fashioned of chiffon or lace or other evening-type material. That it is definitely designed for evening wear is evidenced by the cut of the bodice (particularly in back) and the cut of the sleeves. However, if you have an instep, ankle or even floor-length dinner dress, or evening dress with accessory jacket, it would be well to take it along. Even though you don't dance or expect to participate in "social affairs," as an onlooker your dress should fit into the general picture.

* * * *

It is difficult to suggest a hat suitable alike for shipboard wear, and wear with chiffon dresses. Any hat worn on board ship should be of a type that won't blow away with the wind, and your aversion to brimless models definitely limits your choice. However, a hat of the beret-type, if you can find one, would be suitable and useful on the trip as well as later. But perhaps the black felt will suffice. Don't agonize unduly about your wardrobe. So long as you are comfortably and inconspicuously dressed, you should feel no need to apologize to yourself or to anyone else for your choice of garments. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Spectacular Jewelry Suggested in Evening

Paris (U.P.).—Chanel suggests pinning a metal bow of gold foliage on top the evening coiffure. Schiaparelli puts multicolored sequin embroidery on chiffon fine lawn handkerchiefs and then throws them nonchalantly, but protectively, over the carefully coiffed head.

Heavy brass earrings (two big rings interlinked) hang down 6 inches from a slim golden chain and come to rest on the shoulders of a Lelong mannequin wearing a straight black dinner dress. Brilliant clips, instead of clipping on the front of shoulder straps, change to the back and are clipped to each shoulder blade where the shoulder strap meets the low back of a Bruyere black evening dress.

THE ROMANTIC evening gown above is not out of Godey's Ladies' Book, but from the new collection of a Paris designer. Herald of the new fall and winter evening gowns, it indicates that however realistically you may feel about life, you might as well make up your mind to look as quaint and sentimental as possible. It combines fine black silk crepe with a ruffle of pale blue net draped in a panier movement and held with forget-me-nots and black velvet ribbon. The same blue net repeats around the decollete. The wide full skirt is held out by real crinoline hoops.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

ALICE HUGHES.

BLOW HOT, blow cold, it's always Debut Weather here. All over New York high-strung boys and girls are poised to leap into the limelight and take their first public bow. Open the door a crack, and bingo, they're through! The latest pretty child to bust in got her chance in a starlit performance of "Carmen," that robust old warhorse, at our Lewishon Stadium.

The name is Ware—Gloria Ware. Maybe you'll hear it again. She's an attractive 19-year-old girl from over the river in Brooklyn, and has lived the newest rehashing of the dear old Cinderella yarn. Note how the perennial old tale unwound its fateful paragraphs.

Mme. Frances Alda, once the shining soprano of the Metropolitan, and now a teacher of those youngsters she fancies, had listened for hours to her manicurist's stories of her daughter's talents. It seemed that the girl of 13 had plenty of English on her fast ball. "Send her over!" commanded Madame, and mamma did. Alda listened to the young voice, and commanded Gloria not to pipe a note for two more years. Then, at 15, the girl began getting her trill lessons. Another Alda friend and pupil is the rich Mrs. James Donahue, auntie of that B. Hutton girl, if you recall. Mrs. Donahue was thus enlisted as patroness-in-chief, and Gloria was off on the gallop.

So, after three years of scales and things, Gloria was unveiled as Micaela the other evening, and the kid got a four-minute hand after her big aria. Well, you know how the gag goes. The next day a movie company and a radio chain were on the phone, but Gloria said nix. She's willing to stake all these bids against her chance in an opera audition next fall. The name is Ware—Gloria Ware. New York Cinderella No. 123456789. Next, please!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Obviously, I can't name names, but at a brilliant millinery opening, attended by 200 flowers and weeds of the fashion press, the representative of one of the most famous style monthlies sat across from me while the mannequins pranced by. The lady is also a well-known figure in "cafe society," and gets her name in the papers. And this representative of the exclusive "4,000" and of one of the toniest style magazines chewed a wad of gum frantically throughout the show. It was a horrid sight, and was a fine tip-off on the state of American civilization, I'll be bound.

Don't Worry About Hands, Says Zasu Pitts

Actress Uses Only Little Lotion After Washing, No Polish and Rings.

By Genevieve Reynolds.

LIKE THE FACE, the beauty of the hands comes from within. Vivid makeup doesn't give character to the face. Neither does bright polish make expressive hands. It merely attracts attention to them. This is the opinion of Miss Zasu Pitts, stage and screen comedienne, who is appearing in person at one of the local theaters.

Famous for the most expressive hands in Hollywood, Miss Pitts wears no nail polish or jewels on or off stage.

"Personally, I don't like bright polish or jewelry," she said. "See," she exclaimed, thrusting her hands forward, "I have large veins and wrinkles."

"But surely you must exercise and massage your hands," insisted her questioner. "And how would you advise other women to develop expressive hands?"

What to Avoid.

"I use a little hand lotion after scrubbing the hands and that's all the care they get," replied Miss Pitts. "As for other women, massage and polish won't change their hands. However, women with short, fat fingers should avoid bright nail polish and jewelry, for it only accentuates the hands' chubbiness and lack of shape.

"Otherwise," she continued, "tell women to forget their hands. Don't make them hand conscious. Why, if I thought about my hands I'd get so self-conscious I couldn't do anything. I'd just go about wondering what move to make next. So would all the other women who tried to make their hands over.

Gestures Dangerous.

"Gestures should not be affected. Unless it is natural to emphasize speech by moving the hands, it is much better to let them remain quietly in the lap.

"And don't let the hands flutter or flop around unless you are portraying comedy. Off the stage, limp, flopping or jittery hands make a woman look ridiculous. They express only one thing—a lack of poise."

Worry and Fear Will Cause Teeth to Decay

An interesting factor incident to the condition of teeth was brought out last summer at the convention of the American Dental Association. At this meeting it was said that emotions—worry, fear, frustrations and repressions—cause teeth to decay, the reason being that the effect upon the thyroid gland upsets the calcium balance of the body, which in turn has an immediate effect upon the health of the teeth.

The GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay.

Study in Black and White.

I.

How greatly I envy the very definite Mrs. Darby!
Her friends all say she has such a precise, clear-cut mind.
She knows exactly where she stands on all possible questions,
And doesn't hesitate to say so any time, any where.
She either likes people or she doesn't, and shows it,

II.

There is certainly nothing of a hyprocrite about Mrs. Darby.
If you say, "I adored this or that book or movie!"
She will look you in the eye in puzzled wonderment,
And exclaim "You did! Why I didn't care at all for it!"
And if you venture a political opinion, she will say firmly,
"Oh, I beg leave to differ, entirely."

III.

Mrs. Darby prides herself on her power to make quick decisions,
"It is better to be wrong than to be vacillating," is her motto.
And if she makes a mistake, she will valiantly stick by it,
For inconsistency is not one of her jewels of mind.
For persons who say "Oh, I'm sorry!" she has hearty contempt,
They should have done "right" in the first place.

IV.

Yes, I admire greatly the very definite Mrs. Darby,
But at the same time I'm extremely grateful to fate.
That I'm not related to her by blood or by marriage,
And that I do not have to live in the same house with her,
For I prefer to enjoy her stimulating companionship
In small and widely spaced doses.

Hen Party.

No, there are no men here, but I am having a very good time. All of you are looking at me in my cute new doll's hat and my new black satin and thinking, "Mrs. X is certainly a smart looking woman!" And those of you who are still in your summer things are feeling sheepish and awkward and hating yourselves and swearing you will go downtown tomorrow and catch up with me.

* * * *

No, there are no men here, but ladies I am showing you my suntan that I got on the beach at Nassau; and the marvelous beads and the woven bag I picked up in Panama; and this unusual print dress I found in New York before we sailed; and this antique bracelet my husband bought me in Havana; and these sandals from Miami and this Indian charm pin . . . and all of you are thinking, "How nice it must be to go traveling!"

* * * *

No, there are no men here, but I am enjoying myself looking at the figures of all you women who are fatter than I am, and wondering why you don't do something about your hips and throat lines. And I am thinking how funny Mrs. X looks over there in her new black satin and a waist like a barrel, and I can feel your envious glances upon me and sense your unspoken wonderings, "How on earth does she do it?"

* * * *

No, there are no men here, but I am feeling all aglow—telling you how much I know about all the new books . . . and the latest scandals from Hollywood . . . and what is going to happen in Europe . . . and if Roosevelt is going to run again . . . and what is the latest one they're telling around town—and all of you are listening goggle-eyed and thinking "What a bright, clever woman Mrs. Y is!"

* * * *

No, there are no men here, but all things considered, we are managing to have a pretty good time without them.

Avoid 'Fatal Five Pounds,' Is Hollywood Warning

Little Bit of Overweight Can Peril Contracts; All Stars, Including Shirley Temple, Know Tricks of Scientific Dieting.

By Ida Jean Kain.

IN HOLLYWOOD they call it the "fatal fivt pounds," for just that little bit of overweight can stir up the question of a star's contract, and no player takes chances with avordupois.

The reason that five pounds can make such a difference is that the camera has a way of planking an imaginary 10 pounds on the most streamlined figure, and to all appearances it adds up to 15 pounds! You can see why the struggle to keep weight perfect is such a serious business with the stars that they have learned all the old tricks of diet and exercise and are right up to the minute on the new ones.

Although strenuous, tennis will quickly whittle off that excess poundage.

They are, you may be surprised to learn, extremely scientific about their diets. They must keep their weight down to specifications and yet retain a pleasingly curvesome appearance, for hollows are just as ugly as excess pounds. Not only that, but acting is the hardest kind of work and the actress must keep up her strength. She cannot afford to look haggard. That means striking a very careful balance in diet, so that while there are none too many calories there are plenty of vitamins and minerals.

Exercise An Art.

You wouldn't expect the movie stars to know that many of the precious minerals and vitamins dissolve in water and are lost when this water is thrown away. But any number of the stars make a practice of either drinking the vegetable water, or of having their vegetables cooked in parchment bags so that no water is required and the juices are served with the vegetables.

Milk is one of the main items on Hollywood's bill of fare. It is regarded generally as a beauty food and the average consumption is one pint daily, which is just about right for you.

And if diet is down to a science, exercise is down to an art. Every star knows that she can weigh more and look slimmer for daily exercise. Like the rest of us, they have to work a little harder on certain measurments. They keep their waists tiny and not for anything in the world would they get a fat tummy, because when the middle of the figure spreads you look definitely older.

Even Shirley Temple.

This hardship of keeping weight and figure at screen specifications seems to agree with the stars. It is no accident that Dolores Del Rio is said to have the most beautiful figure in the world. Grace Moore must be on guard against unwanted waistlineage and even Shirley Temple, the young darling of the films, has to watch her figure because even if you are only 9 years old you can't look too chubby in the movies. The stars who do not have trouble keeping their weight down are confronted with the problem of keeping it up, and Ginger Rogers, Eleanor Whitney and Eleanor Powell are in this class.

Whether your weight tends to rise or to go below normal, you can control it more easily if you allow yourself only a few pounds' variation. Putting a five-pound limit on your change in weight will save you from the greater harship of a long and rigorous diet.

Ihlders Off to Attend Conference in Mexico

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

More and more it's becoming the fashion with Washington big-wigs to follow the President's pattern and mix business with pleasure when they travel in the summer time. This season, especially, it seems every notable who has left town has had far more than a mere vacation excuse. There are always meetings to attend . . . political set-ups to control . . . projects to observe . . . conventions to speak before, and dignitaries to confer with.

One of the latest officials to be off on a business-pleasure trip is John Ihlder, executive officer of the Alley Dwelling Authority, who will represent the United States at the International Housing and Town-Planning Congress, to be held in Mexico City from August 13 to August 25. He and Mrs. Ihlder sailed Thursday on the Orizaba for Progreso, Mexico, and from there will take the Mayaland tour into the interior before going on to Vera Cruz. From the latter they will proceed by train to Mexico's capital, arriving shortly before the opening of the congress.

According to present plans they will return by train to Washington, getting back about September 1. The congress, of course, will be right down Mr. Ihlder's alley, but it will also be of interest to his wife. While she won't attend the meetings in the capacity of a United States representative, nevertheless she will be on hand to observe what town-planning goes on. Doubtless, she will take particular interest in projects pertaining to gardens, for that is her chief forte. As president of the Georgetown Garden Club, and as owner of one of the most artistic plots in town, she knows the hows and whys of planning and planting as well as any woman in Washington.

Each spring for several years the garden of the Ihlder home on P street has been opened during the annual tours for club and church benefits. Some time ago Mr. and Mrs. Ihlder decided they needed wider range for their gardening ideas, so they acquired a beautiful, sweeping acreage in Southern Maryland on the Potomac River. Recently completed, their country place is called Glynmont, and if reports going the rounds are correct, it will be one of the beauty spots of Maryland by the time the Ihlders get through with it.

Miss Wilkinson to Entertain This Afternoon.

The social calendar now, as everyone knows, is less exciting than usual, but at least it's not a blank. There are still informal parties and fetes for visitors to enliven the lagging schedule. For example, an attractive Californian, now visiting in Washington, will be guest of honor at a cocktail party that promises to be a delightful event.

The hostess will be miss Lucile Wilkinson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Oscar Wilkinson, and the visitor is Miss Alison Thomson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. S. Thomson, of San Francisco. Miss Thomson arrived in New York last week on the Ile de France and came directly to Washington to spend a few days before going on to her home in San Francisco.

She and Miss Wilkinson became close friends last winter in Paris, where both were studying art. During the Christmas holidays, Miss Wilkinson traveled in Southern France, Italy and Austria, then returned to Paris to continue her study until spring. She returned to her home here several weeks ago. Miss Thomson, however, did her traveling about Europe after her winter's studying was over. Leaving Paris, she went to the Scandinavian countries, Scotland and England, sailing from the latter country for the United States. She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority and was graduated from the University of California just before leaving for Europe last summer.

Mme. Moussot Vacationing in New England.

Mme. Octave Moussot, who spent last month in Williamstown, Mass., left recently for Finnapee, Twin Lakes, near New London, N. H. Miss Ann Moussot, her daughter, who the last two months has been on a motor trip through the West, including the Yosemite, Yellowstone National Park, San Francisco and California, recently joined her mother in Williamstown and has gone with her to New Hampshire.

Mme. Moussot, who formerly resided in Washington, made her home for many years in Southern France, near Nice. She returned last year with her daughter and they have been at the Marlborough Apartments, where her sister, Miss Carrie E. Tisdel lives.

MissE. C. Kerbey Becomes Bride

She Is Married to G. T. MacEwan by the Rev Clyde Williams.

Now on a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Traveller MacEwan will make their home in Baltimore. Their marriage on Monday evening at All Souls' Unitarian Church was performed by the Rev. Clyde Williams. Mrs. MacEwan was formerly Miss Elizabeth Caroline Kerbey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McFall Kerbey, of this city, while the bridegroom is the son of J. A. MacEwan, of Keyport, N. J., and the late Mrs. MacEwan.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white organdy styled on princess lines. Her elbow-legnth veil of illusion was draped from a calot cap of ruffled organdy, and she carried a shower bouquet of white gladioli and lilies of the valley.

Sister Is the Maid of Honor.

Her sister, Miss Marjorie Kerbey, was her maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Josephine Kerbey, another sister, and Miss Elizabeth Hall, a cousin, of Hartford, Conn. Their gowns, of the same design as that worn by the bride, were of white organdy, while their veils were fastened by garden flowers similar to those they carried in their bouquets. Little Anne Lloyd, of Austin, Tex., was flower girl. Her frock was of ruffled white georgette and she carried a basket of sweetheart roses and forget-me-nots.

Douglas MacEwan, of Keyport, served as his brother's best man. The two ushers were J. Walter Etchison, of Baltimore, and Mark Daner, of Unionville, Md.

Reception Held At Parish House.

Immediately after the ceremony, an informal reception was held in the court of All Souls' parish house. Following this, Mr. and Mrs. Kerbey entertained the bridal party and the out-of-town guests at their home on Volta place.

When the couple left, Mrs. MacEwan wore a costume of yellow silk jersey with black accessories. Her turban was also of black.

The bride attended the Cathedral School, Washington, and the Garland School, of Boston. Mr. MacEwan, who attended William and Mary College, is an engineer officer of the Bermuda Clipper.

Mrs. Cloman Plans To Sail August 10 On Europe Trip

Mrs. Sidney Cloman, who returned to Washington from the West Coast on July 26, will leave Saturday for New York. She will sail August 10 on the Queen Mary for a month's sojourn in Europe and will return on the Queen Mary to Washington September 28.

Mrs. Cloman, who has been on the West Coast since last April, brought with her Mrs. Samuel Knight, of Burlingame, Calif., and her grandneice, Mrs. Campbell Allen, who has just returned from China. Mrs. Campbell Allen is a neice of the late Mrs. Campbell Pritchard. The party motored across the continent and visited the Yellowstone National Park and the Black Hills of South Dakota en route.

Mrs. Knight will accompany Mrs. Cloman to Europe, but Mrs. Allen will remain in Washington as secretary to Admiral Mark Bristol.

Mrs. Cloman now has as her house guest, her neice, Mme. Fahim Kouchakje, of New York, who came to Washington to greet her aunt on her return from the West, and will accompany Mrs. Cloman as far as New York. M. and Mme. Kouchakje are connoisseurs and collectors or rare antiques and are the owners of the world-famed Chalice of Antioch, which was exhibited for the first time at the World's Fair in Chicago, and is reputed to be the true Holy Grail.

Bermuda Visitor.

Mrs. Higginson Rogers has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Blow in Bermuda for the past few days. Mr. and Mrs. Blow left their home in New York several weeks ago to spend some time at Marine Villa in Warwick, where they entertained Mrs. Rogers.

Miss Franklin Will Be a Bride

To Be Wed the Afternoon of August 17 to Robert King Norton.

Joining the lengthening procession of summer brides, Miss Ellen M. Franklin will be married to Robert King Norton Wednesday afternoon, August 17. The ceremony will take place at the Church of the Pilgrims at 5 o'clock.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Franklin, of this city, while Mr. Norton is the son of Mrs. Fred L. Norton, of Pittsburgh.

Miss Franklin has selected for her matron of honor Mrs. John Norcross. The bridesmaids will be Miss Louise Ford and Mrs. Claude S. Reeder, jr., both of whom are of Knoxville, Tenn.; Mrs. Preston Walker Grant and Mrs. Douglas Porter. The junior bridesmaid will be Miss Betty McKee Reeder, of Knoxville.

Dr. Frederick Norton, of Belle Vernon, Pa., will serve his brother as best man. The ushers include Willard Norton, of Pittsburgh, another brother of the prospective bridegroom; Marvin Johnston, Preston Walker Grant, James Christopher, Harland Walters and James Heilman, of Lancaster, Pa.

The couple, following a reception at the home of the bride's parents on Cathedral avenue, will sail for Bermuda. On their return they plan to make their home in Washington.

Among the many prenuptial parties for the bride-to-be will be a tea on Saturday to be given by Mrs. Frederick U. Haines at the latter's home in Chevy Chase. Last Saturday she was feted at a luncheon at the Kenwood Country Club by Mrs. Herbert Hughes and Mrs. Marvin Johnston.

Mr. and Mrs. John Adams Plan To Make Staunton Their Home

Mrs. Catherine May Leach Becomes Bride in Candlelight Ceremony in Home of Her Father, a Virginia Judge.

Married at a candlelight service Saturday evening in Staunton, Va., Mr. and Mrs. John Dunning Adams at the conclusion of their wedding trip will make their home at Staunton. The wedding is of interest to Washington where the bride has many friends and has frequently visited. Her matron of honor, Mrs. Paul Hays, a cousin of the bridegroom, is a niece of Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State.

Mrs. Adams is the former Mrs. Catherine May Leach, daughter of Judge James Harrison May, of Staunton, and the late Mrs. May. Mr. Adams is the son of Mrs. Felix Tacheir, of San Antonio, Tex., and the late Mr. Tacheir.

The ceremony was performed at the home of Judge May at 8 o'clock with the Rev. William B. Cooke officiating.

Escorted by her father to an altar decorated with palms, ferns, baskets of gladioli and roses, the bride wore a gow. of Banana-lace over satin, fashioned with short puffed sleeves and a full skirt terminating in a train. Her turban of matching satin and lace was caught with a pearl clasp and her slippers, of the same shade, were embroidered with pearls. She carried a bouquet of orchids.

Mrs. Paul Hays, her attendant, was attired in peach satin, made in bouffant style and trimmed with lace, while her turban was of matching tulle. Her flowers were Destra Hibbard roses and Buddelia. Paul Hayes served as best man.

At the reception, following the ceremony, the wedding party was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Julious L. Witz, aunt of the bridegroom. When the couple left on their trip, Mrs. Adams was wearing a traveling ensemble of Hawaiian dust shade with accessories of brown and eggshell alligator leather.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Felix Tacheir, mother of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Edmunds, W. Stuart Ramsey, Mr. and Mrs. Woodward Cooke, and Ernest May, uncle of the bride, all of Washington, and Gen. James A. Anderson and Maj. Herbert A. Jacob, both of Lexington, Va.

Florence Farwell, John P. Broaddus Wed in Arizona

Mrs. Clarence G. Farwell of this city announces the marriage Wednesday, July 27, of her daughter, Miss Florence E. Farwell, to John P. Broaddus. The ceremony took place in Flagstaff, Ariz., where both are attending summer courses at the Arizona State Teachers College.

The bride, a senior at Wilson Teachers' College, is table tennis champion of the District. Mr. Broaddus formerly held the title of District diving champion. He is at present a member of the teaching staff of the Indian Reservation at San Carlos, Ariz.

August 20 Set For Marriage By Miss Young

To Be Married to John Breckinridge by Uncle, Rev. Mr. Clark.

Miss Margaret Elizabeth Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Waldo W. Young has selected August 20 as the date of her marriage to John Breckinridge, son of Mrs. G. C. Breckinridge, and the late Mr. Breckinridge, of St. Louis.

The Rev. Lucius C. Clark, chancellor emeritus of American University and an uncle of the bride-elect, will officiate at the ceremony, which will take place at Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church.

Mrs. Otis E. Sellows, sister of the bride, will be her only attendant. Following the wedding, there will be a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Young attended George Washington University and is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority. The prospective bridegroom, a second cousin of Breckinridge Long, also was a student at George Washington University. He is now connected with the Department of Justice.

Miss Kite Wed In Simple Rite

She Is Wed to G. G. Waugh in Woodside, With Only Family Present.

At a ceremony witnessed only by members of the immediate families, Miss Virginia Kite, yesterday morning became the bride of Goree Gooch Waugh, jr. The ceremony took place at 11 o'clock at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Bartram F. Stiffler, of Woodside, Md. The Rev. Henry Whiting of the Christ Lutheran Church, of Bethesda, Md., was the officiating clergyman.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Clarke Kite, of Culpeper, Va., and Mr. Waugh is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Waugh, also of Culpeper.

After a wedding breakfast, the couple left on a southern trip from which they will return in two weeks to make their home in Culpeper.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Kite was attired in an ensemble of dark blue sheer crepe trimmed in white. With this she wore white accessories and a corsage of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Her matron of honor, Mrs. Bartram F. Stiffler, was dressed in a flowered sheer crepe frock with accessories of dubonnet. J. C. Crigler, jr., of Brightwood, Va., was the best man.

Members of the families who witnessed the ceremony included, in addition to parents of the couple, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Stiffler, of Woodside.

Uriel Sheehy Becomes Bride Of Paul Cook

J. B. Cook Is Best Man; Monica Sheehy Is Maid of Honor.

Wearing traditional white satin, fastened on simple princess lines, with the train falling from the shoulder, Miss Uriel Elizabeth Sheery yesterday morning became the bride of Paul F. Cook. The wedding was performed at 10 o'clock by Mgr. Michael J. Riordan at St. Martin's Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Quade Sheehy, while Mr. Cook is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Cook.

Carrying a bouquet of lilies of the valley and roses, the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Her veil of tulle was draped from a coronet of white velvet.

Sister-in-Law Is Matron of Honor.

Mrs. Bernard P. Sheehy, her sister-in-law, was her matron of honor and was attired in a simple dress of aqua sheer. With this she wore a matching net hat and carried Columbia roses. Miss Monica I. Sheehy was her sister's maid of honor, and was dressed in pink sheer. She also wore a matching net hat and carried a bouquet of Columbia roses and pale blue delphinium. Miss Mary Rita Sheehy, another sister of the bride, served as bridesmaid. She was gowned in yellow sheer and had a bouquet of Queen Mary roses.

J. Bernard Cook was his brother's best man. The ushers were Martin A. Cook, James J. Cook and P. Michael Cook, brothers of the bridegroom, and Edward Edward Walsh Sheehy and Bernard Paul Sheehy, brothers of the bride.

Reception Follows Wedding Ceremony.

At the reception at 2400 Sixteenth Street, the mother of the bride wore French blue lace and a black hat trimmed in French blue. Her corsage was of tea roses. Mrs. Cook, the mother of the bridegroom, wore a dress of dark blue sheer, with matching accessories and a corsage of gardenies.

Following a wedding trip to Miami and Cuba, the couple will be at home after September 1 at Falkland, Silver Spring, Md.

The bride attended Trinity College, while Mr. Cook, a member of the District bar, is a graduate of the School of Law and Accountancy of Columbus University.

Mrs. Putman Back to Aid Home Center

First Supervisor of WPA Project Returns From New Mexico.

Course in Household Training Has Grown at Steady Pace.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Mrs. Ella Newell Putman, who was the first supervisor of the household training project conducted under the WPA of the District, has returned to resume her work in that capacity after a year spent in New Mexico.

Since she started the household training course in the original training center at 1114 O street two years ago, it has grown steadily and attracted wide attention. A second center was established last spring at 400 South Capitol street, and the O street center has just been moved to the Margaret Murray Washington Vocational School for the summer. Every co-operation has been given by the school authorities and the quarters there afford more room and better equipment than was available before. The school also will be available in the winter for evening classes.

The household training project is designed to prepare girls and women for domestic service and to secure them work following the completion of their course. Since the first center was opened in May, 1938, approximately 175 students have been certified and placed. The undertaking is sponsored by the Board of Public Welfare and cosponsored by the Public Employment Center through which the workers are given employment.

There is also an advisory committee, composed of a group of public spirited women of Washington, with Mrs. Lauren Johnson as its chairman. This group is not holding regular meetings during the summer, but some representative of the committee visits the trained centers each week and the work in an advisory capacity is being carried on.

The committee has helped in securing equipment for the centers and has been of great value in contacting the employers of the graduates, to learn whether they are doing well and also to determine the conditions under which they work in their new jobs.

The WPA authorities and sponsors of the project have been working out standards which must be met by those completing the training course and also requirements to which employers must agree. As yet no arbitrary figure for wages has been set. Some of the workers may be able to secure places for part-time work where they could not have full time and there is necessarily a difference in the natural qualifications of those ready for employment, making the wage figure a matter more readily adjusted in the individual case than by a ruling applied generally. Standards, however, are to aid both employer and employe.

When the project was begun, it was only a training program without compensation for the trainees. Later it was reorganized as a demonstration project for the public, illustrating household management, at the same time training, the girls participating in it. In this way it was possible to pay the trainees and to bring into the classes older women of more background—often heads of families. As soon as they complete the course and are placed, it means they are taken off the relief rolls.

All branches of homemaking are included in the training: Cooking, laundry, cleaning, serving, marketing, meal planning, answering the door and the telephone and taking messages. The advisory committee members, in their follow-up work, are able to learn from the employers any points in which the girls lack. In this way suggestions for emphasis on certain points have been helpful in improving the course. In most cases reports of the girls' work have been satisfactory, and public interest in the project has been a contributing factor to its success.

Lesson in Serving at Household Training Project

Lack of Training Keeps Women Out of High Jobs, Says Miss White

Budapest, Hungary Aug. 3.—Too few women hold top place in the field of business and commerce, according to Miss Earlene White, of Washington, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, who addressed the delegates from many countries attending yesterday's meeting of the International Federation in Budapest, Hungary. Miss White heads the delegation from the organization in the United States.

Lack of technical training is the reason there are comparatively few holding high position, Miss White said. "When we talk of the opportunities that women have for education we must remember that while they can be educated, it is not easy for them, even today, to get the special training they need."

"Some of the best hospitals today will not have women internes, so women cannot get the immediate training they should have between the time they win their degree of doctor of medicine and the time they start upon their own professional careers. It is still hard for women to get into the major law firms which so eagerly turn to the great law schools each June for young men who are coming out of college."

It is well to face women's assets and liabilities, said Miss White. "Besides the handicap in getting technical training, there are two other reasons why women do not fill more top places in the business and professional world. First, man has long dominated the world and a woman has to be twice as good as a man in order to have equal opportunity with him. Second, I think we must admit that too often women fail really to train themselves for responsible posts in the field they have elected to make their career.

"Too few women take the extra college degrees that qualify them for high educational and scientific posts. Too often they seem to be contented to stay on the lower rungs of the ladder.

"It has been shown by a recent survey of more than 12,000 of our members on 'Why Women Work' that they work from necessity, that the majority of women who work have dependents either of their own generation or of another generation, and that they work to support themselves and others.

"From other studies made by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, we know that the woman over 40 is no longer a liability in business. We know that she has certain skills and techniques which business needs, but she must learn to apply them wisely and where the need exists. Too often women are content with mediocrity."

Miss White enumerated the gains to the democracy of the United States since woman's enfranchisement. These include a tendency on the part of women to cast their votes for the best man, to insist upon better candidates for public office and to have better polling places, and they show an increased interest in local government.

Miss Abrams Now On Western Trip

Miss Marcella Abrams, of 1307 Randolph street northwest, left Saturday for a two-month trip across the country. Her itinerary will include Banff, Lake Louise, Vancouver, California, the national parks, and other places of interest.

SEVERAL MEMBERS of the club are on extended vacations, a number touring the northwest. Mrs. J. K. Utley, the treasurer, with Mr. Utley and their nephew, is driving to Takoma, Wash.; Mrs. LeVerne Beales, who is first vice president of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs, with Mr. Beales, is on a motor trip into Alaska; Mrs. Margaret Parsons is visiting in California, and Mrs. F. B. LeFever, with Mr. LeFever, is on a motor trip to Canada. Another member of the club, Mrs. Arthur Fowle, with her younger daughter, is spending the summer in France, where they are visiting her mother.

THERE WAS a pajama party and "sing" between 10 and 11 o'clock at Strong Residence of the Y. W. C. A. last night in which nearly 100 of the girls took part. One or two "sings" were held in the spring and others have been planned this summer but rain has interfered. Last night plans were made so the weather couldn't spoil them—outside on the roof if skies are fair, in the recreation room in case of rain, and so the "sing" went on.

* * * *

Miss Mary Burnett, director of music on the "Y. W." staff, led the singing and Strong Residence girls who are members of the Elizabeth Sommers Glee Club, which she conducts, provided the backbone of the chorus. Pauline Whitten was chairman of the committee which arranged the party. Refreshments were served.

Jane Lafferty is chairman of the house council, composed of two representatives from among the permanent residents on each floor. Others are Margaret Iwinski, Marion Town, Frances Cianfrani, Elsa Kaeser, Gladys Young, Rovina Carlo, Alice Gatty and Virginia Johnson. Two members still are to be appointed.

* * * *

SEVERAL of the girls from Strong Residence now are away on vacations. Viola Kay is at her home at Brainerd, Minn., until September 1, and Lenora Green has gone to her home at Mount Holly, N. J., for two weeks; Irene Dickson, of the staff, has just returned from Massachusetts, where she took a summer course at Wellesley College, and Marion Ellsworth will return in a couple of days from a visit in New York.

Grace Free, who has been living at the residence, has left to reside with her parents, who have just moved here from the South.

Bedtime Stories

By Thornton W. Burgess.

The Wise One.

Experience to knowledge leads,
And knowledge is what wisdom needs.
—Old Mother Nature.

Many are called wise who are not wise, and many who are wise receive no credit for their wisdom. Life always has been that way. Who are we to judge the wisdom of our neighbors?

Striped Chipmunk had said something that led Peter Rabbit to suspect that he was planning to leave the old stone wall to make his home elsewhere. "If he does he is just plain crazy," said Peter to himself. "Why, that old wall is the safest place in the world for such a little fellow as Striped Chipmunk. There are any number of holes that he can dodge into if an enemy appears. If he has any sense at all he will stay right where he is. He never can find another place so safe."

Striped Chipmunk was going to move. He had thought it all over again and again and had reached a decision. That decision was based on knowledge and that knowledge had grown from experience. When he had come there to live the old stone wall had been a safe place, as safe a place as could be desired. Striped Chipmunk loved it. He loved to race along on top of it. He loved to dodge in and out among the stones. And way down underneath it he had dug the snuggest and best of homes, so well hidden that for a long time none other knew where it was.

But times had changed, as times will. All of his enemies knew that he lived in or under the old stone wall and it had become a much too popular place with them for Striped Chipmunk's comfort. Then Shadow the Weasel had followed him down under the stones and right into his house and it was only his quick action in dodging into a side room and closing the door by plugging the entrance with sand, and his good fortune that Shadow had raced past, that had saved his life. Ever since then he had had a feeling that some day Shadow would return and that trick might not work a second time. Now there were rumors that Shadow the Weasel had been seen in the neighborhood. That is why Striped Chipmunk had made up his mind to move.

"The safest place to make a home is where others will be least likely to look for it," said Striped Chipmunk, talking to himself. "Yes, sir, that is the safest place. A place that looks most like the kind of a place that I would like is the very place to avoid, for there is just where those who know what I like would look for me. So if there was another old stone wall near enough I wouldn't move over to it. No, sir, I wouldn't move over to it if it was the most tempting stone wall in all the Great World. The safest place is the place that appears to be the least safe, for that is the place that no one will ever think to look.

"The safest place to make a home is where others will be least likely to look for it," said Striped Chipmunk.

"The entrance to this home under the wall is well hidden. Any one looking for the entrance to my new home will look for it hidden under or behind something, so I will make it right out in the open. No one will think to look there for it. Then, too, I'll make it over close to Farmer Brown's house. No one will expect me to go over there so near to where Black Pussy and Flip the Terrier live."

So that is how it happened that Striped Chipmunk, exploring for a place to locate his new home, happened to be in the shrubbery around the front of Farmer Brown's house. He examined every bit of it. The next day, with the first sign that jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun was kicking off his rosy blankets and about to begin his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky, Striped Chipmunk was over in that shrubbery digging. Where he began digging was back close to the house well hidden from any one outside the shrubbery.

He dug with his fore paws and kicked the earth back and out with his hind feet. He is a good digger, is Striped Chipmunk, and not afraid of work. He made that hole no bigger than was necessary for him to move along it comfortably. He wanted to get in deep before by chance that hole should be discovered. Most of his friends, could they have seen him, would have thought him worse than foolish to plan a home in such a place, but actually he was wise. He knew exactly what he was doing.

Mrs. Virginia Thompson, vice supreme guardian of the Order of Job's Daughters, a resident of Hyattsville, is scheduled to be elected supreme guardian at the supreme session here August 23 to 25. The elections take place the morning of August 24. About 1,500 members and delegates are expected to come to Washington for the convention, which will be at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mrs. Thompson, if she is elected, will succeed Mrs. Elizabeth I. Warden, of Owosso, Mich. Mrs. Warden will preside at the session, which will open the morning of August 23, with Mrs. Laura S. Wallace, junior past grand guardian of the District of Columbia; Mrs. Ada M. Kennedy, junior past grand guardian of Maryland, and Mrs. Vera S. New, junior past grand guardian of Virginia, as hostesses.

Participating in the opening program will be Mrs. Harriet E. McArthur, of Missouri, supreme marshal pro tempore; Mrs. Clara L. Backman, of Missouri, supreme chaplain who will present a tribute to the United States flag; Miss Jean towe, junior princess of Bethel 1, Regina, Saskawtchewan, who will give a tribute to the British flag, and Lois Burnett, junior past queen of Bethel 13, in Omaha, a tribute to the bethel colors.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen is scheduled to welcome the delegates to the Capital. The welcome from the Masonic fraternity of the District of Columbia will be given by Eugene E. Thompson, deputy grand master of the Grand Lodge; and from the Eastern Star by Helen D. Robbins, grand matron of the District of Columbia.

The Job's Daughters will be represented on the program by Harriet Schmidt, past honored queen of Bethel 1, Washington; Margarette S. Miller, past queen of Bethel 5, Portsmouth, Va., and Mellie Webb, past queen of Bethel 11, Baltimore.

Ethel T. Wead Mick, founder of the national organization and a guests of honor at the convention, will address the session the first afternoon on "Courage."

A feature of the program the evening of August 24 will be the conferring of the majority degree, conferred on all bethel girls when they reach the age of 20, making them honorary members of the order. Heading the officers conducting the ceremony will be Marjorie Stein, queen of Bethel 1; Virginia Haight, senior princess of Bethel 2, and Lucille McDowell, junior princess of Bethel 3.

Many Entertainment Features Planned

The entertainment will include a visit to the international Eastern Star Temple the afternoon of August 22 and a dinner dance for the Job's Daughters at the Wardman Park that evening. The following afternoon a shopping tour of the large stores of the city will be conducted by local Eastern Star members. The evening of August 23, exhibition drills will be presented by the drill teams of the District and visiting bethels on the lawn of the Wardman Park, followed by the DeMolay-Job's Daughters pageant in the hotel theater.

The morning of August 24, the girls will have a hiking trip to the National Zoological Park, sponsored by the hiking clubs of the Bethels of the District, and that afternoon a bathing beauty contest in the pool of the Wardman Park.

Commissioner Hazen to Welcome 1,500 Delegates to Capital.

The next morning the supreme guardian will place a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier and there will be a trip to Mount Vernon and a tour of public buildings. A farewell breakfast at the hotel August 25 will be attended by the visitors before they depart from Washington.

*X WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 3, 1938

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

CAPITAL CHIT-CHAT: Tourist from Maine, seeing the beckoning guides in front of the White House: "Roosevelt has even the hitch-hikers wearing uniforms" . . . At the Shoreham Terrace: "They say Corrigan has some French blood" . . . By a stenog in the Senate lunch room: "The Government seems to run even better with the boss away."

Kathleen Kennedy . . . no romance?

It must have been slightly embarrassing to Jim Farley when Eleanor Roosevelt complimented him on his excellent prose style in his current biography—since everyone else in Washington knows the name of his ghost writer. (But maybe the First Lady was just pulling Jim's leg.)

• • • •

POTOMAC PIFFLE: One of the slickest lobbies in the Capital is now working for lighting the highways—not as bad as some causes . . . Colleagues have deep respect for Senator Key Pittman, because his wife traveled 1,000 miles by dog-sled to marry him . . . When Homer Cummings, now Attorney General, was scheduled to go to the Philippines as governor general, his wife read 40 books about the islands in three weeks.

I'M A LIBERAL

"—popular definition of a liberal"

Some of the young collegians who poll the populace for Dr. Gallup feel a trifle thwarted because so many of the people they ask questions seem to think that a liberal is a man who gives away a lot of money . . . They think, for example, that Ickes and Harry Hopkins are great liberals.

• • • •

ROOSEVELT JOKES: In this Capital there are so many collections of things that I've decided to collect poems, jokes and anecdotes about President Roosevelt . . . Send 'em in; I'll promise to turn 'em over to the Congressional Library, so good Republicans can go there and laugh themselves sick.

• • • •

At the moment the August wars seem to have broken out not in Europe, but in this star-spangled republic. In Tennessee the Governor threatens to invade Memphis; Iowa's Governor, with the NLRB, and he has the militia out; and the Capital's doctors are embattled with the Department of Justice.

Maybe it's time for everybody to go swimming.

• • • •

Kentuckians in the Capital feel they have solved the Mystery of the Poisoned Jug which laid low their robust, florid Gov. Happy Chandler . . . They think that his hotel room must have been occupied by some hill-billies who accidentally left behind a jug of mountain dew which he, in his innocence, mistook for Garner spring water.

The only flaw in this theory is that real hill-billies never leave anything in a jug.

You've noticed, of course, that there's a touch of pathos about the President's fishing trip . . . For the first time all his sons are married, and too busy with family duties and cares to go along with him . . . Strange and baffling, how boys grow up . . . But soon some of those eight grandchildren will be big enough to go fishing on grand-dad's battleships; if not this term, then maybe the next.

SENSE OF RUMOR: Eight Senators who indorsed a certain cigarette for $1,000 each, and who still get a carton of 200 each week . . . There would, alas, be religious difficulties for a match between Corrigan an' one of Ambassador Joe Kennedy's daughters . . . Over the mint juleps (usually the third one) Maury Maverick is being mentioned as one of the six Presidential secretaries (when and if) with a "strong sense of anonymity." Maury, but with anonymity!

• • • •

RAZZLE DAZZLE: One of the smoothest tricks of this summer's campaigners who have the White House finger on 'em is to ask an audience: "If you were a Senator would you vote for everything the Administration wanted?" Since even the most ardent Rooseveltian is only human and American to boot, he admits in his heart of hearts that possibly he wouldn't.

Which is one reason why democracies, when they know where the next meal's coming from, remain democratic.

REA Chief To Urge U. S. Sue Doctors

Women's Bureau Head Also Backs Fight on Medical Society.

2 to Ask Acting District Attorney to Start Anti-Trust Case.

John M. Carmody, chief of the Rural Electrification Administration, and Mary Anderson, head of the Women's Bureau, today will go before Harry L. Underwood, acting United States attorney for the District, and urge that antimonopoly proceedings be instituted against the District Medical Society.

Inclusion fo the two high-ranking Federal officials in the delegation representing the Washington League for Co-operative Medical Service gives credence to reports that President Roosevelt is seeking a showdown on professional policies of the American Medical Association, national parent of the local society.

The group which will call on Underwood to support the Co-operative League's demands for an investigation of the medical society's "boycott" of Group Health Association physicians also includes Jacob Baker, president of the United Federal Workers, a C. I. O. affiliate; Col. Henry T. Hunt, formerly general counsel of the National Bituminous Coal Commission; F. O. Billings, executive secretary of the league, and A. C. Edwards, secretary-treasurer.

Ask Pine to Sue.

In a letter to United States Attorney David A. Pine last week, Edwards stated the league's grievance against the District Medical Society and requested Pine to launch "quo warranto" proceedings on his own motion or in behalf of the medical co-operative group.

"We hope the district attorney will act on his own motion but, should he decline, we will press for court action ourselves. We believe we have an out and out case.

"With Col. Hunt and two members of the Lawyers' Guild who have volunteered their services, we believe we will have a good array of legal talent to carry on, should the district attorney choose not to act."

Action by Pine Unlikely.

Pine is on vacation and his chief assistant, Underwood, is acting in his place.

That the United States Attorney's office will accede to the Co-operative League's request appears unlikely, inasmuch as essentially the same ground would be covered by the grand jury investigation of the A. M. A. and the local medical society which Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general in charge of the antitrust division, said will be begun in the near future.

"The near future" probably means early autumn, officials yesterday expressing the opinion that it will take at least six weeks, probably twice that long, to gather sufficient evidence for presentation to a grand jury.

G. H. A. Expands to 3,300.

Meantime, officers of the District Medical Society yesterday maintained their silence on legal developments in the "socialized medicine" row. They are expected to make a statement through counsel within a day or two, however.

Group Health Association yesterday announced plans for increasing its dues-paying membership from 2,600 to 3,300. The decision was made by the board of directors, acting upon recommendations of the advisory committee, which is made up of representatives of all Federal departments, bureaus and offices into which G. H. A. has entered.

From New York came a statement by the Bureau of Co-operative Medicine charging that not only in Washington but also Milwaukee, San Diego, Los Angeles and Elk City, Okla., medical societies have exerted pressure against group health enterprises.

Punitive measures which are adopted, the bureau charged, include expulsion of physicians who become associated with medical co-operatives, attempts to obtain revocations of their licenses, withdrawal of their hospital courtesy privileges, social ostracism and harassment by court actions.

Warnings Issued On Forage Crops

Quantities of prussic acid, sufficient to cause poisoning and death to cattle may be present in some forage crops shown in Maryland, Dr L. H. Pelma, of the livestock sanitary service, said yesterday at College Park.

With J. A. Conover, specialist in dairying for the University of Maryland extension service, he listed the crops most likely to produce the poison as sorghum, sudan grass and johnson grass. Choke cherry and wild blackberry are two other plants, they said, which have caused some deaths among cattle and sheep in the State.

A luncheon will be served and an outdoor service will be held under the famous old trees in the church yard in the afternoon. The Rev. Nelson McConomy is rector.

39 Cabs Lose Licenses Till Suit Is Settled

$750 Unpaid Judgment Bans Association From Streets.

Ban May Be Lifted When Insurance for Each Is Arranged.

Thirty-nine members of an unincorporated cab association will have to retire from the taxi business, at least temporarily, under an order issued late yesterday by Edward R. Dean, of the Traffic Department. He requested Maj. Ernest W. Brown, chief of police, to enforce at once a long-pending order requiring surrender of permits, registration cards and tags of the defendants because of an unpaid judgment of $750.

Under the law, the cab drivers had 30 days within which to satisfy the judgment handed down by a Municipal Court jury. When it was not paid the Traffic Bureau sought to force the cabs off the streets under a recent act of Congress.

The suit in which the judgment was given was filed by Fannie Frederick, who obtained a $750 verdict against one of the cabs of the association. She sued each driver in the association as an individual and did not name the association as a defendant.

Threatened with loss of their business, a group of the drivers obtained a temporary injunction against enforcement of the order. Yesterday in District Court, Justice Oscar R. Luhring dissolved the injunction at insistence of James W. Lauderdale, assistant corporation counsel. Immediately the order went out for police to round up the drivers and take their credentials.

It was understood that the judgment was being paid off at the rate of $150 a month. Meanwhile, attorneys for the drivers announced that preparations for securing $11,000 insurance for each cab were under way. Until the insurance is arranged the named drivers will not be entitled to drive their cabs, Dean stated.

The move by the Traffic Bureau to require posting of liability insurance is the first to affect such a large number of cabs.

Wind Shift Saves 2 Youths Adrift 15 Hrs. on Canoe

Betterton, Md., Aug. 2.—Two youths who clung to their overturned canoe for 15 hours after it was capsized by a storm rested tonight and told of their struggles to retain a grip on their craft.

Russell Smith, 20, Haddon Heights, N. J., and Robert Moser, 20, of Camden, N. J., were washed ashore about a mile from the Turkey Point Lighthouse on the Eastern Shore. There they were given food and lodging by the lighthouse keeper before returning to Betterton.

Moser, resting in the home of his mother here, described the long day and night of floating in the bay, of trying to keep from falling asleep and of being blown toward land and then away from it by a shifting wind.

Art—3,648 Square Feet of It—Comes to Filter Plant

Frank Imrey (center) puts the finishing touches on the Civil War episode of a 304-foot mural he is painting for, the San Francisco World's Fair. His subject is the development of the United States Army and will require plenty of paint and more canvas beore he finishes it next December. Working at the right is his assistant, Kenneth Stubbins. By virtue of his connection with the exhibits division of the War Department, Imrey was able to find space enough for the task in an abandoned engine room at the McMillan Filter Plant on Michigan avenue.

Dairies to Sell Milk Here in Paper Cartons

Philadelphia Concern Is Given Permit to Invade D. C. Market.

A disclousure that local dairies are considering selling milk in paper cartons as well as bottles came yestreday on the heels of an announcement that a Philadelphia concern had been granted a health department permit to invade the Washington market with the patented containers.

While officials of District dairies declined to predict what effect the introduction of the cheaper milk holders may have on the price of milk, there were indications that the price may drop below the prevailing 14 cents for first trade products.

An official of Sylvan Seal, Inc., of Philadelphia, which obtained the permit, said that the price of milk in the cartoons for Washington had not been decided, although the company had previously indicated the milk would sell for 13 cents.

Distribution, which may not begin for several weeks, will be through local retail stores rather than via home deliveries. Sylvan Seal, Inc., already is operating in several large Eastern seaboard cities.

The Philadelphia concern's application has been pending since last May, when a hearing was held by the District Commissioners. The health department at that time opposed the permit on the ground that its staff was too small to maintain supervision over the Baltimore plant of the dairy.

Since then, however, the final deficiency act has given the health department an extra $2,300, according to Health Officer George C. Ruhland.

Dr. Ruhland said that the applicant had agreed to all stipulations of the health department and would use milk from farms inspected by District inspectors.

Giant San Francisco Fair Mural Grows in Reservoir Engine Room

Frank Emery, Once Officer in Hungarian Army, Aided by Kenneth Stubbs, of D.C., Doing 3,648 Square-Foot Painting of Army's Evolution.

An abandoned engine room in the McMillan Filter Plant on Michigan avenue has taken on new life during the last few weeks—not as an engine room but as an artist's studio.

The artist is Frank Imrey, Hungarian painter connected with the exhibit division of the War Department. He is working on a gigantic mural painting which, when finished, will cover 3,648 square feet of wall space.

To be hung in the Government exhibit at the San Francisco World's Fair next year, the painting depicts the development of the United States Army from Revolutionary days to the present. Assisting Imrey is Kenneth Stubbs, young Washington artist.

Because of limited space in his "studio," Imrey explained, he works on one 30-foot panel at a time. His subject at present is the Civil War, which marks the midway point of the composition and the end of the first 152-foot section. When he finally puts down his brush he will have covered an area 304 feet long and 12 feet high.

"This is the first time the Army has been depicted this way," he said. "Because people aren't much interested in war these days, I'm dramatizing the subject. It won't be just men in uniforms but will have landscapes and villages. Then those who don't like uniforms can look at the landscape."

The scene on which he worked yesterday could be any Civil War battle in generalized form, he went on. Full of action, it includes an exploding shell, frightened horses, two stretcher carriers bearing away a wounded man, a bugler, a young flag-bearer and two mounted officers. He has included Lincoln in the group, but merely for symbolical purposes, he said.

After Imrey was notified his sketches had been selected for the mural, he took two weeks off to study up on the uniforms and strategy used during the different periods. He didn't have to brush up on mural technique, however, for he has had plenty of experience in the medium.

He is responsible for one of the world's largest murals, that in Convention Hall in Atlantic City More recently he completed 48 decorative panels for the Hotel New Yorker in New York City. Among his most ambitious works is "Little America," the largest cyclorama ever constructed. It was displayed at the Chicago World's Fair and later circulated among theaters.

Imrey's work has taken him far from his native Hungary. After studies at the Royal Hungarian University of Art Teachers and the School of Master Artists in Budapest, he went to Paris for a year. A lieutenant in the Hungarian Army during the World War, he once was captured by the Russians but managed to escape. After the Armistice he did portrait work in China, India and Japan, then came to Hollywood as art director of First National Pictures.

The author of several books, he also contributes to Hungarian and American periodicals.

8 Numbers Game Runners Arrested

Police averted what they beleived to be a smouldering gang war in the District yesterday with arrest of eight alleged runners employed by a Washington numbers operator. They were held for investigation.

According to police, a prominent operator had employed the eight to make independent numbers see the advantage of affiliation, at a price, with his organization.

His method, they said, was to "invite" independent operators to contribute a percentage of each day's take. Those who refused were relieved of the entire day's income by no gentle methods.

Va. Pays $16,233.000 In July in U. S. Taxes

Richmond, Va., Aug. 2 (AP).—Collections by the Federal Department of Internal Revenue in Virginia totaled $16,233,000.44 during July, Fred C. Abbott, acting collector, announced today.

The figure represents a net increase of $192,136.15 over the July, 1937, total of $16,039,244.29, Mr. Abbott said.

Hackers to Escape D.C. Fingerprinting

District officials will make no move to fingerprint taxicab drivers in administering the new liability insurance act, they indicated yesterday. If insurance companies insist upon such procedure, they added, they will not interfere.

Ringgold Hart, counsel of the Independent Taxi Owners' Association, scoffed at the suggestion and said he saw no more reason for fingerprinting taxi drivers than city employes.

Thieves Get $2,330 Haul In Two Apartments Here

A sneak thief entered the apartmen of Mrs. Edna M. Wright, 1519 M street northwest, early yesterday and escaped with $2,150 in jewelry and $30 cash.

Mrs. Agnes R. Kelly, 1921 Kalorama road northwest, also reported her apartment entered and $150 worth of jewelry and silver taken.

Park Policeman Captures Calf Amok in Monument Ground

Hundreds of U. S. Workers Watch Officer Chase Careening Beast, Corral It After It Smashes Automobile on 15th Street.

Hundreds of Government workers on their lunch hour were treated to an impromptu rodeo yesterday, a runaway calf and a motorcycle policeman being the principal figures.

The animal, a Hereford bull weighing about 100 pounds, was dashing through the Monument Grounds when it was sighted by Park Policeman Henry W. Brown. He gave his motorcycle the gun and the chase was on.

Speeding across Constitution avenue in heavy traffic with the luck and agility of a seasoned jaywalker, the calf careened through the Ellipse with Brown in pursuit up flanking Fifteenth street. Suddenly veering toward the street, the animal crashed headlong into a parked car, but was unhurt.

Brown grabbed the calf, but it got away. He remounted his motorcycle as the animal turned into E street, violated a red light and turned down Fourteenth. Noticing the ramp leading down into the Commerce Building's underground garage, the fugitive from a butcher's knife headed down the grade.

It leaped a loading platform easily and plunged into the Commerce Department stockroom, raising havoc among employes. Policeman Brown, however, was right on the runaway's tail and in a few minutes the frightened, panting animal was subdued.

Last night the calf occupied a cozy stall at the Animal Rescue League. The policeman thinks it escaped from a livestock truck in the vicinity of Fourteenth and Maine avenue southwest.

17 Youngsters May Miss Needed Vacations if Contributions Halt.

Going! Going!

Eighty-three children are going to camp!

It would be gratifying to be able to say: "Going! Going! Gone!" because that would mean all 100 boys and girls to whom The Post has promised a two-week camp vacation had been provided for.

As it is, 17 may be left behind. To avoid this tragedy, only $240 is needed. The sum is small when you consider the health and happiness it will bring to 17 young lives.

The Post Camp Fund

For $240.

17 Children Can Go to Camp.

And The Post is asking its readers to help these children by contributing to The Post Camp Fund. Enough money already has been sent in to provide a cool two-week vacation for 83 boys and girls. If you want to help those who will be otherwise left out fill in the form below.

45% of City's Eligibles Fail To Ask Parole

Board's Annual Report Hints Publicity Fear Cuts Applications.

130 Released in Year, Only 7 Rearrested for New Crimes.

Forty-five per cent of the District prisoners eligible for parole did not apply for it last year, the parole board disclosed yesterday in its annual report. The records of those who were paroled, on the whole, were creditable.

Fear of publicity and bad records were blamed by the board for failures to take advantage of parole privilege. The report suggested publication of the names of parole applicants be discontinued except in the case of "those in whom there is real public interest."

The board renewed its annual request to the District Commissioners for a larger staff and cited the "pitiful economic situation" as responsible for increasing difficulties in finding jobs for parolees.

During the past fiscal year the board considered 744 applications for parole, granted 27 per cent and rejected 73 per cent. Of the 130 men paroled, only 7 committed new crimes that could be labeled "serious," the report stated.

Of 368 prisoners on parole, 44 were re-arrested for violations of laws or rules of the board. Out of 614 prisoners on conditional release, as contrasted with parole, about 20 per cent, or 127, were returned to prison.

The board renewed its plea for a separate budget, and it was disclosed the proposal is now being studied by Corporation Counsel Seal.

Specifically, the board wants two additional field officers, one assistant institutional parole officer and an additional stenographer.

Transit Firm Calls D. C. Claim 'Unfair'

Answering a suit brought by the District government, the Capital Transit Co. yesterday asserted it would be "grossly unfair" to impose upon it the cost of tearing up tracks on P street between Twenty-eighth street and Dupont Circle. The company contends it pays its fair share of paving costs in taxation.

The District suit asked $14,927, which it alleged was the cost of doing the work that should have been done by the transit firm. The District declared it had repeatedly requested the company to tear up the abandoned tracks and repave the street.

New Playgrounds To Be Open Today

Three additional playgrounds, the first of 13 to be made available this week, will be opened today. The move for additional play areas was initiated after several children were killed or injured by automobiles.

Lewis R. Barrett, co-ordinator for the District Public Recreation Committee, said playgrounds opened today will be those at Oyster School, Twenty-ninth and Calvert streets northwest; the Truesdell School, Illinois avenue and Ingraham street, and Fort Stanton Park, Seventeenth and Butler streets southeast.

Taylor Will Knock You Dead Knockin' 'Em Dead on Screen!

As a Prizefighter in 'The Crowd Roars,' Star Dispels All 'Pretty Boy' Innuendos; Hundreds Auditioned for 'Going Native' Revue; Theater Notes.

THE ladies and gentlemen (sic) of the drama desks got more action than they had bargained for at yesterday's weekly preview in the Twentieth Century-Fox projection room.

BELL.

We made the cross-town trek to New Jersey avenue and K street at 1:30 expecting to view Walter Wanger's widely-heralded production of "Algiers," featuring Charles Boyer, the glamorous Sigrid Gurie and the smouldering Hedy Lamarr, among others. What we saw was Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Crowd Roars" and the strain on the collective nervous systems was something terrific.

I suggest that those astute cauliflower merchants, Daddy Joe Turner and Master Goldie Ahearn proceed at once to get out an injunction against the showing of this film, because they never can hope to stage any boxing bouts that will compare with the ones that punctuate the progress of this glove-swinging saga of the prize-ring, undercover gamblers and love.

"The Crowd Roars," as everybody probably knows by now, is M-G-M's latest strip of celluloid testimony to the fact that Robert Taylor is nobody's lily-white "beauty." He certainly isn't in this one. He looks and acts like a professional "pug" who could take care of himself—and the other fellow—in any man's ring.

If "A Yank at Oxford" was looked upon by the public as conclusive evidence that Taylor is a young man of athletic prowess who can "take it," the present item will set him down in memory as a stick of dynamite who can blast his way through to the top ranks of the light heavyweights without turning a hair. He ducks the championship in favor of matrimony in the last reel, but there is no doubt whatever that he could have made the champion look like a rank set-up, if it hadn't been for Maureen O'Sullivan.

There is a tincture of reality in "The Crowd Roars." Early in his career, Tommy McCoy causes the death in the ring of one of his best friends, a former champ trying to make a comeback, which inevitably must suggest the actual tragic incident involving Max Baer and Frankie Campbell. In the unblemished perfection of Tommy's boxing and his retirement while still in his prime, there is, too, something more than a vague suggestion of the career of Gene Tunney. Then there are glimpses of Maxie Rosembloom in training in a gym, Clem McCarthy broadcasting blow-by-blow descriptions from the ringside, Madison Square officials performing their appointed functions in the ring and other touches of authenticity to make the whole riotous fable seem vastly more real than it is.

And through all this, Robert Taylor looks like a real fighter. I have seen many a professional beak-buster crawl through the ropes looking nowhere near so fit. But, for the additional palpitation of his goggle-eyed feminine admirers, it also is made possible for Bob to appear in white tie and tails, which he does easily and handsomely (Gene Tunney again?) The lad seems to have everything any fluttery femme could ask.

But do not for a minute imagine that he "steals the picture" as easily as he does his fights. That would be practically impossible, what with the knockout performances turned in by Frank Morgan, Edward Arnold, Lionel Stander, Nat Pendleton, William Gargan, Gene Reynolds—the "other youngster" in "Love Finds Andy Hardy"—and a few others, not forgetting Miss O'Sullivan.

"The Crowd Roars"—and I still think that title was filched from the late Jim Corbett's series of articles called "The Roar of the Crowd"—in short, may be relied upon to put any audience down for the ten count—smelling salts, or no smelling salts.

And about that sudden substitution of features at the preview. "The Crowd Roars" originally was penciled in to follow "Love Finds Andy Hardy," on the screen at Loew's Palace, and then was taken out and "Algiers" put in its place. Now "Algiers" has been set back and the Taylor vehicle goes in where it was in the beginning as the next attraction at the Palace. That leaves Hedy Lamarr still glamoring for future scrutiny and I, for one, trust anticipation will not exceed realization.

A shorter subject preceded "The Crowd Roars" yesterday, in Pete Smith's serio-comic exposition of the development of modern medical "Anaesthesia." In view of the early experiments with anaesthetics, this whimsical little conceit almost would make an operation a pleasure!

There seems to have been no reason why the management of Loew's Capitol Theater should have entertained any fears concerning a dearth of local talent to people its sixth edition of the "Going Native" revue to be staged later this month. To date there have been between 250 and 300 applications for auditions by aspirants seeking a part in this hardy annual.

A surprising diversity of talents was disclosed at the first audition, held in the Willard Room of the Willard Hotel Monday night between the hours of 8 p. m. and 1 a. m., at which the drama desks of the five local papers sat in with Carter Barron, Howard Burkhardt, manager of the Capitol; Phil Lampkin, Chester Hale, noted dance director; John Hickey, his assistant; Gene Ford, down from New York for the tag end of the proceedings, and others. The drama desks, of course, have no voice in the final selection of participants or any aspect of the formulation of the revue, but were invited to be present merely as more or less innocent bystanders, privileged to make notes, observations and suggestions for their own amazement.

Out of an astonishing number of applicants, who had their turns before the microphone set up in the air-cooled Willard Room—there were 100 or so of them—your reporter spotted what he deems 4 sure-fire hits and some 21 others who "have something" that could easily and quickly be converted into enjoyable entertainment.

It seems to me that John High Smith and his quintet of colored wizards of rhythm would stop any show. The same is true of Sylvia Kaplowitz' piano-accordion octet, and in only slightly less degree of Lee and Cody O'Neill, tap dancers, and the Lyons Twins, two exceedingly provocative young women, who tap dance to their own saxophone duets.

Sopranos, tenors and barytones were present in profusion, all seeming to sing the same songs, and there were impersonators—most of them bearing down on that "My friends" business—rapid sketch artists, unicyclists, prestidigitators—Carl Mainfort, the George Washington University magic man, is getting to be almost as good as Cardini himself—acrobatic dancers—Rita Zuch was the best—burlesque comedians, hillbillies, pianists, instrumentalists and whatnot.

The conspicuous lack was in the department of comedy. "Going Native" could do with more comics than have put in an appearance so far—unless some showed up last night. The second audition was held last evening and there will be as many more as are necessary to give everyone who has applied a hearing. Out of this welter of ability of unsung Washingtonians there ought to come enough genuine talent to cast four revues, let alone one.

With an intervening interval of propitious weather conditions, work has progressed rapidly on the construction of E. M. Loew's "drive-in," open-air motion picture theater, down on the Richmond highway below Alexandria, Va. Barring further inundation, it is the expectation to dedicate this innovation in al fresco entertainment some time next week. The exact date and other pertinent facts will be made public within the next few days.

In the meantime, the Cross Roads Theater, at Bailey's Cross Roads, Va., has been doing such a thriving business that it has been decided by the management to establish a midtown ticket office for the convenience of patrons. Such an office has been set up at the A. A. A. headquarters, Seventeenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. Tickets went on sale there yesterday and will be obtainable there henceforth for the remainder of the season.

Paris-and-the-Apple Note.

If it isn't one thing, it's something else—and so away to the watery "Miss Washington" judging. And again, m. t. L. h. m. o. o. s., if you know what I mean.

Vet Dance Kibitzer Kibbee Succumbs

The last time Guy Kibbee danced was at his own wedding and he tripped a mean schottische on that occasion. Then he decided to leave dancing to others and, although he has appeared in more musical motion pictures than any other character comedian in Hollywood, he held religiously to his purpose—always as a "wallflower"—until he was cast in "Rich Man, Poor Girl," with Robert Young and Ruth Hussey. Kibbee had to dance with Sarah Padden in a cafe scene and Director Reinhold Schunzel had to call in George King, studio dancing master, to teach him to waltz.

Broadway Snubbed To Win Film Lead

Bonnie Bannon, showgirl who turned down Broadway musical comedy offers to stay in Hollywood and study for a dramatic career on the screen, was rewarded with the lead in a motion picture.

The brunette beauty is to play the heroine in the first "Our Gang" comedy, "The Little Ranger."

Born on a California farm, Miss Bannon went to Hollywood as the winner of a beauty contest and started her career as one of the glorified girls in "The Great Ziegfeld."

Careful, McCarthy! It's Not Being Done!

BLOCKHEADS RUSH IN WHERE ANGELS FEAR TO TREAD, or so that swanky young Lothario, Mr. Charlie McCarthy, would give us to understand. The object of his daring is the startled Rita Johnson; of his flashing smile, Ann Sheridan. All three appear with Edgar Bergen, naturally, Adolphe Menjou, Andrea Leeds and others in "Letter of Introduction," coming next to the screen at RKO-Keith's Theater.

In Hollywood

With HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 2.—These film stars who are about to tour the country to whip up patronage for the Greater Moving Picture Year should take a trip from that lanky Texan, W. Lee O'Daniel, who won the nomination for Governor in the Democratic primary. He's beat his competitors by traveling with members of his family and a hillbilly band. That's showmanship.

HEDDA HOPPER

And there'll be plenty of that at Del Mar racetrack Friday when Bing Crosby previews his latest picture there, "Sing, You Sinners," after the races. Then they take the air, starting with a community sing, and Bing's theme song for the track: "Where the Turf Meets the Surf." And a floating microphone will ask the audience what they actually thought of the picture and Bing, which may be dangerous.

A few years ago, Ed Wynn used to come right down off the stage and join the audience, asking them how they liked the show and his performance.

The afternoon I was there, he tackled a dignified matron who looked as though she had married Father Knickerbocker way back in the nineties — but without gaiety. Ed asked the usual question, oh, so sweetly.

"I didn't like it," she replied.

"Which part, Madam?"

"None!"

"But you liked me?"

"I thought you were terrible," said she, "I got in by mistake, thought I was going to another play."

Well, poor Ed followed her right out to her car. The final blow came when, still trying to make her change her mind, he caught his hand in the door as the chauffeur slammed it.

The M. G. M. camera crew who traveled 16,000 miles to Dutch New Guinea for scenes of Djuka Negroes' religious ceremonies and dances for "Too Hot to Handle" picture, made a great mistake by allowing the natives to listen to the playback of the sound recording. When they heard themselves, they cried out that something had been taken from their souls. Many ran into the bush and refused to come out again.

It's a little premature to predict that Joan Crawford will sing opposite Nelson Eddy in a coming picture. Nelson made his first appearance with Joan in "Dancing Lady." He sang one song—but didn't get his name on the screen. That was Fred Astaire's first picture. Fred did one dance. Well, it's an upsy and downsy business, my buddies.

Ann Shirley and Ann Rutherford both tested for the woman's part in "Northwest Passage," but it needs an English accent. Why not try Margaret Lindsay—she's got it. Also Maureen O'Sullivan. An eight-week location trip with Bob Taylor and Spencer Tracy is something to look forward to. I know one who'd do it for nothing.

The sweetest love story in town is between Janet Gaynor and Adrian. And if Hollywood will only keep its d—— spotlight off them, it will remain so. I dined with them the other night. Also there were Rob and Florence Wagner, world travelers who own and edit "Script," and whose contributors worked overtime, free, to give them an eight months' vacation.

Florence told about falling off a camel. She didn't want to get on the beast in the first place. He gave her a dirty look—she knew he didn't like her, and he proved it!

And Rob, accidentally, met a high dignitary of the church in Rome who gave him a startling picture of the goings-on in Italy. Later Rob discovered this man was one of the Pope's private secretaries!

There, too, was Manchester Boddy, owner of the Los Angeles Daily News, who's going through the animal kingdom on his ranch. He started with angora rabbits and pheasants, but has switched to hogs and baby beef. And Princess Suva Guri, who dropped a gentle bombshell by expressing her candid opinion of our Hollywood ladies. I thought for a moment some of the guests would go into action—but all ended peacefully, worse luck.

The Sylvan

"Erin go bragh" was the word for it last night on the grassy mound that is the Sylvan Theater where the Blackfriar Institute of Catholic University presented Lady Gregory's fantastic comedy of "The Dragon."

With its mythological, romantic setting in the Eire of long ago, the play was another revelation of the theatrical possibilities of this unique outdoor theater in the shadow of historic Washington Monument. With an almost "Our Town" atmosphere the Lady Gregory play, written in 1920, reveals imaginative use of nonexistent walls, doors and off-stage positions. In the beautiful setting of waving trees on a warm night, the play at first puzzled and then amused its audience of 4,000.

The story is that known from hoary Greek legend of the beautiful princess who must be devoured by the frightful dragon to free the people of her father's kingdom from devastation. It has been foretold in Ireland by a grizzled astrologer, Fintan, and is fought by her gastronomically enslaved father and her plotting, scheming stepmother. To protect her is an adoring nurse and the inevitable White Knight of the legend, Manus, King of Sorcha, disguised as a wandering cook.

Margaret Mary Edmonston, as the faithful nurse, was the most finished of last night's performers, seeming for all the world like Juliet's nurse of blessed memory. Her brogue was convincing. As father, the King, S. Carlton Ayers won many laughs with his Frank Morganesque whines and effective appetite. When he lay down after a hearty meal he took his brogues off. Constance Haugh was a haughty queen and Marie Dunn the hapless princess. A fine knight was Jack Hurley, as Manus, who saved the beautiful princess from her first threatened death. Jack Sherry was the Prince of Marshes, whose magic saved the princess her second death. His two chatteringly effective aunts were Madeline Spraker and Geraldine O'Haire. Leo Brady was an eerie Fintan. In the title role Gordon Potter licited almost as much fright on his actual appearance as in the unseen, but so effectively described, fight in the billowy waves.

Ralf Nicholson, Leo Werner, David Brown, Parker Dupler, Joseph O'Connor, and Lucille Hogan completed the company which had been directed by Milton McGovern in an interesting, although occasionally ineffective style. R. L. C.

'Our Gang' Learns Jiu Jitsu, Boxing

Warning! Don't try to get tough with members of "Our Gang."

The gang is learning the intricacies of jiu jitsu, boxing and wrestling from Bob Roy, jiu jitsu expert and former Midwest wrestling champion, now acting as technical adviser on their current comedy.

After two days of practicing holds between scenes of their first picture at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Alfalfa, Porky and Buckwheat have mastered the art of disarming an opponent with a knife, gun or club.

New York, Aug. 2.

A NOTED ACTOR consulted an attorney this week, seeking information on how to collect on a $25,000 judgment he holds against a Broadway producer. "Subpena him to City Court for examination in sub-proceedings," the lawyer advised. "Then ask him what he did with the $30,000 he earned last year, and make him give details . . . Then ask him how he disposed of the $20,000 he inherited from his father . . . Then ask him what happened to the $52,000 he made from selling the movie rights to his hit show . . . Then, sort of nonchalantly, ask him what time it is . . . He won't be suspicious, and he'll take out his watch . . . as soon as he does that—grab the watch!"

MONSIEUR GERHARDT, the bearded young writer, sailed for Italy, to secure color and background for his work . . . Gerhardt is one of a group of young writers sponsored and managed by Madeline Boyd, the agent . . . All of these youngsters must grow beards—for a very good reason—before Mrs. Boyd will help further their careers . . . The spite-reason relates to the fact that Mrs. Boyd once was married to Ernest Boyd—whose beard is one of the most famed in writing circles.

HARVEY D. GIBSON tendered a benefit show at his Long Island estate, the proceeds to be delivered to the Lenox Hill Settlement House . . . The arrangements committee, with a view to contrast, hired Midgie Parks, the bubble-dancer at Jimmie Kelly's. Gibson was so pleased at this idea that he sent his private yacht to pick up Miss Parks at the East River landing and convey her to his Long Island estate . . . Midgie's friends, hearing of these elaborate plans, chipped in and brought every piece of jewelry they owned for Midgie to wear . . . That's why Midgie Parks, Greenwich Village bubble-dancer, wore more diamonds to Mr. Gibson's party than all of the society notables there combined.

JACKIE OSTERMAN is a picture star this week. He appears at the World Theater in the British film, "Unwanted Men," which was made in London several years ago . . . When Osterman reported for work and met Herbert Wilcox—who had signed him as a comic for $3,000 a week and then placed him in a dramatic role—the film producer asked Jackie: "I don't know what to do. Tell me—to what British star would you compare yourself?" . . . "Well," the comic replied, "I'd say Beatrice Lillie—if I had a haircut, and if she's British."

The then unknown Charles Laughton, who is starring in that picture, practiced the dying scene 12 times, each time varying his portrayal of death agonies. He asked Osterman to observe and criticize him. "First, tell me," Laughton asked, "did you ever die?" . . . "Yes, once," was the answer, "at the Riverside Theater—at a Monday matinee" . . . Despite the huge salary being paid him, not a single line of publicity was issued by the studio regarding Osterman's employment. London just wasn't interested in his activities, and the comic squawked loudly but to no avail . . . At the end of the third week he strolled down Piccadilly Circus. A young lady approached, smiled invitingly, and said: "Hello, Toots. Wotcha doing?" . . . "I'm doing a picture for Herbert Wilcox," Osterman shouted. "Thank Gahd somebody asked me!"

ESTELLE TAYLOR, whose forebears were Quakers, returned to visit some of her relatives in Pennsylvania . . . One of Miss Taylor's cousins, a youngster of 14, was displaying his knowledge of matters concerning Broadway and its modern customs . . . When the star related a fanciful tale, the lad furrowed his brow quizically and snapped: "Sez thee."

HYPE IGOE, the sports writer, discovered the loss of his tickets while at the press gate of a sporting event. The gateman was adamant in refusing permission to pass the gate . . . Hype was disconsolate, adjourned to the washroom nearby, and hit upon a novel plan. He dislodged from a soap faucet the knob on which the word "Press" appeared, placed it in his lapel, returned to the press gate, and walked right in!

HARRY RUBY, together with a group of film stars, staged a baseball game in Hollywood the other day, the proceeds to go to a hospital in the vicinity. Ruby invited George Jessel to play, and as an inducement told him that Eddie Cantor would play right field. Jessel, ever critical of Cantor's commercializing, objected strenuously . . . "But George," Ruby protested, "Cantor will draw a crowd" . . . "I know," Jessel agreed, "but somebody will bat a ball, Cantor will catch it—and then sell it!"

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

St. Louis, Mo.
Mr. Whizzer White,
General Delivery,
Denver, Colo.
Dear Whizz

That was a nice arrangement you made, delaying your Rhodes scholarship at Oxford for a few months so you could take the $15,000 and play football for the Pittsburgh Pirates in the professional league. I kinda thought you would.

POVICH.

It's nice to be all-American and a Rhodes scholar, Whizz, but it's nice to have $15,000 bucks for future reference, too. What I mean to say, Whizz, is that that's a lot of money, and in the Acropolis Lunch will get you much more than your all-American clippings and Rhodes scholarship. Counter men are funny that way. If you want a cup of coffee, all they'll insist on, besides your clippings, is a nickel.

This business of retiring at the peak of one's fame is all right, Whizzer, if you can afford it. But I hear that you were waiting on tables in summer school this year, so I guess you can use the dough. Gene Tunney retired at the peak of his fame, to be sure, but he retired along with a couple of million he had in the bank. Don't forget, his check for the last Dempsey fight was for $990,000. And Tunney, if you remember, married a basketful of millions when he took Polly Lauder as his wife.

• • • •

That $15,000 the Pittsburgh Club is paying you, Whizzer, looks to me like a pretty soft touch. Perhaps you don't appreciate it, but you'll be the highest-paid player in professional football by many thousands. That's pretty good for a kid who hasn't made good in pro football yet. Sammy Baugh, the hottest thing in the league—a guy who has already made good with the pros in a big way—didn't ask for more than $12,000.

Its Lost of Money.

It's a lot of money, as I was saying, Whizz. For example, there isn't a fellow on the Washington baseball team, including Bucky Harris, who is drawing down that kind of money. And they must play the game for seven months, including training, while you get yours in three months.

I don't blame you, either, Whizzer, for declining to play in the College All-Star game against the Redskins at Chicago on August 31. There isn't much in that for you—a few hundred bucks at the most—and there's no sense of taking a chance in getting hurt. . . .

Besides, you wouldn't be such a big attraction for the Pirates if you failed to go well in that game against the Redskins. And if you think the Pirates are paying you that 15 grand because of your football ability alone, Whizz, you are quite naive. The Pirates want you because, among other things, you were the hottest thing to graduate from the football camp last season and the Pittsburgh club, a dull, colorless outfit, needs a gate attraction.

And that game in Chicago would be kinda tough on you, too, Whizzer. Those Redskins are awful bruisers and they want to win that one, just to add the last finishing touches to their greatness. They won't be pulling any punches, and you might get hurt. They wouldn't be too sad about it if they laid you out for a spell.

I only hope, Whizz, that you give that contract a double once-over before you sign with the Pirates. It would be too bad for you to sign and then discover that you had scribbled your signature on one of those regular form contracts. That kind has a 48-hour clause. If you aren't familiar with that, Whizz, I'll tell you about it. It means that on 48-hour notice they can fire you, give you the sack.

• • • •

You wouldn't want to sign that kind of a contract, Whizz. The Pirates need you, else they would not be offering that kind of dough. You can hold out for a no-release contract and collect your 15 grand. But, of course, as a guy who could qualify for a Rhodes scholarship, you are probably smart enough to figure that out.

Here's the Dope.

It's quite a compliment the pro leaguers are paying you, at that, Whizz. After all, the books are filled with the names of big-shot college stars who were awful flops as pros. And next year, if you didn't make good with a splash this season, you wouldn't be getting that kind of money.

There are a few things you ought to know about the pro league, Whizz. I don't mind telling you that they play just a bit different kind of football than the college boys. For one thing, they hit awfully hard. They hit the ball carriers awfully hard, especially. And you're apt to get kicked in the face if you are going too well. That comes under the heading of accidents."

And look out for a guy named George Musso, who plays in the line for the Chicago Bears. He doesn't have much respect for you big-shot college stars. Ask Sammy Baugh, he knows. He knows Musso will get you if you don't watch out.

I just thought I would tell you a few of these things, Whizz. If you don't get this letter, let me know.

Yours in sport, S. L. P.

Redskins Sign Sam Baugh to Three-Year Contract

Sammy Baugh Signs Contract With Redskins

All the management of the Washington Redskins would say when Sammy Baugh signed a three-year contract here yesterday was that the papers called for the highest salary in pro football. Though the amount was not announced, Sammy seems happy above as he signs. Coach Ray Flaherty is leaning over his shoulder.

Passer Gets Highest Wage In Pro Grid

Club Owner Says Sammy's 3-Year Salary Is Unprecedented.

By Jack Munhall.

Slingin' Sammy Baugh's holdout squabble which had raged incessantly since last January came to an amiclable and sudden ending late yesterday afternoon when football's greatest forward passer scrawled his prized signature on a three-year contract with the Washington Redskins.

Summoned from Baltimore where he is playing baseball with Rochester by a telephone call from Redskin Coach Ray Flaherty, Baugh hurried here about 2 p. m. After a short conference with Flaherty and Prexy George Marshall in a local hotel the trio went to the Redskins' Ninth street office. There it was announced by Marshall that Baugh had signed over to the Redskins rights to "all his athletic endeavors" for three years at a sum which Marshall termed "unprecedented in the history of professional football."

Although the actual salary figure was not revealed, Marshall declared it represented a "substantial increase" over the $7,500 paid Baugh last season when he led the Redskins to the National Professional League championship. He stated that Baugh's new pay is not as much as Red Grange received for one year during his peak, but that for a three-year period it constitutes a new high.

Four Still Unsigned.

With the addition of Baugh, only four Redskins are unsigned. They are Wayne Millner, regular end; Eddie Britt, a back; and two rookie ends, Bob Masterson and Bill Moore. Millner has agreed to terms and is expected to sign a contract shortly.

"But the biggest part of my worries is over," jubilantly announced Marshall. "You can tell Washington football fans for me that this is the greatest thing that could have happened to local football. This 3-year exclusive rights contract guarantees that Baugh will play with the Redskins until the end of the 1941 season. Also that he cannot accept any coaching offers or even play baseball without our permission during that period."

Asked if Baugh would play in the All-Star Game in Chicago on August 31, Marshall replied, "Certainly. Baugh reports here for practice August 10 along with the rest of the team."

As happy as was Marshall at the signing of his "football meal ticket," Coach Flaherty and Baugh, himself, were no less exultant.

Glad to Have Him Back.

Flaherty said: "I'm certainly glad to have Sammy back. The knowledge that he will be with us leaves me free to make plans for next season. And the 3-year contract is a break all round. I insisted on it and Mr. Marshall was quick to recognize its advantages both to us and Washington fans.

"The last time Sammy and I talked contract was in Rochester two weeks ago and then I suggested the 3-year terms which I had discussed with Mr. Marshall. Sammy didn't seem to care one way or another whether the contract was for one or three seasons but asked time to think it over."

Baugh said he was more than satisfied with the new contract and was "sure glad to get it off my chest."

Less than two hours after he arrived here and met Flaherty at the Annapolis Hotel, Baugh was on his way back to Baltimore where he played with Rochester against Baltimore in a night game.

This was to be his last game of the season. He plans to clear up business with the Rochester Club and then take his wife, who temporarily is living in Rochester, to Texas for a short rest before joining the Redskins.

Whether or not he will resume his baseball career next season rests

Tigers Stop Yankees' Rally, Capture Series Opener by 4-3

George Gill Silences New York Bats After Crosetti's 2-Run Clout in 9th.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Aug. 2.—George Gill, Detroit Tigers' hurler, weathered a ninth-inning rally by the New York Yankees and hurled the Tigers to a 4-to-3 triumph in the opening game of their series today. The defeat cut the Yanks' league lead to a game and a half as the Cleveland Indians beat Boston.

Gill entered the ninth with a 4-1 lead. The Yanks had made only five hits off him until, with one out in the ninth, Gordon singled. Red Ruffing, pinch-hitting for Johnny Murphy, went out on a fly, but Frankie Crosetti hit his fifth homer into the left field stands.

Red Rolfe came up and doubled and it looked like the Yanks were loose. Gill, however, worked hard on Tommy Henrich and finally tossed him out at first on a roller to the box.

Lefty Gomez, the Yanks' starter, was touched for all the Detroit runs. The Tigers got one in the second on Pete Fox's hit and two errors. Charlie Gehringer smacked his fourteenth homer of the season with Billy Rogell on base for two more in the third.

Singles by Jo-Jo White and Rogell scored the other Detroit run in the fifth, while the Yanks got one tally back in the sixth on Crosetti's walk, Rolfe's double and an infield out. Murphy took over the mound for the Yanks in the seventh.

White, with three hits, and Fox, with two, topped the Detroit attack, while Rolfe collected two doubles and a single for the Yanks.

Stratton and Williams Stage Pitching Duel.

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 2.—The Chicago White Sox blasted out six runs in the third inning today and then went on to break their six-game losing streak by defeating the Philadelphia Athletics 8 to 4 in the first of a five-game series.

Except for the big Sox inning, in which they collected four hits and three bases on balls, the contest was a duel between Monty Stratton and Almon Williams, both of whom went the distance.

The Sox made 10 hits off Williams, while Stratton allowed 9, two of them coming in the ninth. One was a pinch home run by Frank Hayes, his eleventh circuit clout of the year. It was Stratton's tenth victory this season.

Bobby Brownell Posts a 146 To Annex Junior Golf Crown

Otto Greiner Wins Second Place After Playoff in Middle Atlantic Championships.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Bobby Brownell, 19-year-old Duke sophomore, won the Middle Atlantic Junior championship yesterday at Indian Spring as the field of 22 matched the weather with the hottest scoring pace in the history of local junior tournaments.

Brownell, from the host and Manor clubs, was only three strokes over perfect figures for the 36 holes, with 145, and was only a single shot ahead of the three youngsters that tied for the runner-up berth, Buddy Sharkey and Jerry Hart from the Four Corners Club and Otto Greiner, Rodgers Forge Club of Baltimore.

Outstanding Record.

Greiner won the second place medal after a ten-hole playoff that ran his total holes played for the day to 46. Otto was three over par for the ten holes. Hart, who tied him on the extra nine was four over, while Sharkey picked up after soaring six over par on the first four holes.

The victory for Brownell left him with a record that is likely to stand in the history of junior competition in this section. He is a former District and Maryland Junior champion, and Maryland Junior Open titleholder. Only 19, he has another crack at all but the District championship.

The winner played superb golf over the route, hitting 17 consecutive greens in regulation figures in the afternoon. He missed perfect figures on seven holes, gained four back with birdies, two on the first holes of each round, and dotted his performance with 25 pars.

Sharkey led the field at the halfway mark with a 72, from twin 36s. Brownell, Greiner and Billy Shea were next with 74, while Hart was two shots back with a 75.

Sharkey dropped into a third place tie at the 27-hole mark with a 38, Brownell and Hart tying for the lead with respective 35 and 34, and Greiner catching Sharkey with a 36. Shea was out of the running as he went three over with a 38.

It was anybody's championship as the three host club players and the favored Baltimorean battled it out over the home stretch. Sharkey finished first with a 74 for a 146 total, taking a 5 on the last hole as his tee shot settled into a depression and he could not get it out.

Brownell and Greiner, playing together, finished next. Brownell hooked his tee shot, played his second to the right of the green and chipped within a foot of the cut for his par and a 145 total that edged Sharkey. Greiner had his second 10 feet from the cup, needed the birdie to tie, but missed as his effort hung on the lip.

Hart, playing in the last threesome, needed a par to tie for the title, but pushed his drive and took 3 to get on. His 30-foot putt was short of the hole in an effort to cause the deadlock.

Sharkey and Brownell each had four birdies over the route, Hart five and Greiner six.

Hart had a stroke on Greiner approaching the final hole of the palyoff, but three-putted the green. Greiner two-putted to tie and Hart gave a repeat performance on the Man of the Month

By Arch McDonald.
(WJSV-Wheaties Baseball Commentator.)

(Each day, Arch McDonald distributes 10 points among the Nats whose play was most helpful to the Washington Club. At the end of each month The Washington Post will award to the leading player a gift in token of the honor of being The Post-Wheaties "Man of the Month.")

Al Simmons, with his batting splurge against Oral Hildebrand at St. Louis yesterday, draws down the chief share of the points awarded today in the Man of the Month contest.

To Simmons, three points, because his two-bagger played an important part in the Nats' three-run uprising in the first inning and because in the fourth, with the Nats enjoying a slender 4-3 lead, he whaled his fourteenth homer of the season into the leftfield stands.

To Ken Chase, two points, because in the ninth inning with one out and the bases full and the winning runs on base, he relieved Wes Ferrell and retired the side on a pair of pop flies.

To Sammy West, two points, because he hit two two-baggers and a single to figure in two of the Nats' runs.

To Cecil Travis, one point, because his two-bagger in the first inning drove in one run and led to another.

Griffs Chase Hildebrand's Season Jinx

Take Opening Game of Series; West Leads 11-Hit Attack.

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 2.—Out of the tumult of an uproarious ball game in which the umpire-in-chief was knocked unconscious and the Browns vigorously declared they were playing under protest, the Nats extracted a squeaky 5-3 victory today.

Umpire Harry Geisel was carried from the field on a stretcher in the second inning after a collision with Billy Sullivan, of the Browns, on the base lines, and later, at a St. Louis hospital, was found to be suffering from a broken left wrist.

Under an arrangement mutually agreeable to both teams, Umpire Basil was stationed behind the plate for the remainder of the game with Ossie Bluege, of the Nats, and Buck Newsom, of the Browns, serving as base umpires.

Call Own Mates Out.

Then ensued such rare developments as Bluege and Newsom calling their own teammates out on close plays on the bases. Manager Gabby Street, of the Browns, announced that his team was finishing the game under protest because of Sullivan's collision with Umpire Geisel which resulted in Sullivan being put out at the plate, and broke up a promising St. Louis rally in the second inning.

Wes Ferrell was the winning pitcher, but Ferrell was cooling his temper beneath the showers when the finish came. Hero of the Nats' triumph was young Ken Chase, who was hurriedly called into action in the ninth when Ferrell threatened to dissipate his two-run lead by filling the bases with only one out.

The Browns put the tying runs on base against Ferrell in a jiffy in that ninth inning. Sullivan drew a walk and Pinch Hitter Roy Hughes beat out a hit to Travis. Without fear, or seemingly favor, "Umpire" Buck Newsom, at third base, called Sullivan out at that bag on Hildebrand's attempted sacrifice which Ferrell shot to Lewis, but when Ferrell walked Almada to fill the bases, Chase got the job.

Chase Retires Side.

Chase had no immediate success. He threatened to force a run over the plate when he pitched three balls and a strike to McQuinn, but he slipped over a second strike and then forced McQuinn to pop meekly to Myer. The dangerous Buster Mills, Chase also retired on a pop fly—to Bonura—and the Nats had the ball game.

Until that ninth inning, Ferrell had pitched impressive ball, yielding only seven hits. Only one of the Browns' three runs was earned, an error by Buddy Myer in the second inning accounting for a pair. That was the only inning in which the Browns scored against Ferrell who registered his thirteenth victory of the year.

Sammy West, the former Brownie, was the nominal leader of the Nats' 11-hit attack against Oral Hildebrand, No. 1 pitcher of the Browns, but Al Simmons was actually the big gun. Simmons contributed a productive double and his fourteenth home run of the season to the proceedings.

The Nats didn't dally with Hildebrand. In the first inning, they took a 3-0 lead when Lewis alked and Simmons, Travis and West slammed two-baggers against the rightfield screen.

Browns Fill Bases.

In the second inning, with one out, the Browns loaded the bases against Ferrell on a single by Kress and walks to Sullivan and Heffner. Then the proceedings went riotous. Pitcher Hildebrand singled to center, scoring Kress and Sullivan, after rounding third, also dashed for home. Midway down the base lines, he crashed into Geisel who was taking off his mask and failed to see the flying figure of Sullivan. The umpire was knocked sprawling to the ground. Sullivan, who kept his feet, continued toward the plate but his progress had been slowed and he was out when Myer relayed West's throw to Giuliani.

The inert form of Geisel was carried from the field on a stretcher

Hartnett's Men Fall on Hubbell and Coffman; Hack Hits Homer.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 2.—Clay Bryant, the Chicago Cubs' right-hander, stopped the Giants dead, today, with a two-hit, 7-to-0 shutout that cut the New Yorkers' lead over the third-place Cubs to a game and a half.

The Cubs also picked up a game on the league-leading Pittsburgh Pirates, who lost to Boston.

While Bryant whipped his curve and fast ball past the befuddled Giants, the Cubs routed Carl Hubbell and smacked Dick Coffman, his relief, with a twelve-hit attack that included a three-run homer by Stan Hack and another round-tripper for Billy Jurges. Hack also collected a double and a single to pace the attack and Bryant helped his own cause with two singles.

Bryant held the Giants hitless until the sixth, when Hubbell got a single. An inning later Mel Ott doubled for the New Yorkers' second hit. The Cubs got to Hubbell as early as the fourth. They scored twice in that inning, picked up another on Jurges' homer in the fifth and then routed King Carl with a four-run attack in the seventh which included Hack's homer and a triple by Demaree.

Bill Cissell, obtained by the Giants from the Baltimore Orioles yesterday, played a sensational game afield for the league champions, but went hitless.

Lanning in Form; Bees Beat Bucs.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Aug. 2.—The league-leading Pittsburgh Pirates ran into a superb four-hit pitching performance by Johnny Lanning today and dropped the series opener to the hustling Boston Bees, 3 to 1.

After a rocky start, in which Catcher Al Todd tagged him for a line drive homer into the left field bleachers in the second—Pittsburgh's only run—Lanning settled down and became stronger as the game wore on.

He had only one other tight spot, when Suhr and Rizzo singled to open the fourth, but a double play helped him out of his difficulties, and the Pirates didn't get another hit the rest of the game.

The only Pittsburger to reach first over this five-inning stretch was Lee Handley, who walked with two out in the eighth.

Meanwhile, the Bees hopped on Jim Tobin for seven hits and made all their runs in the second despite some sloppy base-running.

Singles by West, Lopez, Warstler and Cooney, an error and a sacrifice, accounted for the tallies, with Warstler driving in two of the tallies and Cooney the other.

375 Boys Advance to Finals Of Public Recreation Meet

Survivors of Field of 3,500 Await Championship Races Friday.

Some 375 of Washington's crack swimmers survived the qualifying rounds of the Public Recreation meets yesterday and advanced to the city championships, which will be held Friday afternoon in the McKinley High tank. The trials attracted about 3,500 boys to the seven pools scattered throughout the city.

The Georgetown meet drew the greatest number of entries, although playground boys from Anacostia to Chevy Chase and from Kenilwork to Georgetown welcomed the chance to splash and escape the sweltering heat. Max Farrington, director of the meets, gave Georgetown Playground special praise for the manner in which the crowd was handled there.

Closely following Georgetown in number of entrants were McKinley and Takoma, with Anacostia, Rosedale, East Potomac and E Street Y. W. C. A. pool completing the list in that order.

Cards Drop Double Bill To Dodgers

Flatbush Outfit Moves Into 5th Place; Wins 6 to 2 and 9 to 3.

By the Associated Press.

Brooklyn, Aug. 2.—Those amazing Dodgers pounded out a double victory over the St. Louis Cardinals today, 6 to 2 and 9 to 3, and moved back into fifth place, one percentage point ahead of the Boston Bees.

Freddy Fitzsimmons stopped the Cards with eight hits, one of them Johnny Mize's fifteenth homer of the season, in the opener. Ernie Koy, Tuck Stainback and Goody Rosen collected two hits apiece to pace the Flatbush offense, and in the second game Big Dolph Camilli knocked homers Nos. 14 and 15 over the rightfield wall.

Luke Hamlin won his seventh game of the season in the nightcap, yielding 11 hits, three of which came in the Cards' two-run ninth inning.

Camilli's homers led the Dodger attack in the second contest, in which the winners collected 11 hits off Curt Davis, Clyde Shoun and Max Macon. Hamlin bagged two hits and drove in two runs.

Fitzsimmons in the opener shut the cards out with two hits until the seventh, while his mates whaled away at Roy Henshaw, Ray Harrell and Macon. The Cards made eight hits, five of them in the last two innings.

Sandlot Pick-ups

The diamond activities of the week-day leagues will bear close watching during the week . . . Play seems to be much more heated due to the fact that September 10 is drawing near . . . For on that day the National Amateur Baseball Federation tournament gets underway in Pittsburgh, and the local champions will be sent, with all expenses paid, as official Washington representatives to participate in the tourney . . . Every runner-up club in its respective league is fighting desperately to cop the second half crown, so as to be in a position to enter the city play-off that starts on August 15 . . . In the local tourney, if a team loses twice, they are eliminated . . . The champs will leave for Pittsburgh on September 8 . . . Incidently, there will be 48 States and the District of Columbia competing for national honors . . . Wheeling, W. Va., won the crown last year.

Hitting and hurling highlights: . . . How about this for walloping the pellet? Jimmy Barnes, Post Circulator playeer, slammed two triples, a double and a single in four times at bat to lead his club to a 10-8 win over the Washington Grove nine last Sunday . . . Dick Wear, Tex Tavern centerfielder, also had a perfect day at bat . . . He whacked four hits in four tries as the Waterford Tigers bowed, 11-4 . . . And another perfect afternoon of swatting was displayed by Bob Kissner, the winning hurler of the Tex Tavern-Waterford Tigers encounter . . . He collected three hits in three trips to the plate to aid in capturing his own tilt.

Nedomatsky, Mamakos Meet Tonight in Postponed Bout

Down In Front

By Richards Vidmer.

Little Dynamite.

Pompton Lakes, N. J., Aug. 2.—The most amazing fighting man since Sergt. York came out of the Argonne Forest is up here preparing to conquer still another world. He is going to meet Lou Ambers, king of the lightweights, next Wednesday night at the Polo Grounds, partly because he thinks it would be quite an accomplishment to hold three world championships at the same time, winning all three within the span of a year; partly because he likes to fight and gets grouchy when he is idle; but mostly for business reasons.

VIDMER

"When you are in a trade and you clean up all the business there is around, you just naturally have to branch out," Henry Armstrong explained. "That's why I couldn't keep on fighting as a featherweight. I had cleaned up all the business there was in that division, so I branched out. But after I won the welterweight championship from Barney Ross, there wasn't any more business in that division either, so I am moving in among the lightweights.

And if he beats Lou Ambers he will be in a fair way to control the fight situation among the smaller men. He will wear three crowns, and he won't have to go out looking for business any more. They will have to develop the business and bring it to him.

* * * *

Getting the Range.

You are quite convinced that he has no doubts about beating Ambers as he talks of his future and how his objective is to build up a $100,000 annuity before he retires from the ring.

But he frankly admits that he expects quite a little trouble in beating Ambers. Not that he thinks the lightweight champion is dangerous, but because he accepts the fact that Lou is fast and hard to catch.

With that in mind he had Lew Feldman go through four unscheduled rounds with him this afternoon, jumping, hopping, skipping about the ring as Ambers does. And Lew put on a very excellent imitation of Ambers' style.

"Just to get the range," Mushky Jackson, the ever-energetic guide explained. "He ain't tryin' to do nothin but reach him, see?"

"Hey, don't forget to get me that belt," Feldman called over to Mushky as he left the ring, puffing and dripping as the indefatigable Armstrong took on Chalky Wright, another sparring partner.

"O. K., Lew. I'll remember it," Jackson replied.

"Well, you better draw it down," called Feldman and, as he departed, Mushky took a piece of paper and pencil from his pocket.

"What did he mean by draw it down?"

"Aw, he don't think I can write," Mushky explained, tracing a picture of a belt on the paper. "He thinks I will remember better if I draw it!"

* * * *

For Future Pleasure.

After his session with Chalky, a couple of rounds on the heavy bag and another shadow boxing Homicidal Henry was back again in his cottage and the conversation was continued.

"When I quit fighting I quit," he said in answer to a question. "But I would like to have a club. That's what I want to buy now. You see, you get used to seeing your friends and people you know drop around when you're a champion and you sort of miss it when you are through fighting. I suppose I will be like that, too, so I want to have some sort of club where they can drop in. That's why so many fellows like Dempsey and Braddock and Leonard and Canzoneri open restaurants or bars. They miss the crowd."

As he talked, clearly, frankly, openly, there was a light of eagerness in his eyes, and after he disappeared into the shower his brother, Harry, who acts as his trainer, explained.

"He can't wait," said Harry. "He gets like that when he's moving up to a fight. All eager and full of energy. That's why he has to fight so often. After we've been campaigning around the country for a while we go home with the idea of loafing for a few months and just taking things easy. But after a couple of weeks, Henry gets restless and wants to fight again. He can't seem to settle down and stay still."

* * * *

Change of Program.

"Boxing has taken a lot away from Henry," he said. "Of course, it's given him a lot too. But there was a time when Henry spent most of his time reading the Bible, writing poetry and he used to be crazy about music. He was playing the piano and composing good music. Now he reads magazines, writes letters and listens to swing music on the radio."

"Would you rather have him like he was?"

Harry Armstrong shook his head.

"No," he said. "I would rather see him making a lot of money, winning championships, becoming famous. None of these things has spoiled him, only he has changed. I guess he just hasn't time for those other things any more. Maybe when he quits, he'll go back to them."

Plaza Softballers Win.

Plaza Wine and Liquor soft ball team defeated Daugherty's Sea Food, 17 to 0, by the 2 hit pitching of Pie Juliano. The game was played at Edgewood playground.

Ivan Is 6-2 Favorite in 8-Rd. Fight

Serbian Predicts Kayo Over Greek; Both Must Weigh In Again Today.

Ivan Nedomatsky, who was poison to all who met him in collegiate boxing, and is carrying his talents into the professional ring with equal skill and success, will engage in his first headline bout tonight at Griffith Stadium against Steve Mamakos, the Golden Greek.

Nedomatsky hopes to celebrate his entry into the featured ranks here with a knockout over the swift-moving Greek, but Mamakos, who throws punches with machine gun speed, and never knows when to stop, will have something to say about that.

The eight-round bout between Mamakos and Nedomatsky, cooked up for more than four months, was postponed Monday night because of rain, but the weather man has promised favorable weather tonight.

Talking as a college graduate and not as a professional fighter, Nedomatsky yesterday declared:

"I have studied Mamakos in all of his fights, and all of his opponents have fought him wrong. I think I have the correct style to hand Mamakos his first knockout. I know exactly what his weak spot is. All of the others have been hitting him with head punches, but not one of them has worked on his body. I'm wondering if Steve can take it downstairs."

Greek Is Confident.

After being told what Nedomatsky thought of him, the Greek fired back:

"That college boy is not fighting a college boy with two-minute rounds. I'll be out to score the biggest triumph of my career. When that bell rings for the opening round, I'll make him think he's fighting four other guys. He's run out on me twice, and he better be ready for this one, or they'll be carrying him out before the third round."

Both Nedomatsky and Mamakos will be forced to weigh in again this afternoon at the District Boxing Commission's office, and the rumor is that the Greek is having a tough job making the weight.

He must, according to arrangements with Heinie Blaustein, Nedomatsky's manager, make 150 or less.

There were hot words between the two managers shortly after Monday's postponement, as Matt Twomey, who manages Mamakos, was protecting the rights of his fighter by declaring that Steve did not have to weigh in again.

Managers to Scrap.

Blaustein merely showed Twomey the new ruling of the Boxing Commission that a fighter must weigh in again after a 24-hour postponement.

The commission has ordered the two fighters to weigh in at 2 p. m. today.

From a spectator's viewpoint this fight shapes up as one of the classics of the season, inasmuch as it will bring a puncher (Nedomatsky) against a mauler (Mamakos).

This is one of the few real grudge matches between two youngsters just a year out of the amateurs.

Nedomatsky continues to be the betting favorite at 6-5.

Tommy Bland, the Canadian welterweight champion, being handled by Jimmy White, makes his debut in an 8-round semi-windup against Tony Ciaccio, the rough Norristown, Pa., Italian. Bland is considered one of the best punchers among the welterweights in the country.

In other bouts Joey Greek, also being handled by White, meets Lloyd Lasky, of New York, in a six, and Kid Howie, local colored lightweight, faces Willie Cooper, of Baltimore.

Nats

and then it was that Street lodged his protest on the grounds that the Browns had suffered from "interference" by the impire. The game was delayed 15 minutes while arrangements were made for "Umpires" Bluege and Newsom to assist Basil with the officiating.

On the resumption of play, the Browns received two gift runs when Myer permitted McQuinn's grounder to scoot between his legs, and the score was tied at 3-3.

Sammy West and Giuliani untied it in the next inning with a respective double to right and a looping single to center. And in the fourth inning, Al Simmons, with great satisfaction, pumped a homer into the leftfield bleachers against Hildebrand, his pet hate among American League pitchers.

That was the last run of the ball game.

D.C. Printers Are Leading Golf Event

Locals Fairly Certain of Individual and Team Titles.

Pittsburgh, Pa., August 2.—That both the individual and team championships of the Union Printers' International Golf Association will go to Washington, D. C., became fairly certain today when entrants from the Nation's Capital were ahead in both competitions at the end of the first 36 holes at the Edgewood Country Club.

Joe Balestri, a bookbinder in the Capital, who paced the field at the end of the first round with a three over par 75, held on to the top position by adding a 77 today for a 152 aggregate and a five stroke margin over the field.

With Balestri's 152 and either Ed Merkle or Fred Stringer's 165 totals, Washington has a comfortable lead for the Chicago two-man cup, won by Merkle and Stringer at Baltimore last year. Merkle and Stringer, both former champions, matched stroke-for-stroke for the second consecutive day. Each posted 84's yesterday and 82's today to pull up in a tie for seventh place.

E. B. Heimer, who literally shot himself out of the tournament with an atrocious 92 on the first day, showed a remarkable recovery yesterday with an 82, but the spurt came too late.

Balestri, although playing under more favorable conditions, took a 40, 4 over, on the first nine, against a par 36 in a drenching rain on the same stretch yesterday. He steadied his play on the back nine for a 37, 1 over, and 2 blows better than he posted for the same holes yesterday. His card, with par:

Vander Meer Wins 12th as Reds Rally in 9th to Defeat Phils, 3-2

'Double No-Hit' Gives Way to Derringer in 9th; Wild Pitch Decides Game.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, Aug. 2.—Johnny Vander Meer won his twelfth triumph of the season as the Reds nosed out the Phillies, 3 to 2, today.

After pitching well or seven innings, Vander Meer allowed the Phils to tie the score at 1-1 in the eighth. When the first two men hit safely in the ninth he was relieved by Derringer. Hallahan pitched fine bail for the Phillies until he was relieved in the eighth.

The Phillies tied the game up in the eighth after Mueller singled with one out and Atwood walked. Jordan's hit to center sent Mueller over.

Cincinnati scored the winning runs in the ninth. Frey and Berger hit Lamaster for singles. When Goodman walked Sivess relieved Lamaster. Sivess' second pitch was wild, scoring Frey and Berger. The Phils could score only one run out of three hits in their half of the inning.

Mrs. Andrus Is Eliminated

By the Associated Press.

East Hampton, N. Y., Aug. 2.—The first break in the seedings of the annual Maidstone Club Women's Singles Invitation Tournament came in the second round today when Mrs. Dorothy Andrus, of New York, was eliminated by Mrs. Virginia Rice Johnson, of Boston, 6—1, 6—1, as eight survivors gained the third and quarter-final round.

Mrs. Andrus, making a belated first-round debut, won her opening test from Patricia Canning, of Alameda, Calif., 3—6, 5—1, 6—0, but was helpless against Mrs. Johnson's fine net play and accurate ground strokes.

Dorothy Bundy, of Santa Monica, Calif., the Nation's third-ranking star, top-seeded in the tournament, was extended to three sets in each of her two appearances. First it was by Jane Stanton, of Los Angeles, who finally yielded, 4—6, 7—5, 6—2, and then by Margaret Osborne, of San Francisco, who bowed, 2—6, 6—1, 8—6.

solely with Marshall. Questioned on this score yesterday, Marshall was reluctant to commit himself but intimated that he believed baseball helped keep the gridders in condition.

"Look at Sammy," he pointed, "in condition now, a week before practice starts." And Baugh, a picture of sartorial elegance in a blue sports ensemble, certainly appeared to be in shape. He weighs 183, about 5 pounds below his best playing weight, but expects to put on about 10 pounds before the first league game.

Two more players were signed by the Redskins yesterday when Guard Eddie Kahn and Fullback Johnny Spirada applied the pen to their contracts, making the thirty-eighth and thirty-ninth Redskin to return signed contracts.

Kahn, who will be playing his fourth year in Redskin garb, was graduated from the University of North Carolina, where he was outstanding on the '34 team.

Spirada was farmed out to Baltimore Orioles last year. At St. Anselms he was the sparkplug of a team that went undefeated year before last and eliminated Holy Cross as a Rose Bowl contender by holding it to a 0-0 tie.

Steve Casey Plans 'Irish Riot Squad'

Mat Champ Will Import 3 Younger Brothers in the Fall.

The Irish having produced two world's wrestling champions in the last five years, Steve (Crusher) Casey, the recognized titleholder, who risks his crown against Ernie Dusek tomorrow night at Griffith Stadium, plans to import three of his brothers to form an Irish "riot squad" this fall, he informed Promoter Joe Turner yesterday.

The undefeated Irish heavyweight says his brothers, Pat, 24; Jack, 23, and Jim, 21, are versatile wrestlers, and are anxious to come to America to join the champion in a barnstorming tour.

"All of my brothers are expert wrestlers—as good as I am," Steve told Promoter Turner.

"When they get here we'll chase the Duseks, the Garibaldis and other wrestling brothers right out of the ring!"

Turner said he would like nothing better than to pit the four Irish Caseys against the four Duseks.

Paul Bowser, Boston promoter, already has promised Casey he would arrange a campaign for the four Caseys. It was Bowser, who brought Casey to America, guaranteeing him $100,000. Casey is unbeaten in close to 400 matches.

Promoter Turner hopes to have quite a legion of Irish wrestling fans out at the ball park tomorrow night. He has extended an invitation to the Irish Legation to see its wrestling son from County Kerry, Crusher Casey, defend his title against Dusek.

Turner pointed out yesterday that the Irish have dominated the wrestling picture, and may continue to do so. Danno O'Mahoney won the world's crown from Jim Londos a few years ago. Casey is the present titleholder. A serious menace to the title is Dr. Patrick O'Callaghan, the present Irish Olympic track champion, who is campaigning successfully on the Pacific Coast, ready for a crack at the title.

Recreation Softball Play Opens Tomorrow

Twenty-four teams, half juniors and half seniors, today are on edge awaiting the start of the District of Columbia Public Recreation Softball championships, which begin tomorrow at 1:30 p. m., on the West Potomac diamonds, south of the Reflecting Pool.

This tournament, part of Washington's co-ordinated recreation program, is one of the largest of its type ever held. It is designed for the survivors of 180 teams composed of some 2,700 boys.

Don McNeill Takes Match

Advances With 7 Seeded Stars at Meadow Club.

By the Associated Press.

Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, the Nation's ninth ranking player, was the only outsider to reach the quarter-finals of the forty-eighth annual Meadow Brook Invitation tennis tournament today, as seven of the ten seeded entries gained the bracket of eight, paced by top-seeded Bobby Riggs, of Chicago.

McNeill, unseeded because of his recent inactivity due to a wrenched right ankle, exhibited as good form as any of the favorites in defeating Robert Kamrath, of Austin, Tex., 3—6, 6—2, 6—1, in the third round. Earlier in the day, he won a second round match from Marion Breese, of Atlanta, 6—3, 6—2.

For the first time in the tournament, Riggs won a match in straight sets when he turned back Charles Shostran, of Chicago, 10—8, 6—3, in the third round. In the morning, Riggs eliminated Alfred Jarvis, of Tenafly, N. J., 6—4, 2—6, 6—2.

Frank Shields, who showed signs of regaining some of his old form in his 6—0, 2—6, 6—4, second round match against Robert Mouvert, of Belgium, bowed in the third round to young Joe Hunt, third seeded in the tournament and ranked No. 5 nationally, 6—2, 4—6, 6—4.

Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta, seeded No. 2, gained the quarter-final with a 6—4, 6—2 conquest of Robert A. Low, of New York, after beating his fellow townsman, Russell Bobbitt, 6—1, 6—1.

Frank Kovacs, lanky Oakland, Calif., player, ranked fifth, eliminated two other promising young players. He first beat Frank Guernsey, jr., of Orlonda, Fla., national intercollegiate champion, 6—2, 10—8.

Tribe Defeats Boston by 7-4; Cuts Yankee Lead a Full Game

Cronin Uses 3 Pitchers; Keltner Hits 13th Homer; Campbell Leads Attack.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, August 2.—Denny Galehouse kept 12 Boston hits well scattered here today and the Cleveland Indians took the opener of a four game series, 7-4, to move within a game and a half of the leading Yankees.

Manager Joe Cronin used three pitchers in an effort to check the Tribe. Kenny Keltner smashed his eighteenth rome run of the season in the second inning with the bases empty.

Bruce Campbell led the Cleveland attack with three hits, including a double. Jimmy Foxx also connected safely three times. Cronin had a double and a triple.

Galehouse, now headed for a starting role with Johnny Allen out with a sore arm, held Boston scoreless from the third until the ninth when Cronin's double off the wall scored Cramer, who had walked.

Terry Suspends Melton; 'Club's Own Business.'

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—Bill Terry, manager of the New York Giants, announced just after today's defeat by Chicago that Cliff Melton, the lanky lefthander whose hurling had much to do with the Giants' pennant triumph in 1937, has been suspended without pay.

Terry would give no explanation of the move except to remark it was "the club's own business."

Melton last appeared on the mound a week ago and was knocked to the showers by the Cardinals. He has had a poor season, winning nine and losing as many. Last year, as a freshman in the National League, he won 20 games and lost nine.

Lower-Priced Autos in Sight With Steel Cut

Black Sheets Reduced $4 a Ton Says Metal Trade Authority.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Aug. 2.—A possibility of lower automobile prices this fall was seen after Daily Metal Trade, publication of the steel industry, said today cuts of $4 a ton on black sheets used in making automobiles had been quoted by independent steel companies. Large independent steel companies refused to confirm the new prices.

The trade publication said that the new quotations had been given to Chrysler, General Motors, Ford and such body builders as Briggs Manufacturing and Fisher Body.

The steel industry generally awaited some definite announcement before any accounting of the price cut could be worked out. Informed quarters pointed out the cut was only for black sheets, but if the cut is confirmed it was suggested it might result in a cut on bars used to make sheets. If the current wave of price cuts continues, informed quarters said it might spread to all steel prices.

"We have not been able to locate definitely who initiated the price cutting," said Joseph F. Frogett, editor of Daily Metal Trade. "We have not heard what is being done in strip, but the lower prices seem to be generally preparent in sheets."

One source said as soon as announcement of the cut was made other large producers would be forced to similar action as in June, when United States Steel announced the first price cut, claiming an independent producer had taken the initiative.

Another authority said the cut was a reprisal against United States Steel for abandoning the basing point system, and intimated the cut might result in the automotive trade lowering prices for 1939 models.

Government to Buy 30 Million Lbs. of Milk

The Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation announced yesterday that it would purchase up to 30,000,000 pounds of dry skim milk during the current fiscal year.

The program, designed to remove surplus milk from normal trade channels and make it available for distribution to the needy, will be similar to the purchase program conducted last year. Corporation purchases during the last fiscal year totaled 21,520,000 pounds of dry skim milk at a cost of $1,322,000.

$100,000,000 Bills 2.89 Times Subscribed

The Secretary of the Treasury announces that the tenders for $100,000,000, or thereabouts, of 91-day Treasury bills, to be dated August 3 and to mature November 2, 1938, which were offered on July 29, have been opened at the Federal Reserve banks.

The total applied for was $289,356,000 and the total accepted $100,315,000. The average price was 99.984, equivalent to a rate of 0.062 per cent.

Cotton Steady; Trading Quiet

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—Cotton moved irregularly over a 10-point range today in quiet trading. December, which had advanced from 8.54 to 8.64 on trade buying, encountered liquidation to close at 8.58, with final prices unchanged to 2 points lower.

The market opened 1 to 3 points lower under the influence of easier Liverpool cables and hedge selling and liquidation. Prices soon eased to net losses of 3 to 5 points, but with October at 8.46, or at a new low for the movement, increased trade price fixing and some outside buying developed.

British Pound Falls To 16-Months Low

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—Wall street's curiosity as to what was going on behind the monetary scenes abroad was stimulated today by a further fall in the British pound in terms of the dollar to the lowest in 16 months. On the skids for some time, the British currency, one of the world's principal media of exchange, declined to around $4.90, off more than a cent. A few months ago it was above $5.

In Wall street exchange circles it was assumed generally the British financial authorities had decided to let the pound return to its old parity against the dollar between $4.86 and $4.87, with at least the tacit approval of Washington.

Int. Tel. & Tel. Gains.

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—Telephone operating subsidiaries of International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation in nine foreign countries reported a total gain of 34,816 telephones in the first half of 1938, or around 4,400 more than for the same period last year.

Wheat Reacts After Upturn On War Scare

Lower Yield Forecast in Unofficial Wheat Estimate.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—Stimulated temporarily by reports of a major conflict between Russian and Japanese forces, wheat rose 1 cent today, and then fell back, virtually canceling gains.

On the bulge in prices, speculative demand subsided, and then downturns set in. Momentarily, all deliveries of wheat and corn, as well as December rye, outdid by a small fraction the recent low-record quotations that in various cases extended back five years.

A transient help to values came from a reduced unofficial crop estimate that figured all United States wheat production this season as totaling 929,000,000 bushels. This contrasted with the July 1 official forecast of 967,000,000 bushels.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ⅜ of a cent lower to 10¼ higher, compared with yesterday's finish; September, 67@67⅛; ecember, 68⅞@69; corn unchanged to ¼ up; September, 55@55¼; December, 52⅜@52½; oats ¼@½ advance, rye showing ¼@⅞ jump, and provisions a climb of 5 to 12 cents.

The Market

Stocks Turn Upward for Moderate Gains in Somewhat More Active Trading.

New York, Aug. 2.—Stocks reversed their recent trend and added about half a point on the average today in slightly more active trading but there was no evidence that the waiting attitude had been abandoned. Gains in a number of the individual leaders were the best of a week but the volume of only 817,640 shares on the big board showed that there was no rush to climb aboard. Brokers report that customers are watching the tape carefully and the vast majority wants to be on the long side.

Virtually all groups of securities averaged higher today and there were a number of special moves. One exception to the rule was the Alleghany group, which dropped sensationally on the hint of possible removal from listing in connection with the SEC's inquiry into the company's accounting practices. Each of the four preferred issues closed with losses exceeding 2 points and the common was off ⅛. In the bond section there was a similar break, the 6s of 1950 selling down more than 2 points and the 5s of 1944 dropping ⅝. The action furnished a good illustration of the harm of delisting.

The market for steel shares did not appear to be affected by the possibility of renewed price cutting within the industry and doubtless this was because the movement has not yet spread far enough to be a serious threat. The beginning of what could develop into a serious situation are apparent, however. Cuts of $4 a ton on black sheets, used in making automobiles, have been quoted by some independent steel producers.

Steel Prices.

These new prices have not been confirmed by the large companies and local steel men said today they had not been advised of any broad movement to cut sheet prices. A Pittsburgh rumor has it that the small companies are making cuts as a reprisal move against United States Steel for initiating a general price reduction recently.

Also in the category of bad news was the renewal of the Russo-Japanese military operations. Japanese bonds broke 3 to 5 points to the lowest levels in five years or more, but domestic securities were not affected.

The foreign exchange market was in an agitated state. The rise in the price of gold to the highest level in 16 months accompanied a decline in sterling, the guilder and the French franc to new lows for the year in terms of dollars. Declines reflected a renewed flight of European capital into gold in view of disturbed developments abroad.

Export Copper Up.

A few minor items of favorable domestic news doubtless contributed to the more bullish tone in securities. Steel scrap was raised again in Pittsburgh and the improvement in export copper prices brought in a demand for the metal shares. Leading on the upswing were the motor, rail, store, rubber and electrical equipment issues. Gains of around 1 to 2 points were scored by such leaders as Anaconda, Chrysler, duPont, General Motors, Nickel, Sears Roebuck, Southern Pacific, Union Carbide and United States Steel, while Westinghouse jumped 3¾. Chrysler, Yellow Truck and General Motors were the day's most active stocks, in the order named.

The Russo-Japanese hostilities had a temporary effect upon the wheat market and at one time futures were up a cent a bushel. Buying dwindled on the advance, however, and the close was irregular, being ⅝ cent lower to ¼ cent higher. Cotton moved over a narrow range of 10 points in inactive trading, closing unchanged to 2 points lower.

Bonds Quiet and Firm.

Listed bonds were quiet and firm today, save for a few soft spots, such as the Japanese issues, which tumbled to the lowest levels of the year. Recessions ranged from 1 to 4 points in the Japanese group, owing to the ever-widening scope of hostilities with Russia. High-grade money market bonds were steady, while most speculative issues in the corporate section improved. Foreign bonds in general were firm, despite the example set by the Japanese issues. Turnover was $5,020,000.

The two Japanese government issues showed losses of 3½ and 4½ points, respectively, on the latest reports of spread in warfare. Municipal and electrical issues were equally soft, and there was only one exception to the rule of new lows. Reports of declines on the London market helped to unsettle the obligations, which have been weak for months in any event. Latin-American and European default bonds were dull, and the high-grade issues of Australia, Canada and Scandinavia were steady.

Speculative carrier bonds showed some unevenness in the domestic corporate section, but there were more gains then than losses. Bonds of New York Central, Southern Pacific and similar roads were up a point or so, but borderline rails were irregular. Most default rails were slightly improved. Alleghany Corporation bonds declined, but utility holding bonds held their ground. Local tractions drifted slightly downward, as did the communications bonds.

Long-term United States Treasury obligations showed only smallest fractional variations in either direction. Highest grade utility, railroad and industrial bonds were maintained, with interest lacking, since most large institutional buyers now want to await the large offerings due to appear next week, and possibly late this week.

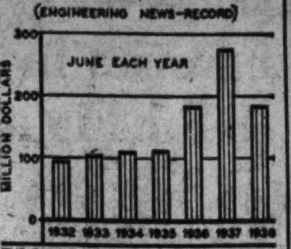
Engineering Awards Take Upward Turn

ENGINEERING CONTRACT AWARDS (ENGINEERING NEWS-RECORD)



THE PARKER CORP. GENERAL DISTRIBUTORS INCORPORATED INVESTORS

Boston, Mass., Aug. 2.—Engineering contract awards have made good gains in recent weeks. The June total is estimated at very close to that of June, 1936, but considerably below a year ago. In the first 27 weeks of this year engineering construction awards were only 2½ per cent below the same 27-week total for 1937.

Aircraft Sales Up 47 Per Cent

By the Associated Press

New York, August 2—A 47 per cent jump in sales of American-manufactured airplanes and engines, compared with the same period in 1937, was reported tonight for the first six months of the year by Leighton W Rogers, president of the Aerontuaical Chamber of Commerce.

His statistical review showed that 717 military planes valued at $29,285,927, and 1,134 engines for military use, valued at $8,526,914, were sold. The grand total for both military and commercial airplanes and engines was $73,031,806 for the period, as compared with $49,450,114 for the January-June period in 1937. What portion of the military equipment was sold abroad was not stated.

"The American aircraft industry," said Rogers, "is co-operating fully with the State Department in its neutrality policy."

Nonmilitary airplanes sold numbered 960, valued at $9,300,944, and nonmilitary engines 1,931, value at $7,756,821. Commercial plane and engine exports were valued at $8,321,735, or 48 per cent of the total in that category.

Twenty-two countries bought the 149 nonmilitary planes sold abroad. Plane and engine spare parts sold were valued at $18,161,200.

Retail Advertising 13.9% Under Year Ago

Chicago, Aug. 2.—Retail display advertising in newspapers during the week ended July 23 was 13.9 cent below the level of the corresponding week of 1937, Advertising Age reported today.

The paper bases its figures on reports covering all newspapers in 80 leading cities, which show 13,789,158 lines of retail display advertising for the week mentioned, compared with 15,826,384 lines during the corresponding week of last year.

Business Failures.

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—Business failures in the United States for the week ended July 28 rose to 219 from 206 in the preceding week, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. A year ago they totaled 158.

Newspaper Readers.

New York, Aug. 2.—A total of 42,000,000 newspapers are sold in the United States every day, according to a study of the publishing industry. Americans pay $414,000,000 a year to read the news.

Lower Prices Seen for Crops

New York, Aug. 2.—The Department of Agriculture's first comprehensive crop report for the current season, based on conditions July 1, indicates that the 1938 harvest in the United States will be large. Of 19 principal crops, the yields often promise to be larger than in 1937 when the combined output of all crops was the largest on record. As compared with the 10 year, 1927-1936, average, the outlook is that all crops but two will show an increase this year.

According to the Alexander Hamilton Institute, this prospective bumper harvest is, fundamentally, a favorable factor in the economic situation. Business, however, is not likely to enjoy the full benefit of it because of the difficulties involved in adjusting the prices of manufactured goods downward to the lower level of agricultural prices which will prevail as the result of large crops.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, Aug. 2.—Business was on a small scale as the stock market resumed trading today after the bank holiday. Price movements were narrow and irregular. Industrials closed with modest improvement. Transatlantics dipped to about a parity with New York. Gilt-edged issues were steadier.

Paris—Bourse issues were heavy in late dealings today and losses were general throughout the list at the close. Government bonds and banking shares were irregular. The international group was the widest loser. Suez Canal dropped 275 points and Royal Dutch 69. Bank of France declined 125 points.

Liverpool.—Wheat futures closed with small losses in a quiet, one-way market today. Final prices were ⅛ to 5d lower, largely as a result of Chicago's market action over the holiday. Cash demand from millers was unimproved. Cotton finished 2 to 4 points lower under hedge selling and offerings from Japanese sources. Some speculative support appeared, but recoveries were only partial.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, Aug. 2 (AP) (U. S. Dept. Agr.).—A moderate volume of business was being closed in the Boston market today on fine Western grown wools at steady prices. Demand, however, lacked the urgency that marked trading during the greater part of the past six weeks. Twelve-month Texas wools have been sold this week at prices ranging 65 to 68 cents, scoured basis, spot Boston. Average to short French combing lengths fine territory wools in original bag were bringing 62 to 64 cents, scoured basis. Asking prices were fairly firm on graded territory wools even though trade was slow at the moment.

Says—

Stick-to-it-iveness, I believe, is somethin' that everyone admires in either a man or a postage stamp. I don't mean just bein' mule-headed but in ploddin' along, doin' whatever you've got your mind set to, in spite of obstacles and discouragements. You take my Uncle Scrib, for instance. He came back to Van Buren for the first time in ten years.

Grandpa said "Scrib did'ja follow out that boyhood ambition of yours to become a writer?" and Scrib says "I sure did, Snazzy, I hung on and wrote for ten years before I found out I didn't have any talents for writin' good literature."

Grandpa said "And then you gave it up?" and Scrib said "No—by that time I was too famous to give up."

Senator Lewis To Resign Seat After Next Year

Famed 'Jim Ham' to Retire; Stayed Only to Back Roosevelt Plans.

By the Associated Press.

Senator James Hamilton Lewis (Democrat), of Illinois, said yesterday he intended to resign from the Senate next year in order to devote his full time to private affairs.

Lewis said he would continue to serve in the next session of Congress, but would quit in time for nomination and election of a successor in 1940.

He told reporters he would have resigned this year except that he desired to remain in Congress to support President Roosevelt.

In 1940, Lewis said, a "new President" would be elected and the "issues will be different."

The Senator, 72 years old, entered public life as a member of the Washington Legislature 40 years ago. He was first elected to the Senate in 1913 from Illinois. His present term in the Senate, his third, began in 1936.

Represented Two States.

The Senator, who usually declines to make his age public, is 72, it has been ascertained.

He has been sent to Congress by two States: by Washington as Representative at large in 1897, and by Illinois, which first elected him Senator in 1913. When his first term ended in 1919, he was out of public life until he was elected once more in 1930, defeating Ruth Hanna McCormick, widow of the former Senator. Re-elected in 1936, he was the first Senator to be re-elected for two successive terms in Illinois since the origin of the direct primary.

Bright Spot in Senate.

His flowery oratory, his carefully tailored suits, splendid waistcoats and harmonizing shirts and ties, have been bright features of life on the Senate floor since he arrived there. His carefully parted beard once was famous for its pinkness, but has whitened with age.

Stories of his perfect courtesy, and of his chivalry in his dealings with women are numerous. It is said that he never once criticized Mrs. McCormick in his contest against her.

His colleagues so admired his aptness as a politician that they elected him the first whip of the Senate Democrats in 1931. They also chose him as chairman of the Senatorial campaign committee in 1934.

Raps '3d Term' Possibility.

Foreign affairs was among his committee assignments, and he frequently has had missions of statesmanship abroad. President Wilson sent him to France in 1918 on War and Navy Department missions, and later sent him to London as a member of the Joint High Commission on the Alaskan-Canadian boundary.

He has been troubled with a throat infection ever since his campaign in 1930. Lately he has kept an atomizer in his desk at all times.

Only yesterday he gave voice, however, to his views on a third term for President Roosevelt, saying that such a thing would "destroy the Democratic Party."

Back in June, 1937, he quipped that if he were seeking a 1940 Presidential candidate he would look "first at Illinois and then in the looking glass."

Frederick Slum Survey Started

Frederick, Md., Aug. 2 (AP).—Six persons under the direction of the Frederck Housing Authority began today to interview residents in an effort to determine Frederick's housing and slum clearance needs.

They will ask 52 questions of each person interviewed including the resident's type of house, the number of rooms, heating, lighting and cooking conveniences as well as the amount of rent paid.

The task is designed to give the local housing authority "a picture of housing, particularly among renters, and may be completed within 30 or 40 days. W. Clinton McSherry, the housing authority chairman said.

Bicycle Race Delayed.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 2 (AP).—A bicycle race from Charlottesville to Richmond, originally scheduled for tomorrow, has been postponed to August 17. Fifteen entries have been registered.

SENATOR J. HAMILTON LEWIS.

Accord Is Reached By C.I.O., Celanese

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 2 (AP).—An agreement on a proposed labor contract which affects 8,000 employes in this city's major industry has been reached, the United Textile Workers, Local 1874, announced today.

The negotiating committee of the C. I. O.-affiliated union said that the agreement was on the basis of a contract submitted to it by the Celanese Corporation of America after the union contract had been rejected.

No details of the new agreement were announced pending a conference with officials of the corporation.

Criticized by Judge, W. Va. Man Kills Self

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., Aug 2.—Lawrence "Buddy" Mills, 23, of Rippon, killed himself on the L. M. Long farm at noon today by shooting himself through the head with a small rifle, after being criticized by Judge Long, owner of the farm, for some misdeeds.

He secured the rifle from the house, walked around in front of the porch where Judge Long was seated and shot himself by pushing the trigger with a forked stick.

It was Jefferson County's third suicide within ten days.

Rains Damage Leaf Crop.

Leonardtown, Md., Aug. 2.—A survey of the tobacco crop in St. Mary's County reveals considerable damage in lowlands by the recent excessive rains. The tobacco now is ready to cut and dry weather is needed.

C. C. Calhoun, Lawyer, Dies Of Heart Attack

Special Aide to Attorney General Succumbs at Age of 74.

Capt. C. C. Calhoun, Washington attorney and a special assistant, to the Attorney General, died of a heart attack yesterday at Sibley Hospital. He was 74.

Capt. Calhoun had practiced law in the Capital since he first came here 36 years ago. He served in the Spanish-American War and afterward in the Kentucky National Guard.

While with the militia he helped quell rioting that followed the assassination of Gov. Goebel. He won fame as a lawyer for his handling of Civil and Spanish war claims against the Federal Government.

Entertained Wales.

Capt. Calhoun was rewarded for work he did for the Sioux Indians by being adopted into their tribe. He was given the title of "Chief High Eagle."

Dressed in his chief's costume, Capt. Calhoun welcomed the Prince of Wales to his home when he visited Washington in 1919.

Born in Davies County, Ky., Capt. Calhoun was educated at the University of Kentucky and later won a master of diplomacy degree from George Washington University here.

Capt. Calhoun was a thirty-second degree Mason, a Knight Templar and Shriner. He also was a member of the American Bar Association, the American Society of International Law, the Sons of the American Revolution and of the Metropolitan, Chevy Chase, National Press and City Clubs of Washington.

Burial in Kentucky.

At one time he made his home here at Rossdhu Castle in nearby Maryland. Recently he had been living at Braemar Lodge in Chevy Chase.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Daisy B. Calhoun, and four sisters, Mrs. Leila Calhoun Leighdenger, Mrs. Aileen Grigsby Mrs. Byrd Calhoun Greer and Mrs. Clarence Bryan. All four sisters live in Louisville, Ky.

Funeral services, to be conducted by the Scottish Rite Masons, will be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Hines undertaking establishment. Burial will be at Owensboro, Ky.

Waynesboro, Pa., Aug. 2.—Lois Huff, 5 daughter of M. R. Huff, of Hagerst wn, Md., route 5, was treated for second-degree burns late yesterday at the Waynesboro Hospital. The child was burned about the right side when her clothing became ignited while playing with matches.

Girl, 17, Found Slain

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

BETTY SCHNAIDT, 17-year-old high school graduate, whose bound and gagged body was found yesterday in a clump of weeds near St. Charles, S. Dak., 150 miles west of Sioux Falls. She disappeared Thursday night while minding a neighbor's child.

Mrs. Hamilton's Rites at 3 P. M.

Last rites for Mrs. Laura R. Hamilton, 47 years a resident of the District, who died Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Henry T. Boswell, 3833 Windom place northwest, will be held at the Hines undertaking establishment this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Hamilton had been ill several years.

Born in Napanee, Ontario, Mrs. Hamilton was the widow of Andrew G. Hamilton, who was an optician here until his death in 1926.

Besides Mrs. Boswell, Mrs. Hamilton is survived by another daughter, Miss Lillian M. Hamilton, and two sons, A. Gordon Hamilton, of Washington, and Hugh R. Hamilton, of New York City.

The Rev. James Miers, of the Fourth Street Presbyterian Church, will officiate at the services. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

2 Offered Scholarships.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 2.—Nelson Carpenter, of Round Hill, and Adrian Morrison, of Gore, have been rewarded for their efforts to conserve wild life by being offered scholarships to the State Conservation Camp to be held at Jamestown, Va., August 8-13.

Insko Funeral Set for Today; Lorton Official

Legion Chief to Be Buried in Arlington With Full Military Honors.

Funeral services for Robert L. Insko, 46, of Lorton, Va., superintendent of motor transportation at the District Reformatory, who died in the workhouse hospital Monday, will be held at Arlington National Cemetery this afternoon at 2 o'clock, followed by burial with full military honors.

Mr. Insko was widely known in the affairs of the American Legion, and 1934-35 served as department commander of Virginia. He also had been a department vice commander, and commander of Buck Keys Post, No. 28, Quantico. At one time he was a member of Alexandria Post, but he transferred his membership to Quantico when that post was organized.

During the World War he was a quartermaster sergeant with the Marine Corps. He saw action at Chateau Thiery, St. Mihiel, Blanc Mons Ridge, and the Muese-Argonne. He was with the Army of Occupation on its march to the Rhine. From May, 1918, until August, 1919, Mr. Insko served overseas

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Bernice Insko, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Insko, of Lexington, Ky., Services will be conducted by the Rev. C. A. Langston, rector of Pohick Church.

Honorary pallbearers will include Alvin Poppins and John Haggerty, of Buck Keys Post, and Past Department Commander F. Clinton Knight, G. Raymond King, John A. Nugent and Harry N. Jones, of Alexandria Post. Active pallbearers will be six guards from the Lorton Reformatory.

Mrs. Pollock Dies; Rites Tomorrow

Mrs. Lillian Grace Pollock, wife of Dr. Joseph W. Pollock, died yesterday at her home, 4448 Greenwich parkway, Foxhall Village.

Born at Thurmont, Md., she was married to Dr. Pollock in 1914 and came to Washington as his bride. She was well known as an amateur gardener and was an active member and a past president of the Garden Club in Foxhall Village.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. at Gawler's Chapel, 1750 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. Burial will be at Thurmont.

Honorary pallbearers will be Dr. Oscar Wilkinson, Dr. John H. Trinder, Dr. Charles L. Smith, Dr. Henry F. Mess, Dr. W. Marion Falls and Dr. J. Walter Bernhard.

Surviving, besides her husband, are two sons, Harry B. Pollock and Donald Pollock.

Rites Set Tomorrow For Thomas Beckett

Funeral services for Thomas Beckett, 59, an attorney of 1937 Fourth street northwest, who died last Saturday will be held tomorrow at 1:30 p. m., at Frazier's undertaking establishment, followed by burial in Lincoln Cemetery.

Mr. Beckett was a graduate of Howard University, and had practiced law here since 1905. He was a member of the bars of Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Virginia. Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Lillian C. Beckett, and two daughters, Gloria and Rose Beckett.

Inquiry Made in Death of Woman on Md. Road

Hagerstown, Aug. 2.—An investigation into the death of Mrs. Nora Lavelle, 45, Pittsburg, who was struck last night by the automobile of John L. Hull, Hagerstown, along the National Highway, eight miles east of here, is being made pending an inquest later this week.

Mrs. Levelle was struck when she crossed from her car to a tourist camp. A daughter and a son, who remained in the car, witnessed the accident.

Wagaman Enters Race For State's Attorney

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Aug. 2.—The list of candidates was further swelled today when Charles F Wagaman filed his candidacy for the Republican nomination for State's attorney. Samuel M. Hoffman, Williamsport farmer, and William F. Chaney, former city councilman, filed for the Republican nomination for county commissioner, and Dr. William J. Sullivan, Funkstown, veterinarian, filed for the Democratic nomination for county commissioner.

Bowler Slips, Injures Hip.
